NEW PILOT TO FLY PLANE TO PARIS AFTER COSTE MAKES DALLAS HOP

Today

Gallant French Fliers.
The Beautician's Resolve.
To Help Business, Spend.
Senatorial Comic Opera.
Small Crop, Better Price.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

AS THIS IS written Coste and Bellonte, French fliers, are skimming over Boston, south along the coast of North America, on their crossing from Paris to New York, the first Westward, non-stop flight ever made. Paris, wild with joy and pride, is celebrating, and displaying pictures of Lindbergh and Coste, side by side.

UNLIKE NEW wine in old bottles, the new engine in the old Breguet plane Question Mark, with many famous flights to its credit, is working admirably.

BEAUTY PARLOR gentlemen now call themselves "beauticians," which, unpleasantly, suggests 'mortician," the new name for your undertaker.

And beauticians will add to their beautifying processes by lessons in "charm."

Where, except in the beauty parlor, should the American woman go to learn the more subtle forms of feminine charm, the beautician asks you.

To take a middle-aged lady, dye her hair, paint her face, lift it, eradicate the wrinkles, remove superfluous hair and add "feminine charm" seems to be a very complete job.

T. F. WALLACE, head of the National Association of Savings Banks, sees the end of the slump, because savings deposits increased $225,000,000. Saving shows strength of mind, but the end of the slump might be still nearer if those that put the $225,000,000 extra into savings banks had put it into circulation, buying merchandise.

What people spend makes prosperity, what they save makes them safe.

EXPERTS of Harvard College, also cheerful about "better times," think a business revival is coming because prices of bonds are rising. That proves that bond buyers have money to invest.

There again, if the man that bought bonds had bought an automobile, a piano, new furniture or a house in the country instead, he would have done more for improved business than all the rising prices of bonds could do. Spending is what the country needs.

THERE IS COMIC opera in Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick's battle with Senator Nye.

Senator Nye is almost exploring on the trail of Mrs. McCormick to find what she did with money spent at the primaries. She spent a great deal; she had to.

NOW, TO HIS indignation, Senator Nye finds Mrs. McCormick hiring detectives, 10 by actual count, to trail along after him and find what he does.

Questioned, Mrs. McCormick says:

"Of course, I did it. What is Senator Nye going to do about it?"

Senator Nye answered yesterday by subpenaing the detectives that were shadowing him.

The public feels sure that Mrs. McCormick never did anything wrong, that Senator Nye never did anything wrong, and finds the whole thing amusing.

THE HEAD of the Farm Bureau tells farmers the best thing for them is a crop below normal. In one year farmers increased their potato crop 142,000,000 bushels and got for the bigger crop $242,000,000 less than they got for a small crop the year before. In 1924 they got $300,000,000 more for their corn than they got the following year for a corn crop 600,000,000 bushels bigger. The same thing applies to cotton. It doesn't apply to automobiles or to steel.

ALL IN ONE day the Prince of Wales is promoted in the Army, Navy, and Royal Air Force. The wise British separate their air force from the other two. He is vice admiral of the fleet, lieutenant general in the Army, air marshal of the flying fleet.

The young prince is made to realize that there are advantages in being "born right."

On the other hand it is probably more satisfactory to work to the top without help, like Napoleon or Nelson.

A GENTLEMAN described as "Red" would apply a Russian idea to New York City, and stop payment on the city's debt, principal and interest, as Russia stopped payment on the Czar's bonds.

Also the New Yorker would reduce all public salaries, using the money to pay $25 a week to everybody out of a job until each individual found a job.

As half the people in New York are working for less than $25 a week now, there would probably be many out of a job for some time.

ON THE SEVENTH anniversary of the great earthquake of 1923, there is dedicated in Tokio an earthquake memorial hall on the spot where 33,000 were burned to death.

Five hundred thousand Japanese have made pilgrimages to the memorial, heaping up great mounds of offerings to the spirits of the dead.

The spirits of the dead, doubtless, will do their best to prevent future disasters. Buildings of steel on the American plan, as safe in an earthquake as so many market baskets, would do more.

HOLD SUITOR OF AUCTION GIRL HERE

East End Miss Who Offered Self as Bride for $8,000 Says He Gave Bad Checks

Gertrude Schrader, the 18-year-old East End girl who recently announced she would marry "any American under 35" or $8,000, appearing in Penn Avenue Police Court this morning against her "accepted suitor," whose assets, she said, dwindled to a bundle of bad checks, has lost her faith in humanity.

The "suitor" is docketed as "Louis M. Smith," of Buffalo.

In broken English, Smith told Magistrate William McNamara that the Schrader family was a flock of gold-diggers. He was held for further investigation.

PAST AGE LIMIT OF 35

Smith, who is 40, and therefore five years older than Gertrude's age limit for a husband, was arrested in the Schrader home, 5358 Kincaid street, last night by police after the neighborhood grocer, baker and butcher complained the checks he gave them to pay the Schrader bills were worthless.

Smith told the court he met Gertrude after he read her $8,000 plea for a husband in the newspapers.

"$300,000 ESTATE—YACHT"

Gertrude testified she accepted the man as a suitor when he told a story of having a $300,000 estate, a home in Connecticut, and a yacht.

After Smith had declared his assets, the courtship was completed. The Schrader bills were paid off—by check—and the larger portion of the household furniture was sold, for the Schraders were to move into their Con-

DENIES M'GRAW DEAL FOR BUCS

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(INS.)—"It's a lie."

In these unequivocal terms Charles A. Stoneham, president of the New York Giants, today issued a scathing denial of a story that John McGraw intended to quit the club at the end of the 1931 season in order to buy a controlling interest in the Pittsburgh Pirates. Failing to do this, the story had added, McGraw would retire as active manager of the Giants and assume a strictly executive position with the organization. Stoneman declares:

"There isn't a word of truth in the story."

"Well that's a new one, at least," said Treasurer Sam Dreyfuss, of the Pittsburgh Baseball Club, when informed of the New York report. "Rumor has sold the Pirates to a number of interests, but this is the first time they have been bought by John McGraw. But, of course, it's unfounded. We never have been approached by McGraw or by any one representing him on the subject of buying the club."

Treasurer Dreyfuss also denied that any offers had been received from Fred Clarke or any other interests.

British Greet Hearst, Call French 'Silly'

Universal Service.

LONDON, Sept. 3. — Editorial comment by today's London newspapers concerning the action taken by the French government against Mr. William Randolph Hearst follows:

London Daily Express:

"According to their temperament, some people in France and in America may be mightily amused and others hotly moved by the expulsion of Mr. William Randolph Hearst from French soil. It was long premeditated and appears to have been ceremoniously performed.

"But for us in this country there can only be one feeling about this matter. France, by her action, has sent a distinguished American to seek our shores. We are glad of it, as we shall be glad of all similar actions which produce similar results.

"Mr. Hearst, despite allegations of anti-British feeling, which have been made against him, is a good American who has often proved himself a kindly friend to this country. He will be warmly received here; warmly now and as often as he offers us the chance.

"The more Americans we are able to welcome to England the better pleased we shall be. We and they may smile at one another's forms and symbols, but our instinct of good fellowship is, in the end, the same as theirs—and sound at that."

London Daily Herald:

"Mr. Hearst has been called the Carnera of journalism. He has now taken the official knockout from the French government, which has expelled him from the ring of France.

"But his comments from the ringside seat in England are so delicious that most people feel he has scored. 'The man recovered from the bite: The dog it was that died.' The French claim they are the most logical nation of Europe and have the liveliest sense of humor.

"These qualities belong, of course, to the French people, not to their cabinets."

Daily News-Chronicle:

"Few more idiotic actions

Mystery in Death of Policeman

Found unconscious on a sidewalk in Frankstown avenue today, Patrolman Mark A. Scott, 37, of 1345 Manning street, assigned to the North Side station, died soon after being taken to the Pittsburgh Hospital.

The cause of death is undetermined in the report of hospital authorities to the coroner and a post mortem examination was ordered.

East End police reported that Scott apparently was suffering from alcoholism.

Police and members of the homicide squad, of which Scott's brother, Harry Scott, is a member, began an investigation. The patrolman, unmarried, had been on the force seven years. He had been on vacation since August 30.

Actress to Divorce Scion of Cudahys

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Muriel Cudahy, 20, known on the screen as Muriel Evans, has announced she would file suit today for divorce from Michael Cudahy III, youthful grandson of the founder of the Cudahy Packing Company.

A complaint prepared by an attorney for Mrs. Cudahy charges cruelty and incompatibility.

REBELS HOLD SCHOOL IN OPEN

Insurgent Students Fighting Transfer Attend Class On Steps, Hear Teachers

School days were here today again for Obey avenue district children, with the front steps of the Obey school divided into classes as two volunteer teachers put 18 students through their three R's. However, the classes are not recognized by the Board of Public Education.

Two American flags were hung over the boarded doorway that led to four closed rooms within the building as the session opened this morning. No bell summoned the pupils, but parents who opposed the forced trek of almost a mile to the Schaeffer School since their own building was closed in 1929, saw that the children attended.

SKY IS ROOF

A clouded sky was the only roof over the outdoor school, but Miss Mabel Oakes and Mrs. Minnie Roberts, the teachers, did not allow the threatening weather to delay their classes. A half-dozen mothers stood on the lawn witnessing the boys and girls being placed in groups to grade the six classes represented. Prayer and a pledge to the flag opened the classes.

Miss Oakes, selected because of her experience as one of the teachers in the outdoor school, said she will carry on until after the meeting of the board, September 23, when a petition to re-

NYE QUIZ DEFIED BY DETECTIVE

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—(INS.)—W. C. Dannenberg, head of the detective agency retained by Mrs. Ruth McCormick, Republican senatorial candidate, to investigate the Senate Campaign Investigating Committee, today defied that body by refusal to present his records for its scrutiny.

Dannenberg, who had testified yesterday, charged operatives of his agency had been bribed by investigators employed by the Nye committee. He was recalled to the witness stand when the hearing resumed here this morning.

Dannenberg had been subpenaed to bring the books and records regarding his employment by Mrs. McCormick. When he took the stand, Senator Porter H. Dale asked if he had brought the books, looked for them, or attempted to get into the vault where they are kept.

To each question, he answered: "No, sir, I did not."

At this point Charles Randall stepped forward, announcing himself as attorney for Dannenberg, and declaring:

"I have grave doubt if under the resolution that created this committee, the committee is empowered to demand that my client produce such confidential records."

Dale asked if Randall regarded the relationship between Dannenberg and his clients as similar to that between a lawyer and his clients. Randall said he did.

Morgan's $2,500,000 Yacht Still Aground Off Maine

ISLESBORO, Me., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—The yacht Corsair, $2,500,000 floating palace launched for J. P. Morgan only a few months ago, remained aground on a rocky point off Minot Island in Gilkey's Harbor today, despite the efforts of two tugs and her own engines to pull her off at high tide.

The yacht, with Junius Morgan, son of the owner, and his wife aboard, ran on to the rocks last evening as it was entering the harbor here. It was traveling between six and eight knots.

The vessel's bow at high tide was four feet above the water and at low tide, one-third of the vessel was clear. There was a four-foot list to port at low tide during the night.

First reports last night had said a number of guests were aboard, but after Mr. and Mrs. Morgan went to the home of relatives at Dark Harbor, it was learned they were cruising by themselves when the yacht grounded.

The July total was $35,078,455.

SHOT REJOINING WIFE IN PARK

Leaving his wife, with whom he had been seated on the grass in Herron Hill reservoir park for a few minutes, Meyer Hymovitz, 23, former taxicab driver, was shot down when he returned and found a giant Negro seated beside the woman. The Negro fled, leaving Mrs. Hymovitz bending over her husband. At Passavant Hospital his condition was declared critical. Hymovitz was shot near the heart.

Meyer Hymovitz

According to the police report at the Center Avenue Station, the couple was seated on the grass in the park. Mrs. Hymovitz asked her husband to walk to Milwaukee street, a short distance away, and to see if lights were burning in the home of her parents at 3422 Milwaukee street, where she lives.

SAW MAN BESIDE HER

When Hymovitz returned he noticed a man seated beside his wife and called out to him. A shot rang out and Hymovitz fell to the ground. The other man, then identified as a large Negro, ran down Adelaide street. Mrs. Hymovitz screamed, attracting the attention of George Schempp, of 745 Shawnee street, and two other men. Hymovitz was placed

Attorney Asks $150,000 For Beating on Boat

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 3.—Damages of $150,000 are asked by Kenneth R. Cunningham, Pittsburgh attorney, in a suit filed yesterday against a lake steamship company, charging that he was beaten by a cigar clerk on one of the company's boats.

Two weeks ago, while returning to Detroit from Chicago, where he had attended the American Bar Association convention, Cunningham made a side trip to Parry Sound aboard the Chicago, Duluth and Georgian Bay steamer South American, according to his Detroit attorney, Herbert V. Barbour.

Cunningham was entertaining friends in his stateroom with highballs, but claims the party was personally investigated by Capt. A. C. Anderson, who only told them to keep quiet and go to bed.

After his guests had departed, and he was returning to his room, Cunningham claims, he was assaulted in the corridor without provocation by Fred Conboy, cigar counter attendant, and beaten so badly that he was not presentable for a week.

Attorney Kenneth R. Cunningham is a member of the law firm of Cunningham and Dickson in the Park Building. His home is in Barlett street and he maintains a summer residence in Dorseyville.

CIVIC HONORS PAID FLIERS IN N. Y.

Walker to Extend Official Welcome; Airmen Plan Route of Prize Flight

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—The "?" flown from Paris to New York by Coste and Bellonte, will be flown back from New York to Paris by Paul Codos, French aviator, as soon as Coste and his comrade have completed flights in the plane to Dallas, Tex., and to Washington, it was announced today.

Codos will sail from France with a mechanic in a few days to be in New York when the "?" returns from United States flights.

The plane will be thoroughly overhauled and Codos will attempt to retrace the flight Coste and Bellonte made from Le Bourget to Curtiss Field.

If the flight is successful, it will mark the first round trip across the North Atlantic by the same plane.

CODOS CHANNEL PILOT

Codos is a World War flier and for several years was a regular pilot on the Paris-London airline across the channel, probably the best known and most traveled of all airlines of the world.

Rising early today from the first rest they had had since Sunday night in Paris, Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte prepared to receive the city's greetings and to take off at nine o'clock (Pittsburgh time) for Dallas, Texas, and the $25,000 prize which awaits them there.

RELIC HUNTERS MAR PLANE

Marred somewhat by souvenir hunters, their scarlet plane Question Mark was still believed to be capable of flying half way across the continent without extensive repairs, to qualify for the purse posted three years ago by Col. William A. Easterwood, Dallas millionaire, for the first one-stop flight from the French capital.

By the terms of the prize offer they must take off within 72 hours of their arrival at Curtiss Field last evening.

The airmen found themselves surrounded this morning, long before their official reception began, by the acclaim of a world which still knows how to appreciate a task of daring well done.

Tailors bobbed in and out of their hotel suite putting the last touches on new clothes ordered last night and fashioned through the night by many deft fingers. The fliers arrived with only their greasy coveralls and flying togs, and needed presentable attire for their public appearances today.

Coste was on the telephone early, talking to his wife in Paris

DUCE MURDER PLOT BARED

TRIEST, Italy, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—The authorities announced today that one of 18 Jugoslavian prisoners on trial here for terrorism had given the court a written confession of a plot to attempt the life of Premier Mussolini.

The confession stated that the assassination attempt was to take place with in a few days. The name of the confessing defendant was held secret and no further details were given.

Il Duce has been the object of several murderous attacks. He has narrowly escaped death on some of these occasions.

The confession was announced as the third day of the trial opened this afternoon. The defendants were taken from steel cages, where they were kept in the courtroom, and lined up for cross-examination.

Senator, Racketeer Foe, Poison Victim

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—An inquest into the sudden death of State Senator John P. Joyce today revealed he was killed by a powerful acid.

Senator Joyce died nearly a month ago on the day after his appearance before the grand jury to testify on alleged election terrorism in the Forty-second ward. His family charged he was murdered.

WOMAN 'KNEW SOMETHING;' BARRED AS DONOHOE JUROR

PROSECUTION TAKEN BY SURPRISE

Talesmen Living Near Scene Of Killing Told Story to U. S. Agents; Eight in Box

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 3.—A tense moment cropped up today during the examination of the prospective jurors who will try Anthony W. Bell, former county detective and Masontown police chief, for the murder of Constable John Donohoe.

Mrs. Mary De Priest, called as a tentative juror, declared she knew something of the happenings on the night of Donohoe's murder.

Mrs. De Priest lives near Masontown, not far from where the bullet-riddled body of the ex-constable was found last summer. In reply to Special Prosecutor A. E. Jones' question as to whether she knew anything about the case she replied:

"I know some of the things that took place that night."

She said she had given what information she had to a federal secret service man engaged in an investigation of the murder and subsequent events leading up to the suicide of District Attorney Nicholas W. Rosenberg.

HAD BEEN ACCEPTED

Defense counsel had accepted Mrs. De Priest as a juror prior to her admission of direct knowledge in the case and when Prosecutor Jones entered a challenge for cause, Attorney Newell objected. Judge Hudson, however, after interrogating the woman, overruled the objection and dismissed the juror. She was called over to the commonwealth's counsel table by Attorney Jones and requested to visit him in his office at the conclusion of this morning's session. Jones said he wanted to interview Mrs. De Priest as a possible witness.

Two more jurors were selected in short order this morning, bringing the total up to eight, five men and three women.

Those selected this morning from the new panel of 150 called in today after the original panel of 100 had been exhausted yesterday are:

Commodore Fike, Dunbar Township, miner, and John T. Landymore, Pittsburgh and Lake Erie passenger conductor, of Dawson. Fike was the first member of the new panel called. Landymore was the fourth.

QUIZ TALESMEN

Half a dozen others were quizzed on the witness stand, Special Prosecutor A. E. Jones continuing the examination for the state, and Wade K. Newell, associate counsel for Bell, taking up the questioning instead of H. S. Dumbald, chief counsel, who had been conducting the examination.

Bell also is represented by Jacob Horewitz, while District Attorney J. B. Adams and Second Assistant William J. Crow are assisting in the prosecution.

Only six jurors had been selected out of the original panel of 100, exhausted entirely in the first two days of the trial. Three are men and three are women.

They are: Owen Pletcher, Tyrone Township, farmer; Mrs. Mary Costello, Lemont, store clerk; Mrs. Martha Goodman, Lemont, mother of 10 children; Orville Stacey, Maxwell, blacksmith; Mrs. Mary Rugg, wife of Dunbar Township schoolmaster; Jesse McCann, Luzerne Township, farmer.

Because of the widespread attention attracted by the killing of Donohoe and the subsequent suicide of District Attorney Nicholas Rosenberg, it has been difficult to find jurors who have not formed an opinion or who have not expressed themselves.

Mrs. Mary Bell, aged mother of the defendant, now a resident of New York City, arrived in Uniontown this morning. During the morning recess she visited her son in the prisoners' dock. It was her first visit in several months. Mother and son embraced. Bell, apparently unmoved, patted her shoulder and whispered in her ear.

Bell sitting at counsel table with his wife, Mrs. Florence Bell, has never wavered from his air of self-assurance and he chats gaily with his attorneys while the court routine drags on.

MRS. HESS HELD

Mrs. Helen Hess, of Uniontown, a witness in the trial of Tony Bell for the murder of Constable John Donohoe, at Uniontown, was held for Federal Court in $3,000 bail today by a United States commissioner, charged with violating the Mann act. She is alleged to have transported Velma Coll, 24, from Morgantown, W. Va., to Masontown, Pa., for improper purposes, July 13, 1929. Bond was provided by Morris Goldstein, 48 Chatham street.

$200,000 FIRE CLOSES PLANT

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 3.—Lightning, during a severe electrical storm which swept over Westmoreland County early today, destroyed the tipple and coal washing plant of the Keystone Coal and Coke Company at Salemville, 10 miles north of here. Officials of the company estimated the loss at $200,000. Firemen from Greensburg and New Alexandria fought the blaze for three hours.

The coal washing plant, which prepares the coal before it is made into coke, was one of the largest and most modern in this district. Three hundred men will be thrown out of work by the fire, it was said. The plant was struck by lightning shortly before 1 o'clock and the flames spread rapidly.

Heavy tension lines of the West Penn Power Company are located near the tipple. Officials of the power company fearing the flames would reach the lines, shut off all power. Hundreds of homes were without service during the three hours the fire raged.

EATON'S ALLIES TO TESTIFY

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—S. Livingston Mather and Harris Creech, of Cleveland, who were directors of Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company representing the interests of Cyrus S. Eaton at the time the board approved the merger with Bethlehem Steel, will be here tomorrow to testify in the injunction suit against the merger.

They will appear, it was learned today, at the request of Judge David Jenkins, who summoned William G. Mather, also of Cleveland, in a similar manner last week.

Livingston Mather is an official of the Cliffs Corporation, a holding company, whose stock is half owned by Eaton, the leading opponent of the merger. Cliffs Corporation held 125,000 shares of Sheet and Tube stock which Livingston Mather represented on the board, but did not vote at the March 12 directors' meeting.

Mr. Mather and William G. Mather are son and brother respectively of Samuel Mather, wealthy and influential steel and ore man at Cleveland, whose interests were aligned with the merger side.

Creech represented Eaton's personal stockholdings on the Youngstown board. He voted against the merger. He also is president of the Cleveland Trust Company, of which Newton D. Baker, member of defense counsel, is a director.

The Mathers and Creech have refrained from appearing at the trial to avoid any personal embarrassment that might arise from their connections with firms and individuals linked on both sides of the merger controversy.

3 Convicts Tie Up Ohio Guard, Escape

JUNCTION CITY, O., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Three convicts, one with a pistol, made a daring escape from the Junction City penitentiary brick plant today after overpowering and tieing up a guard. They fled in an automobile owned by Howard Grunsler, a guard at the plant.

The men escaped were Lee Meddelton, 28, burglar; Gen Caddes, 24, imprisoned on a statuatory charge, and Clyde Fisher, 20, automobile thief.

Furniture Truck Burns in Street; Loss $3,000

A furniture van owned by the Greyhound Company was destroyed by fire in Galveston avenue, near Ridge avenue, early today. Jerry Cline, the driver, estimated the damage at $3,000. The fire spread from the motor to all parts of the van within a few minutes.

have been perpetrated by a civilized and presumably intelligent government than the expulsion of Mr. William Randolph Hearst from France. We hold no brief for Mr. Hearst, but what possible harm can his mere presence in France do? Or what possible good can be done by insulting him in this impotent way?

"The spectacle of a great nation avenging upon an individual real or fancied wrongs is odious when the revenge is effective. When, as in this case, the victim is none the worse and is advertised to the world as a man so powerful that a foreign government dares not harbor him within its territory, it is silly."

PARIS, Sept. 3.—(INS.)—An official communique issued last evening by the French government read:

"The Presidency of the Council communicates the following: William Randolph Hearst, proprietor of numerous newspapers in America, was expelled yesterday (Monday) from French territory. This measure, taken upon the order of the President of the Council, Minister of the Interior, had as its origin the role played last year by Mr. Hearst in obtaining and publishing a secret document relating to the Anglo-French naval negotiations."

Slain Raider's Wife Given Job By Hoover

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3.—(INS.)—President Hoover's recognition of her slain husband's loyalty to duty led today to the appointment of Mrs. Louise Freeman to a clerkship in the local prohibition office.

An order, signed by the President, was received by Prohibition Administrator William W. Walker, instructing him to give Mrs. Freeman the position "without compliance with civil service rules." The woman's husband, Robert D. Freeman, a prohibition agent, was fatally injured during a raid.

PINCHOT URGES ALL CITIZENS TO REGISTER

See Names Are on Voting Assessment List, He Advises in Statement

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—An appeal to citizens throughout Pennsylvania to see that their names are on the voting assessment lists, so that they are qualified to participate in the November general election, is made by Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee for governor, preceding the first registration day tomrorw in the large cities of the state.

Mr. Pinchot, from his home in Milford, points out that in the boroughs and townships the electors' names appear on the assessors' lists, while in the cities where personal registration prevails it is necessary first to be assessed in order to pay poll tax, a largely used form of taxable qualification for registering. In Philadelphia the division assessors are sitting at the polling places for the last time today to add names to their lists.

SPECIAL INSPECTORS

At the registration in this city tomorrow, interest of the Pinchot forces in obtaining a fair enrolment will be looked after by special inspectors in over 500 divisions. The registration commission agreed to appoint the inspectors upon petition of S. Davis Wilson, chairman of the Pinchot city campaign committee.

Chairman Wilson based his petition to the commission on the fact that the regular Republican organization, many of whose leaders are hostile to Mr. Pinchot's candidacy, is in control of the registration watchers' certificates.

PINCHOT TO BE HOST

MILFORD, Pa., Sept. 3.—(INS.)—Gifford Pinchot, the Republican candidate for governor, and Mrs. Pinchot will play host at their "Grey Towers" home here tomorrow afternoon to about 3,000 people from Pike, Susquehanna and Bradford counties who will bring their own lunches with them.

The "party" is the second to be staged at the former governor's home here in the past two weeks.

Mackey Back From Europe, Will Support Pinchot

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Returning today from a five weeks' trip to Europe, Mayor Harry A. Mackey said he would support the "whole Republican ticket" at the November election.

Asked whether that meant he would vote for Gifford Pinchot, the Mayor replied:

"Gifford Pinchot is the Republican candidate for Governor."

in Schempp's car and taken to the hospital.

Mrs. Hymovitz told police she was alone when her husband left, but that a few minutes later someone sat down beside her. It was dark and she did not notice it was not her husband, she said. It was not until he returned and called out to the stranger that she became alarmed. She moved away as the shot was fired, she added.

FUGITIVE SEEN RUNNING

Residents of Adelaide street said they noticed a tall Negro running from the park a moment after the shot was fired. Police also learned that the man turned into Clarissa street and escaped.

The couple have been married for several months. When Hymovitz lost his job recently, the wife returned to the home of her parents. The husband, the wife told police, does not maintain a home, but has been living at various bath houses in the Hill district. She said she had been meeting her husband at night in the park, as he was not welcome at the home of her parents.

open the closed school will be heard.

About 65 pupils are affected by the closing of the school, and their parents are up in arms. Among other inconveniences, they declare, the smaller children could not come home for lunch from the Schaefer school.

CONSIDERS MOVING

Mrs. E. B. Hallock, of Steuben street, said she was considering moving to another district where she could find a school closer to home. Mrs. Mary Holste and Mrs. Martha Kerrigan, of Lessing street, both intend to keep their children home when the outdoor school closes, unless the old building is reopened.

And as for Mrs. Dorothy Stalker, of Ringgold street, who went to live in the district recently, she will teach her daughter at home before she permits her to walk "all the way to Schaefer school."

Pupils attending the opening classes were: Grade 1, Wilford Steurnagel, Sylvia Carr, Rex McNary, Richard Herman and Karl Roth; grade 2, Ralph Kerrigan, Helen Hotz, Carl Amstone and Charles Kerski; grade 3, Jacqueline Cornell; grade 4, Charles Casler; grade 5, Glenn Oakes and Delwin Oakes; grade 6, George Roth, Charles Garvin, Bert Hess, Dolores Hendricks and Virginia Woodward.

U. S. BALLOON ENTRY RACE WINNER

Van Orman in Goodrich VIII Lands Near Boston With 550-Mile Record Flight

CLEVELAND, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Ward T. Van Orman, of Akron, O., premier balloonist of the United States, today was given the unofficial recognition of the Gordon Bennett balloon race officials here, as winner of this year's classic.

Unless Van Orman should be found to have violated some rule of the race, his flight from Cleveland, which ended near Boston last night, a distance of approximately 550 miles, will be recognized officially by the National Aeronautical Association as the winning mark of the race. He was flying the Goodyear VIII.

FIFTH VICTORY

With official recognition, Van Orman's victory would be his fifth consecutive capture of the Bennett race first honors, and would give the United States the second leg on the third Bennett cup. The second Bennett cup already is a United States possession.

Capt. Ernest DeMuyter, of Belgium, who has won four of the Bennett races, and who gave the first Bennett trophy to Belgium, was unofficial holder of second place in this year's event, but was threatened with disqualification, air race officials said, through alleged violation of the race rules. He finished at Adams, Mass., a flight of approximately 435 miles.

BELGIANS BREAK RULES

The threatened disqualification of DeMuyter's flight came from the daring act of his aide, Leon Coeckelbaerg, who climbed down the drag rope and jumped into a tree to lighten the load as the balloon began to drop.

The other four contestants were credited unofficially with finishing in the following order: City of Detroit, third; Barmen (Germany) and City of Cleveland, fourth and fifth (possible tie), and the Pierre Fisbach (France) sixth.

The pilot balloon of the United Van Service, a non-contestant, which started a few minutes earlier than the others, also landed safely last night at Jamaica, Vt.

ENGINE WRECKS TRUCK; 1 HURT

A shifting engine, hauling six cars laden with coal, was derailed today when it crashed into a produce truck at the Baltimore and Ohio grade crossing at Bride street, Etna.

Produce from the crushed truck littered the track, and Bart Bordonaro, a producer dealer, of Tarentum, was slightly injured when he leaped from the vehicle.

Just as Bordonaro's truck came upon the crossing, one of the gates with which the crossing is guarded, dropped behind him, and the locomotive came around a bend of the tracks before the driver could reach the opposite side.

The pony wheels of the locomotive left the track, and traffic was at a standstill while a wrecking crew replaced them. The truck was demolished.

New Take-Off Site For Pacific Plane

AOMORI, Japan, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Harold L. Bromley's next attempt to take off on a projected flight to Tacoma, Wash., likely will be made from the northern part of Hondo Island.

Harold Gatty, Bromley's colleague, after inspecting possible takeoff sites, announced today the coastal plan at Kinoshitadaira, 20 miles north of Hachinohe, offered a 3,000-meter runway from which it would be possible to start with a full load of fuel for a non-stop flight across the Pacific Ocean.

Memorial Society Leases Lindbergh Birthplace

DETROIT, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—The house at 1120 Forest avenue in which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was born has been leased by a group of men acting as trustees for a proposed Lindbergh memorial association.

This announcement was made today by a law firm which stated that the association will be incorporated as a non-profit organization with memberships ranging in price from $1 to $25. The association affairs would be administered by a board of 15 trustees, the announcement said, and the building would be remodeled into a museum and club house.

Facilities would be provided for a travel and registry bureau for the flying public and for registration of all persons employed in aeronautical work. The association plans to sponsor aeronautical work. The association plans to sponsor contests and offer trophies for achievements in aviation.

This is the second effort to establish a shrine at the Lindbergh birth place.

The Swedish engineering society purchased the house in 1929 but later abandoned its plans and turned it back to the original owners.

Bellevue Cronies to Lose Last Loitering Place

Bellevue's last loitering place is giving way to the march of progress.

The old wooden platform and steps that served as an entrance to an ancient business block at Lincoln and Balph avenues is being torn down to permit extension of an automobile firm's quarters adjoining. Part of the old structure already has been removed.

Comparable to the historic "steps" of downtown Pittsburgh, the Bellevue landmark has been the meeting place of borough cronies for more than half a century. There old-timers assembled each evening during the summer months to gossip and greet passersby.

The property was part of a block willed to Bellevue by the late Mrs. Jane Teece. It later was sold and the income has been used toward maintenance of the Andrew Bayne Memorial Library in Balph Park, a gift of Mrs. Teece's sister, Mrs. Amanda Balph.

Sapru and Jayakar were closeted with Gandhi, Madame Sarjini Naidu and Rangaswami Iyengar, editor of the Madras Hindu, for four and a half hours.

SUES TO STOP GARBER BAND

Charging that Jan Garber and his recording orchestra had violated the terms of a contract, counsel for the Orchestra Corporation of America, New York City, today asked an injunction in Common Pleas Court restraining Garber from fulfilling his present engagement at Klein's Villa, Babcock boulevard.

Judge Frank Patterson granted a postponement till later today to permit counsel for the orchestra to offer arguments.

In applying for the writ, the Orchestra Corporation alleges Garber entered into a contract with them July 28, last, the stipulations of which provide that Garber should fill no engagements unless booked by the complainant and that the corporation was to receive 10 per cent of all earnings until $300,000 had been grossed by the orchestra.

The Klein Villa engagement was booked by another office in direct violation of the agreement, the complainant alleges.

Justice Crater, widely known throughout New York, has been the object of a wide search by members of his family and associates. But the fact that he had disappeared had been kept a secret.

The jurist was last seen at a Broadway theatrical agency, where he had purchased a ticket for a performance. He is known to have withdrawn $3,500 from his bank on the same day, August 6. He was scheduled to preside in his court on August 28, but did not appear and another justice was substituted.

POLICE UP FOR 'BLUE' TRIAL

A police captain and three lieutenants, who were charged with neglect of duty and suspended by Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh following their failure to suppress Sunday sport in the East End district, will appear before the police trial board today for a hearing.

The officers are Acting Capt. Frank Shine, Acting Lieuts. Harry Charles and William Connor, and Lieut. William Fullerton.

They are accused of permitting a miniature golf course at Washington boulevard and Chianti street, said to be owned by Mike DeRosa, politician, to operate last Sunday in defiance of Walsh's edict. The game was stopped by East End police on Walsh's order.

If he is able to get someone to back a court fight, Hugh Pasquacelli, manager of the Lincoln Civic Club baseball team, said he expected today to file an appeal from fines imposed for Sunday baseball playing.

Also appearing before the police trial board will be Orville Mills, former motorcycle patrolman and police telephone operator, in whose home on McClintock avenue police reported they found their missing machine gun. Mills has been held by a police magistrate in connection with the theft of the weapon.

RENO, Nev., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Incomplete returns from Nevada's 17 counties indicated today that Gov. Fred B. Balzar had been renominated by the Republicans in the state primary yesterday.

EXPLORER'S BODY KEEPS BOOK SAFE

Experts Find Third Member Of Arctic Balloon's Crew Remains Unaccounted For

(Copyright, 1930, and all rights reserved in North and South America and in Japan by the Associated Press.)

TROMSOE, Norway, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—A day-to-day record of the Andree expedition's tramp over the ice from where its balloon was wrecked to White Island, where its members perished, is contained in one of the two notebooks found wrapped in an undershirt behind the explorer's back today. Its discovery was announced by the experts who had examined the body.

They said this diary was the most important discovery yet made in connection with the record of the expedition. The other notebook, upon which Andree lay when dying and protected with his body even in death, contains only some geographical observations. These are on the first pages. The rest of the book is blank.

BOOK WELL PRESERVED

These notebooks constituted the interesting discoveries announced earlier by the experts, who had said:

"A find of special interest was made on the back part of the body."

The books seemed in good condition. In his effort to preserve them for those who might find his body, Andree had stripped off his undershirt and made them secure. As his body was found headless, it is apparent that this precaution was not an idle one, since bears made frequent marauding trips through the camp.

A formal statement by the experts, Hedren and Lithberg, says only the skeletons of Andree and Strindberg remain intact. The clothing, although fairly well preserved, had been much torn, probably by animals. The statement read:

"After the remains of the Andree expedition had been transferred to the hospital at Tromsoe, the experts began their work at 1 p. m. Tuesday.

RELICS BROUGHT THERE

"Simultaneously were transferred to the hospital such belongings aboard the Bratvaag as the sledge, the canvas boat, with its contents, and objects found in Andree's camp on White Island, including the log book and the diary from the inner pocket of Andree's jacket.

"So far, the remains of two men have been found. The organic parts are very deteriorated, but some of the garments are more or less fully preserved.

"From the initials on the clothes, it emerges that these two men are the expedition's chief, Salomon August Andree, and his scientific assistant, Nils Strindberg.

"Only the skeletons of Andree's and Stringberg's bodies remain. The remains brought home are to be photographed in the condition in which they now are. Immediately thereafter, examination of Andree's body will begin.

"The clothes are more or less torn to pieces, probably by animals.

SPREAD IT OVER HIMSELF

"Andree had spread out his jacket over himself. Under the jacket were found some clothes, including a cap.

"A find of special interest was made on the back of the body. This consisted of two books wrapped in an undershirt and placed inside his clothes, against his back.

"The first of these books contains only some geographical observations on the first pages. The rest of the book is blank.

"The second book was a daybook, to record the journey on foot over the ice. This book is the most important thus far found to tell of the fate of the Andree expedition."

Seattle Rum Plot Charges Collapsing

SEATTLE, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—With one defendant in the Lyle-Whitney prohibition conspiracy case acquitted by directed verdict, Federal Judge Frank H. Norcross today considered a similar motion in behalf of another of the four men remaining on trial.

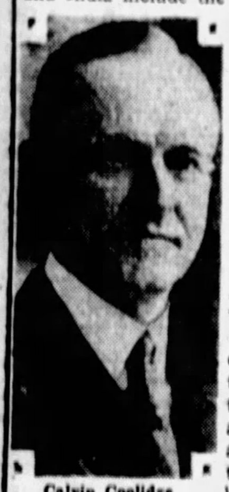
The court ordered the acquittal yesterday of Clifford T. McKinney, former assistant United States attorney, who, with Roy C. Lyle, former prohibition administrator; William M. Whitney, chief assistant; R. L. Fryant and Earl Corwin, former federal agents, was charged with accepting bribes from rum runners in a conspiracy to permit importation of liquor to the United States.

Coolidge Sees Devotion To Government in U. S.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Sept. 3.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

A good many hundred millions of the people of the earth are suffering from unrest and revolution. China and India include the larger part of Asia. Bolivia, Peru, Brazil and the Argentine occupy much of South America. The difficulties in Brazil and the Argentine are threatened rather than actual, and happily may be averted. The underlying cause of this unrest appears to be chiefly economic. People find difficulty in making a living and turn on their government, which usually has not been responsible for their distress. Throughout the greater part of Europe and North America orderly government prevails.



Calvin Coolidge

In spite of a large amount of crime, the United States is most fortunate in the devotion of the people to the government. For two generations there has not been any open and serious challenge to public authority. Local disorders have not been important enough to raise any doubt about the supremacy of the law. We have prospered because we have been a peace-loving, law-abiding people, able to redress our grievances through the ballot box and the jury box. That is the chief index of progress in sound government.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

'Tourist' Diamond Becomes Man Without Country

AIX-LA-CHAPELLE, Germany, Sept. 3. (INS.)—Jack "Legs" Diamond, ace-high in New York underworld circles, theoretically was a man without a country today.

Germany, Belgium and other European nations refuse to have or to hold him and certainly the United States has failed to extend a haven of refuge. There is a growing suspicion that he fled his native land to escape being the object of gangdom's popular lavish drama.

Seized here and held without specific charges after England had refused him admittance and Belgian police had escorted him to the German border, the racketeer has presented to German authority an unwelcome puzzle. Informed by New York police that at present he is not wanted in that city, he was retained in jail until a definite decision as to his disposal could be reached.

Lack of ratification of the extradition treaty negotiated between the United States and Germany complicated his removal, which was insisted upon in German official circles. It was understood further that other European countries had no desire whatever of extending to the American gangster any of the usual tourist traveling privileges.

The most plausible course open to the police today was to send him back to the United States as an undesirable alien, which the authorities regarded as the most satisfactory solution.

SLAYER OFFERS 'BEAR' ALIBI

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., Sept. 3 (AP).—Don Brock, 29, Odell, Ore., was under arrest today in connection with the slaying of Fred Dunbar, Klamath Falls insurance man, shot to death on an outing with Miss Doris Bacon, at Summit Lake, Monday.

Officers said Brock confessed the slaying, explaining he had mistaken Dunbar for a bear.

Miss Bacon told officers Dunbar was shot down as he prepared to take her picture standing in the lake.

The slayer then struck her over the head with his revolver and tied her to a tree, departing with her clothing and that of Dunbar, the girl related.

After remaining tied to the tree over night, clad only in a bathing suit, Miss Bacon said she freed herself and walked nine miles over the mountains to Crescent Lake, where she reported the killing.

Mother Tosses Four From Burning Home

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3 (INS).—Four children escaped from flames in their home when their mother had the presence of mind to toss them into the arms of a policeman from the second floor. Mrs. Eleanor Chisholm, 40, the mother, was suffering today from shock and cuts. She gathered together Gerald, 4, Holden, 5, Jesse, 2, and Dine, 3. Policeman J. I. Hicks stood below the window and caught the children. Mrs. Chisholm collapsed as a fireman carried her down a ladder.

Movie Executive And Wife Separate

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 3 (INS).—The Boulevard today was engrossed in a new topic of conversation, the separation of Albert Kaufman, motion picture executive, and his wife, the former Rita Spear.

Kaufman, a brother-in-law of Adolph Zukor, president of Paramount, has moved to a hotel, leaving his wife and son, Albert, Jr., in their home.

Hugh C. Wallace, Diplomat, Better

MONTE CARLO, Sept. 3 (AP).—Hugh C. Wallace, former American ambassador to France, today was reported improving after an attack of bronchitis, complicated by heart disease. Mrs. Wallace also is in poor health, but her husband said she was better than when they arrived in France a month ago.

Wire Shock Victim Faces Loss of Hands

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3.—(INS.)—Facing the loss of both hands, Santo Anasaldo, 14, fought for life in a hospital today after being suspended to high tension wires atop a 65-foot telegraph pole. The boy was rescued by firemen who spread a net into which he had dropped. He had climbed the pole to retrieve a hat.

WRIT BALKS HOP OF COLUMBIA

MONTREAL, Sept. 3 (AP).—A writ of attachment stood today as a barrier to the proposed flight of Capt. Errol Boyd from Montreal to Croydon, England, in the trans-Atlantic plane Columbia.

The attachment was obtained by Roger Q. Williams, New York aviator, who charges Charles A. Levine, owner of the Columbia, owes him $801 for flying the plane here from New York. The suit is directed against the Columbia Airlines, Inc., and Levine.

John O'Brien, backer of Boyd's flight, said they were willing to post bonds if necessary to release the plane. He said none of the persons associated with the proposed Boyd flight was responsible in the matter, as the plane had been loaned by Levine, who now is in Europe.

The Croydon flight was originally scheduled to start Monday, but was delayed by adverse weather.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(INS.)—Weather today still held up the takeoff of two groups of Americans who will attempt to fly across the Atlantic to Europe.

Ted Lundgren, Roger Q. Williams and William Marsalis waiting at Roosevelt Field to start around the world, said they would go as soon as the weather was favorable. Russell Boadman, who plans to hop from Boston to Dublin, also awaited better weather.

Five Inches of Snow Falls in Alberta

EDMONTON, Alberta, Sept. 3 (AP).—Winter has taken an early grip on sections of Alberta with five inches of snow reported at Cadomin and a similar downfall in the Drumheller coal district. Frost blanketed the Peace River district.

CAMDEN, N. J., Sept. 3 (INS).—Bobby Jones, a carrier pigeon, will take the air today on an unusual mission.

He will fly to New York with an application for a $20,000 bid bond for a surety company.

F. W. Mark, Philadelphia contractor, who is sending the pigeon, seeks bond covering construction of a courthouse annex at Pottsville, Pa.

The pigeon is expected to make the flight in two hours.

The constable, J. Purt, was arraigned in police court on a charge of murder. The shooting occurred at a picnic Mrs. Light and her husband attended. The Constable witnesses said accepted several drinks from the Light party.

150 HELD UP, $12,000 TAKEN

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—(INS.)—Frantic search for six armed bandits was under way today following a raid on the offices of the Wieland Dairy Company, where the sextet held 150 milk wagon drivers at bay while they took $12,000 in collections from the cashier.

Forcing the employes to lie on the floor, the robbers scooped up the $12,000 in bills and currency, stuffed it into sacks and escaped in an automobile.

A Brinks' Company armored truck arrived two minutes after the bandits' departure to take the currency to a bank.

OIL OPERATOR NEW DIRECTOR AT COLONIAL

J. C. Trees One Of Foremost Figures In Gas and Oil Fields.

OPENED MANY BIG POOLS

J. C. Trees, vice-president of the Benedum-Trees Oil Company, and one of the foremost figures among the independent oil and gas operators in this country, has been elected to the board of The Colonial Trust Company. Mr. Trees and his associates have opened up many of the largest and most important oil pools in this country, having been pioneers in Arkansas, Louisiana and many other sections of the West and Southwest, as well as in Mexico and South America. They conducted the first successful underwater drilling operations in southern fields, and established records for deep production of oil.

Mr. Trees is an alumnus of the University of Pittsburgh. He was a member of the Pitt football team during his college days and has taken a prominent part in Pitt athletic affairs. He was the donor of the Trees Gymnasium at Pitt. He has developed, in the Treesdale Farms, near Pittsburgh, what is said to be one of the finest of model farms.

Mr. Trees is a director of the International Petroleum Company, Ltd., chairman of the board of the Gas Industries Company, president and a director of the Carbo-Oxygen Company, and a director of the South Hills Oil & Gas Company. He is a trustee of Pitt.

HOW TO SAVE $1,000

	How Much to Deposit	Actual amount which will be saved	Amount of Interest Included
In 1 year	$19.00 weekly	$1,008.22	$ 20.22
In 2 years	$ 9.50 weekly	$1,028.57	$ 40.57
In 3 years	$26.50 monthly	$1,014.66	$ 60.66
In 4 years	$19.50 monthly	$1,015.89	$ 79.89
In 5 years	$15.50 monthly	$1,030.18	$100.18

These figures are based on regular deposits at 4% interest compounded semi-annually, as at The Colonial Trust Company.

SHOWS 5 WAYS TO SAVE $1,000

Table Shows Effect Of Interest On Savings.

The amount of money which it is necessary to save each week or each month to accumulate $1,000 in from one to five years is shown in the table above.

The table also shows the portion of the total which is made up of the interest added to the savings. As you will see by the table, more than $100 of the total, or almost ten per cent, is made up of interest when the savings run over a period of five years, as against approximately $20 of interest in the same $1,000 total when it is saved in a single year.

This illustrates a point which is made by many financial men in relation to the steady, systematic saving of money. Many people put off the actual beginning of their savings, on the theory that later in life they will be able to save larger amounts and save a given sum in a shorter period. When they do this, they shorten the period over which interest accumulates and consequently they get much less help from compound interest in the accumulation of their savings.

Savings should be begun at once, no matter how small an amount can be saved now, rather than postponed.

The figures in the table herewith are taken from a booklet "How Much Do You Want?" published by The Colonial Trust Company. The booklet also contains similar figures on the amounts which must be saved weekly or monthly to accumulate sums from $100 to $10,000 over a given period of time. You can have a copy of this folder on request by stopping in the bank, by telephoning to the Savings Department, or by writing.

SAVE NOW FOR NEXT VACATION

Regular Deposits Are Made With Aid Of Dime Banks.

At this time of the year many customers at The Colonial Trust Company make a practice of opening special savings accounts for the accumulation of funds for their vacations next year. Small deposits made regularly, week-by-week, over a period of 50 or 52 weeks mount into very substantial sums and open the way to vacation pleasures which might not otherwise be possible.

The Savings Department at The Colonial is a great place for people who want to save small amounts regularly. There are literally thousands of people among the customers here who make an unfailing practice of coming in on a certain day of each week with a deposit. The Colonial has done everything it can to help them save. Many devices such as dime banks, are available to anyone who wishes to save.

These banks come in several different forms. Some of them are small, so that you can carry them in your pocket or purse; others are larger and are usually kept in your desks at the office, or in your room at home, where they will be a constant reminder to you of your plan for saving money.

Many men and women make a habit of putting into these small banks all the change they get in dimes, nickels or pennies. A surprising amount of money can be accumulated in this manner without much effort and without missing it from daily expenditures.

Colonial Is Located On Three Streets

The banking rooms of The Colonial Trust Company are located in the center of the business district, and have entrances on Wood street, Diamond street and Fourth avenue. The location is one of the most convenient in the downtown district.

THE PURPOSE OF THIS PAGE

This is one of a series of pages dealing with the day-by-day "news" in a bank. This series is published in the belief that there is much more of interest going on in such an institution than most people realize. We believe these events are of public interest because money and finance have taken so large a part in the life of individuals and corporations alike.
THE COLONIAL TRUST CO.

Dime Bank

One of the forms of dime banks distributed to customers of The Colonial Trust Company to help them save. This is in the form of a small book. Although it is only two inches wide, three inches long and a half an inch thick, it will hold $4.00 in dimes.

MAN IN CHILE OPENS ACCOUNT

The Colonial Now Has Many South American Depositors.

A savings account was recently opened at The Colonial Trust Company for a man who is employed in the nitrate industry in South America. This customer, who has never been in The Colonial here, opened his account by letter from Tocopilla in Chile, entirely upon the recommendations of friends who have been customers of The Colonial. He is sending his savings each month.

The Colonial has many customers below the equator. Most of them, like this newest one, have never seen the bank. Their deposits are made in eight drafts. Many of these deposits are on the way for two or three weeks before they arrive here. Some come from tiny towns, far in the inland, and are carried by native runners, river steamers, ocean liners, and rail.

SAFE-BUILDERS BEAT BURGLARS

One of Most Modern Vaults at The Colonial.

The story of the development of a safe deposit vault such as that at The Colonial Trust Company is as thrilling and as fascinating as a detective story. The history of vault-building has been a constant race between the ingenuity of criminals in devising methods of attacking vaults, and the ingenuity of scientists in devising methods of defeating criminals' attacks.

In olden days, the principal weapons of safe robbers had been rams, tools and high explosives. A defense against these was built up by the construction of massive doors, walls of armor plate and tool-proof chrome steel. With the coming of the cutting torch, with its temperature of several thousand degrees, many of those materials became highly vulnerable and new means had to be developed to make vaults safe.

This was accomplished with the discovery of a new amalgam metal which cannot be cut or melted by the torches which cut easily through ordinary steel. With the development of this metal, safe burglars have been completely check-mated.

One of the finest vaults of this new type is to be seen at The Colonial Trust Company, where it is the safe deposit vault for use of customers. This vault is constructed of walls of masonry as hard as granite, reinforced with riveted steel framework and behind them a huge lining built up of alternating layers of armor plate, drill-proof chrome steel, and the torch-resisting amalgam metal.

Other Nations Have Their Money Made in America

Business of Engraving Paper Currency For Most Countries Is Concentrated In United States.

America is the greatest money-making country in the world, in more senses than one. The people of the United States have accumulated so much skill in the engraving of paper money and have designed and constructed such excellent machinery for its production that most foreign countries have their money engraved in this country.

Currency used by the United States Government is produced by the Government itself, while that manufactured for foreign countries is produced by private companies.

In this connection it is interesting to note that, contrary to public opinion, the paper used in the small-size currency established by the Government a year ago is practically the same as used in the larger-sized bills of the past. Many people believe that a lighter paper is being used.

Considerable public attention has been drawn to the fact that, on the new small-size bills issued by the Government in the names of individual banks, the banks' names are printed instead of being engraved, as in the past. It is explained that if new engraved plates had been made, in the small size, for each bank which issues currency, it would have taken years to produce the plates alone.

The Old Familiar Microphone Is Passing Out; New Type Arrives

The round microphone at the left has become so familiar to the American public that it is now generally regarded as a symbol of radio . . . yet in the past few months its death knell has sounded. In the broadcasting studios, the old familiar "mike" (technically known as the carbon microphone) is being discarded, and in its place has come the box-shaped condenser microphone, shown at the right in the picture.

The new "mike" is more sensitive than the old one, is quieter and more rugged. Take a good look at it; you are going to see a lot more of it in the days to come.

The new condenser "mikes" will be used in broadcasting the radio programs of The Colonial Trust Company when they are resumed from KDKA Saturday evening, September 13, at 7:15 o'clock.

DEPUTIES FACE MURDER TRIAL

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 3 (INS)—An early trial was forecast today for sheriff's deputies T. H. Sullivan and C. C. Lane, charged with the murder of Mrs. Thelma Wooten, 24-year-old mother.

Mrs. Wooten was fatally wounded last week when the officers were alleged to have fired into an automobile which they suspected of conveying liquor.

An examination of the automobile after the shooting revealed no trace of liquor, it was said.

Mrs. Wooten died from the gun wound yesterday morning.

The officers who had been held in jail since the woman was injured were immediately charged with murder.

CHEMIST FOUND SLAIN IN SHOP

BALTIMORE, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Police who discovered the body of a chemist stuffed in a barrel of his shop last night said the man's throat had been cut and he had been dead about a fortnight. He was H. G. Wetters, who operated the United Extract and Drug Company. Relatives had believed he was spending a holiday at Atlantic City.

Suspicion of the police was aroused following the admission of a 16-year-old clerk, accused of taking money from the shop's strong box, that he had forced his employer's name to checks. The clerk, Kennard Thompson, was arrested Monday. Unable to locate Wetters to make a complaint against the clerk, the police began the investigation that led to finding of the body.

For Normal Girlhood

"My daughter Magdalen did not seem to develop as she should. At times she had no pep at all and couldn't get her school work very easily. For four years we doctored her off and on. Then a friend told us how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her years ago, so I got a bottle for Magdalen. Her nerves are quieting, her general health is better and she is now as normal as other girls."—Mrs. I. Bartholdi, Thompson's Addition, The Dalles, Oregon.

"Man must kill the fly or the fly will kill man"

Says the Indiana State Board of Health

Why? Isn't the common house fly harmless? Just about as harmless as a loaded revolver. "Flies carry typhoid fever, tuberculosis, diarrheal diseases, diphtheria and scarlet fever" this health board says. When someone comes down sick in your home, the cause may be the fly you saw last week buzzing in your kitchen, or crawling on your dining room table. What can you do about it?

Be comfortable and safe. Keep your home insect-free. Spray Flit, which is guaranteed (or money back) to be quick-death to flies, mosquitoes, moths, roaches, bed bugs and other household insects. Yet its clean-smelling vapor is harmless to humans.

Flit kills quicker if you use the special inexpensive Flit Sprayer. Insist on Flit and don't accept a substitute. Get yours today!

FLIERS TO SEEK DALLAS PRIZE

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 3.—(AP)—With uncertainty cleared away as to terms of the $25,000 offer to Capt. Dieudonne Coste for a successful Paris-New York-Dallas flight, plans were being formulated here today for a warm reception to the French trans-Atlantic flier and his companion, Maurice Bellonte, when they complete the final stage of their trail-blazing air journey from Europe to Texas.

Before news was received from Paris that the contract between the airmen and Col. William A. Easterwood, Dallas capitalist who made the $25,000 offer, called for a takeoff within 72 hours after reaching New York, had been understood here payment of the purse was conditioned on a stop of not more than 24 hours in New York.

By direct air line the distance from New York to Dallas is approximately 1,311 miles. If the fliers follow the airmail route via Bellefonte, Pa., Toledo, Cleveland, Chicago, Kansas City, Tulsa and Fort Worth, the distance will be increased to 1,721 miles.

An escort of ships, many of them recruited from the Army flying fields at San Antonio, will meet the famous fliers over Oklahoma and lead the way to Love Field here.

France to Promote Coste and Bellonte

PARIS, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, among other rewards, will be promoted by the French government in the air force reserves list for their Paris-New York flight.

Like all Frenchmen who have done their military service, they continue on the reserve list. Coste, who now ranks as captain, will soon be promoted to major. Bellonte, a non-commissioned officer, will be made second lieutenant.

Glas Blast Wrecks Punxsutawney Store

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., Sept. 3.—The confectionery store and restaurant owned by Peter Johnson was wrecked by a gas explosion early today. The rear of the building was demolished and the front windows blown across the street. The damage is estimated at $20,000. Investigation developed that a gas burner in the kitchen range had been left open. No one was injured.

Coste Expects Hop To Net 2 Millions

PARIS, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The Matin today said that from remarks of Dieudonne Coste recently to friends it was deduced he had assured himself the sum of $2,000,000 with success of his flight through various contracts he has signed.

U. S. Acclaims French Fliers

but it was just a private conversation and at this end of the line at least nobody hurried in.

LUNCHEON GUESTS

Late today Coste and Bellonte will go to Curtiss Field and inspect their plane to see that it is being prepared for tomorrow's 10-hour flight to Dallas. They will remain in Dallas only long enough to rest and overhaul their motor before starting back to New York. They will visit Washington either on their way home from Dallas or on a separate trip to be made after they return.

The fliers did not announce the route they would take to Dallas but a remark of Coste indicated they would fly a direct air line instead of following the air mail route through Cleveland, Chicago and Kansas City. He asked:

"How far is it to Dallas?"

Informed it was about 1,400 miles air line he said:

"Good, we will make it in about 10 hours."

Coste and Bellonte spoke before a sound news camera today before proceeding to the Advertising Club where they were guests of the city at luncheon.

SPEAK OVER RADIO

Coste, who did most of the talking for the pair, said they were proud to have backtracked the Lindbergh trail and then addressing himself directly to the French people he said:

"We had difficulties, but we overcame them. In short, we are here. That is good."

Bellonte then spoke a few words and the two fliers embraced, each bestowing the customary kiss on the cheek of the other.

N. Y. Roars Welcome As Fliers Land

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(INS)—Capt. Dieudonne Coste, often called the "Lindbergh of France" and the "D'Artagnan of the Air," and his co-pilot, Maurice Bellonte, today modestly accepted the homage of the world in recognition of their historical achievement in making the first direct non-stop flight from Paris to New York. They made the epochal journey in 37 hours and 19 minutes, triumphing magnificently over the elements which sent Nungesser and Coli, their fellow countrymen, and eight others who hazarded the westward argosy across the Atlantic to their death.

HAVE GAS LEFT

Coste and Bellonte covered 6,500 kilometers, or about 4,100 miles, and when they landed at 7:13 p. m. they had 100 gallons of gasoline left, sufficient for nearly three hours more of flight. Mayor James J. Walker for this afternoon. The details of program were held in abeyance, however, until the wishes of Coste and Bellonte were consulted.

FRENCH NOTABLES PRESENT

Curtiss Airport's night lights had just been turned on. Most of the 10,000 spectators were herded back of a large fenced-off enclosure. But somehow many men, women and children managed to slip through the police lines and took positions atop of the half adozen stucco hangars commanding an excellent view of the field. Rain had fallen a few hours before and the big well groomed field was wet and soggy.

Col. Lindbergh accompanied by Mrs. Lindbergh had taken a position on one of the upper balconies of a hangar. For more than three hours he and his wife herself an enthusiastic flyer, waited patiently for Coste and Bellonte as reports came at intervals telling of the progress the Frenchmen were making. Elsewhere was a great delegation of welcoming French officials, carrying the French Tricolors and another official American delegation carrying the Stars and Stripes.

Georges Carpentier, French flying ace and noted boxer who once fought Jack Dempsey, was there. He is a close personal friend and former war comrade of Coste. Jean Borotra, French tennis star, was also there, as were a large number of French diplomats, authors and businessmen. On the whole, it was a representative gathering and a wildly enthusiastic one, as the police were soon to learn.

LINDY REACHES FLIERS

A great cheer, growing in volume, swept across the field as the ... hove into sight and came to earth after circling the airport several times. The moment Coste and Bellonte raised their head out of the cockpit and stepped over the fuselage, they were picked up on the shoulders of their compatriots and carried to one of the hangars, while a small army of bluecoats tried, ineffectively, to beat back the crowd that had stampeded through the police lines.

Lindbergh had to wait for almost an hour to shake the hand of Coste and Bellonte and congratulate them. A broad smile swept Coste's face and his eyes lit up as Lindbergh came over and shook his hand.

"I congratulate you—I do indeed," said Lindbergh, sincerely. "It was a great flight."

Coste was almost overcome. He replied quickly in French. Then Lindbergh shook hands with Bellonte and congratulated him too.

HOME AGAIN!

VACATION days are over. Dad is back on the job trying to catch up with his work. Mother is getting the house straightened around and getting the kiddies ready for school. After several weeks in the country, it seems hard for either of them to get quickly settled down to home and city life. What they forgot to do yesterday should be done today. Yet they still forget.

Before they went away, the evening newspaper was an essential and important part of their home life. Dad says, "I'll order the carrier to start delivery again right away," but he forgets it. Night comes and there is no newspaper at the door. Mother says, "I'll call the Sun-Telegraph tomorrow."

But she has to get knickers for the boys, dresses and stockings for the girls, and it slips her mind. And they both miss their newspaper again.

That's why the Sun-Telegraph prints this convenient order blank.

FILL in this blank at once, mail it today and the Sun-Telegraph will come regularly to you by carrier—rain or shine, hot or cold—no matter what the weather. The Sun-Telegraph carrier boy never misses. He's always on the job.

LINDY PRAISES COSTE'S SKILL

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Speed is believed by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to have been the determining factor between success and failure in the Paris to New York flight of Coste and Bellonte. He said:

"Of course, with this speed Capt. Coste had other characteristics which assured him of his success. But in his careful preparations, in which he went into every detail, he realized that easily recognizable fact that a plane with speed and power alone would see him through.

"Capt. Coste is one of the most experienced long distance fliers in the world. On his record distance flight last year he had ample opportunity to realize that his plane had stamina, speed and staying power over great distance."

The Coste-Bellonte plane has a high speed close to 160 miles an hour, faster than any other machine to attempt the Atlantic crossing. For the first 600 miles of his flight Coste, with the aid of a wind of approximately 15 miles an hour, made an average speed of about 140 miles. During the last stage of the flight he averaged about 100 miles an hour.

When Col. Lindbergh was asked how the westward flight across the Atlantic compared with the eastward crossing, he said:

"The westward flight is considerably more difficult due to the head winds and the fact that the worst weather conditions are encountered toward the end of the flight."

Old Policeman Dies In New Kensington

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Sept. 3.—Hugh Rogers, 72, a member of the police force here for 36 years, died at his home today. He formerly was chief. His associates say he never carried arms. He was born in old Allegheny and came here 38 years ago, erecting the third residence in this community. He leaves his wife and four children.

FRANCE HONORS FLIERS' WIVES

PARIS, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Mme. Dieudonne Coste and Mme. Maurice Bellonte, whose aviator husbands are monopolizing public attention on the other side of the Atlantic Ocean, today received the rare honor of an official visit from a cabinet minister.

Minister of Air Laurent-Eynac put on his silk hat this morning and paid a formal call at the homes of the aviators to present to their wives the French government's official congratulations on the first Paris-New York flight.

Mme. Coste was overjoyed that she was able to hear her husband's voice twice this morning. She had his promise of a telephone call from New York, but it was some time before he could complete this arrangement. She was able however to listen to his short broadcast talk, heard by many millions.

She sent her husband a cablegram upon learning of his success:

"Vive Coste, Vive Bellonte, Vive L'Amerique, Vive La France."

Both wives expect to sail soon to join their husbands in the United States.

Portsmouth Girls Salvage Chart Lost by Coste

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Two girls here today had a prize souvenir of the flight from Paris to New York of the French plane Question Mark. They had a chart which Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte apparently had used in plotting their course across the Atlantic.

As the French fliers sped over Portsmouth on the final lap of their brilliant flight yesterday afternoon the chart fell from the plane. It came to earth in the orchard of John Steff. His daughters, Alice and Irene, alert to the souvenir value of the falling object, dashed into the orchard and recovered it.

HOOVER INVITES FLIERS' VISIT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—President Hoover made plans today to honor Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte at luncheon Monday noon on their visit to Washington after the Dallas flight.

He received a reply from the famous pilot to the congratulations extended by him last night, as well as the response cabled by President Doumergue of France. Coste wired:

"Only a few minutes had passed after Maurice Bellonte and myself had landed upon the American soil when your heartfelt congratulations reached us."

"We beg you, Mr. President, to accept our deepest appreciation of your kindest words which have touched both of us very profoundly. The American and French people have had the great privilege of always entertaining the most friendly relations. Nothing would please us more than the thought that our successful flight might strengthen these reciprocal feelings."

Assurances went forward from the White House that the flight to Dallas ahead of that to Washington would not interfere with the official reception here. Diplomats and aviation officers of the government will be guests at the White House luncheon.

HAWKS SCOFFS AT COSTE FEAT

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—The Kansas City Star says that Capt. Frank Hawks, transcontinental flier, informed that Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte had succeeded in their trans-Atlantic hop, credited the Frenchmen with "a great display of nerve," but added that "it was a foolish thing to do."

Hawks holder of both east and west transcontinental speed records, was quoted by the newspaper as saying:

"I can't see that he contributed a thing to aviation. It was foolhardy to attempt the flight in a land ship even though it was magnificently courageous.

"Flight across the ocean in land ships proves nothing except nerve and luck. When one is made in a seaplane, then something will have been accomplished."

Hawks was here en route to Wichita, Kas.

Married Women Lose Philadelphia Jobs

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Director Lemuel B. Schofield of the Department of Public Safety within the past month has discharged a half dozen married women who were employed in his office and who were not dependent on their salaries for the support of themselves or their families.

Director Schofield recently announced his intention of making room in his office for persons who needed positions and were qualified to fill them.

Aerial Bomb Hurled Into Fire Injures 2

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 3.—Tossing an aerial bomb which they had found into a bonfire in a lot near their home, two Youngwood boys were knocked to the ground and severely bruised by an explosion. The boys, William Eberly, 6, and Frederick Lewis, 8, are confined to their homes.

With several companions, they were playing in the lot near the fire. The aerial bomb was found and the boys placed it in a tin can and tossed it into the fire. The explosion knocked them over and broke windows in adjoining houses.

Children CRY for it

It may be the little stomach; it may be the bowels are sluggish. No matter what ails a child's tongue, it's a safe and sensible precaution to give a few drops of Castoria. This gentle regulation of the little system soon sets things to rights. A pure vegetable preparation that can't harm a wee infant, but brings quick comfort—even when it is colic, diarrhea, or similar disturbance.

And don't forsake Castoria as the child grows older. If you want to raise boys and girls with strong systems that will ward off constipation, stick to good old Castoria, and give nothing stronger when there's any irregularity except on the advice of a doctor. Castoria is sold in every drugstore, and the genuine always bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

Distinguished Committee of 17 Launches New Soap Discovery

Mrs. James J. Davis, Mrs. Cecil B. de Mille, Ethel Barrymore, Anne Morgan, in group to judge new soap for fine fabrics

Distinguished member of the Committee of 17—Ethel Barrymore, America's most noted actress.

A TINY bead of soap, no larger than a pinhead, yet it holds the secret of 20% longer wear for silk stockings! Science proved this recently to the entire satisfaction of the Committee of 17, a group of distinguished women who met at the Ritz Hotel to give "the woman's viewpoint" on this revolutionary new soap that promises to upset utterly all previous conceptions of how silks and fine fabrics should be washed.

Watch soap test at Ritz

Social leaders, home economics consultants, the wife of a distinguished cabinet member, eminent university authorities... women representative of every type of American femininity ... members of the Committee of 17 watched authorities test soaps ordinarily used by women for washing silks. They heard chemists tell how modern washbowl laundering of silks demanded an entirely different kind of soap from any of those formerly employed, one that would dissolve instantly ... work in water as cool as 85 degrees F. and rinse away completely. Could soap really be improved? Could the ideal soap for silks be made?

Science says "yes," and before the skeptical eyes of 17 women tested a revolutionary new soap that performed miracles never witnessed before. It dissolved like a flash, cleansed in water 20 degrees cooler than required by any existing soap, and rinsed away like magic.

Distinguished Committee approves new soap discovery

So perfectly did the new soap meet every requirement that the Committee of 17 went on record as "unanimously approving the new soap as perfect for the washing of silks, woolens and all fine fabrics."

"The name of the new soap, 'Palmolive Beads,' reveals the secret of why it gives such vastly better results," said the chemists who made this important discovery.

Palmolive Beads are the first soap for fine silks ever made in the form of tiny, hollow, instant dissolving "beads." The only fine fabric soap ever made of olive and palm oils ... oils hitherto reserved exclusively for complexion soaps.

Palmolive Beads are for sale everywhere at 10c the box—no more than you pay for ordinary flakes and chips. Get a box today.

ARCTIC PARTY RETURNING

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 3—(AP.)—A local wireless station has picked up a message from Capt. Robert Bartlett saying his schooner Morrisey, bearing an Arctic exploration party, had left Amgassilik on the morning of August 31. The message said the schooner's next stop would be Brigus, Newfoundland, which they hoped to reach in 12 to 15 days.

Capt. Bartlett, a companion in the Arctic explorations of Admiral Perry, sailed from New York June 6 to take tidal and magnetic observations for the United States Coast Geodetic Survey and to seek marine specimens for the Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

Amgassilik is a small fishing port on the southeast coast of Greenland, north of Cape Farewell.

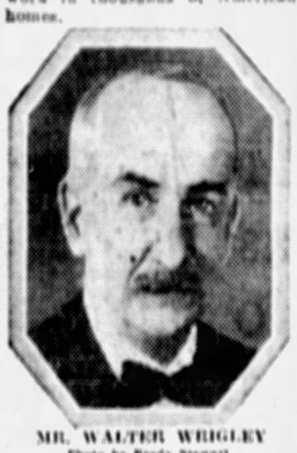
KONJOLA GAVE PROMPT RELIEF IN THIS CASE

Pittsburgh Man Calls New Medicine Wonderful—Declares Other Medicines Failed.

Konjola's power to bring relief after other medicines and treatments have failed has made this famous compound a household word in thousands of American homes.



MR. WALTER WRIGLEY

Konjola attacks the very root of ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. The experience of Mr. Walter Wrigley, 948 Beech Avenue, Pittsburgh, supports the claim of Konjola. The Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, knows of many such cases in and about this city. See him today. Here is the experience of Mr. Wrigley:

"For two months I suffered with a severe cold in my head and chest. I coughed until I was utterly worn out. I had been in a run-down condition previous to this time. I had a severe backache and was without strength or energy. Constipation bothered me constantly and I became nervous and generally worn out.

"I noticed a real improvement in my health from the time I began taking Konjola. My ailments gradually left me and I became free from backache and that tired, worn-out feeling. I am no longer constipated and feel like a different person. Konjola is surely a wonderful medicine and works more quickly than anything I have ever known."

The experience of Mr. Wrigley is in common with that of thousands of men and women of all ages and from all walks of life, given a real test, in most cases, over a six to eight weeks period. Konjola has made a record that would challenge belief were the actual facts not known and verified.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily. Konjola is sold also at all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

Backward, turn backward, oh time in the flight
Make me a child again just for tonight
Elizabeth Akers Allen.

You have often wished, no doubt, that you could make mud pies again or string garden gates from telephone poles on Hallowe'en. Those happy childhood days and childhood ways may be recaptured for a nonce tonight when the Sylvania Foresters give their annual Children's Party.

If you're past 14, you're invited on condition that you remain very quiet and neither rattle newspapers nor talk about irrelevant matters.

* * *

Fathers are permitted to go to the store for ice cream during the KDKA station announcements at 8:30, 8:45 and 9, but must not slam the door on their way out or on their return.

We think you'll like being "a child again just for a night."

Big Bill Tilden, peer of tennis players, is to explain his racquet on WCAE at 10:30.

DEAR MR. MARTIN:

Last evening when radio reception all over the city was remarkably clear, the disturbance which erupted from my all-electric set sounded like the patter of spring rain on a red hot stove.

The first selection was like unto the battle of the Marne, with effects contributed by the Southern Interference Company.

The second number was a weird representations of feeding time in the zoo.

The third number, I think, was Fun in the Foundry, with a stunning climax, representing the blowing up of the whole works, the falling of the debris on tin roofs, the siren shrieks of the fire department and the agonized wails of dying foundrymen—all effects by the Sputtering Inferno Company, a conspiracy organized and operating on a frequency of 500,000 discontented kilowatts.

I think your naughty little kilowatts are running around at night, wasting the kilowatt hours in ungodly revelry. I am a patient man, but if I ever find one of your kilowatts pedaling around my screen-grid on his kilocycle, I'm going to grab him and shake the brat until the sparks fly.

Seriously, a street light near my house has been defunct for a couple of evenings. This, coupled with the fact that our radio trouble occurs only at nightfall, leads me to think that the interference emanates either from the defunct light or the transformer. I may be wrong, but have Radio Rex check on it.

Statically yours,
PHIL CARSPECKEN.

Dear Mr. Carspecken:

We have referred your complaint to the Thrasher-Myers Detective Agency. Walter G. Myers, chief; Allen Thrasher, bloodhound.

Yours in service,
RADIO REX.

QUESTION A DAY:

Hans Lobert, City—How close did McNamee and Cross finish in last year's Radio Poll conducted by your paper?

A.—Cross, 4,297; McNamee, 4,173.

George Seibel, Drama and Literary Editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, is back from Europe with a bunch of fan mail which he received from radio listeners after he talked from the Stuttgart station over an all-Germany hookup. Germany is well advanced in radio, Mr. Seibel says.

O'Cedar Time, KDKA at 9:15, offers two dramatic songs, "In the Silence of the Night," by Sergei Rachmaninoff, and "The Lost Chord," by Sir Arthur Sullivan.

* * *

Howard Barlow, conductor of Philco Symphony, says he is not superstitious. Nevertheless, a four-leaf clover reposes in his score of Schubert's "Serenade."

A Rose by any other name is STILL a ROSE!

TAKING a regular gasoline—and giving it special motor fuel qualities on paper—doesn't change its character or its ability.

It's still regular gasoline—and that's all there is to it. Naturally, some regular gasolines are better than others. It's our sincere and earnest opinion that Orange American Gas is the best buy in the field. Thousands of motorists back us up in that opinion!

But, remember, Orange American Gas with all its splendid qualities is regular gasoline and proud of it! It's the top-notcher in its class—but it doesn't claim the special qualities of Amoco-Gas, a special motor fuel sold at a premium! Whenever you see a gas selling at regular gas price making extravagant claims—judge it by performance on the road not by claims on paper!

If you want the best regular gasoline—selling as just that and not trying to sail under false colors—call for Orange American Gas!

If you want a special motor fuel to deliver the best possible performance and the greatest possible economy—call for Amoco-Gas!

You'll be right either way!

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—State and city boosters continue to broadcast their industrial opportunities. Were they to devote as much attention to turning out a first-class song they would have more success in spreading their propaganda.

Louis Reid.

A tune that can be whistled and warbled can carry its message to the crossroads of the country with greater force and rapidity than all the inspired statements ever rolled out of a mimeograph.

The citizenry has been Carolina-conscious for years because of the epidemic of Carolina songs. Within the past year two new ones—"Carolina Moon" and "Cryin' for the Carolines"—swept across the nation with the rush of a tidal wave. Of course, Carolina has an advantage over other commonwealths. Its name is the most singable in the Union. However, even singableness of a name is not the vital factor it would seem in conveying the virtues of a state. Kentucky, hard to pronounce and even harder to sing, is blessed with one of the most enduring melodies.

Songwriters have also done well by New Hampshire and Virginia and Michigan and California. And didn't a song called "O-hi-O," and sung by Frances White, carry the appeal of the state to the far corners of the Republic?

Cities Are Known By Their Songs

More attention was drawn to Buffalo by "Put Me Off at Buffalo" than by all the herculean labors of the city's Chamber of Commerce. The cowboy song, "San Antonio," did more to glorify the Texas city than anything since the Battle of the Alamo. The tinkly tribute to San Francisco, "Hello, Frisco," which Ina Claire sang in a now forgotten "Follies," is still found in the repertories of the dance bands.

The "Sidewalks of New York" is known from one end of America to another. The number "California, Here I come," may not have put William G. McAdoo over, but it put California over with every tireless delegate at the Democratic national shindig in Madison Square Garden.

Some years ago the New Haven Railroad went out to create good will by means of a song called "On the New York, New Haven and Hartford." A tuneful ditty, it became one of the most popular songs of its day. It accomplished its purpose swiftly and decisively. People thinking of the New Haven always thought of the song. Yet, chambers of commerce with their "Boost Centerville" programs persistently fail to draw a lesson from the New Haven's success. They still confine the major part of their ballyhoo to the printed text and neglect to appeal to the eardrums.

The armchairs continue to wait hopefully for Calvin Coolidge to speak to them on investments. They might as well wait for J. P. Morgan or John D. himself.

Neither Morgan nor Rockefeller, as a matter of fact, has yet been heard on the loudspeakers. It took the sound newsreel men two years to win an approving nod from the latter for a voice recording. The broadcasters should not be less successful.

Testimonial Dinners Height of Air Boredom

I am unable to understand the zeal of the broadcasters in setting up their apparatus at testimonial banquets. The only good speech we ever heard in a broadcast of such an affair was made by John McGraw. It lasted less than one minute. McGraw talked softly, modestly and to the point. Most speakers at testimonial banquets have nothing to say and consume 20 or 30 blatant minutes saying it.

Were I asked to select the maestros who have done most to make St. Vitus the patron saint of America, I would name Whiteman, Lopez, Vallee, Olsen, Ted Lewis, Lombardo and Duke Wellington.

The jazz boys have finally reached Cadman's "Land of the Sky Blue Water." More than three years have passed since they reached the "Waters of Minnetonka."

Among the best of the ambitious jazz compositions is Rube Bloom's "Song of the Bayou." It has distinction of rhythm and melody and it is atmospheric enough to be ranked not far below the "Mississippi Suite" of Grofe.

Medi.. s .. college songs, fraternity songs, stein songs continue to pour out of the loudspeakers. But what of the songs that are sung in police stations and fire houses and lodge rooms and political clubs and locker rooms? Where is their historian? Where is their Damrosch?

* * *

Poetry, when read well on the microphones, invariably holds the ear. But it is rarely done well. When the emperors of the ether get around to concentrating on Shakespeare or any other dramatic verse it might be well for them to give a thought to William Faversham.

Lon Chaney's Makeup Box Will Be Exhibited In Museum

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright 1930, Pruner Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 3.

Unless Lon Chaney willed it otherwise, the makeup box which the actor used for many pictures will be loaned to the Smithsonian Institute for a period of 25 years.

This is planned by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer officials as a memorial to the Man of a Thousand Faces.

Chaney bought the makeup box long ago in a hardware store. It was designed for a carpenter's chest, but the artor had it covered with leather and caused drawers to be installed in it.

Lon Chaney

If by any chance the Smithsonian Institute turns down the offer, it is planned to send the box to a museum in San Francisco. Chaney was a member of a stock company in the northern city for a number of years.

ALL MISSING

A story goes the rounds that the head of a studio committee of safety decided upon a sudden fire-drill.

Going into the grounds he blew shrilly upon a whistle which was supposed to summon the entire volunteer department.

To the official amazement no one came. Hot under the collar, he blew another blast and followed it with a third.

When no one answered this time he stormed into the administration building to report the outrage.

There he was told that all the members of the department had been let out the day before.

TO THEM THAT HATH

Slim Summerville, the comedian, has had one day off since April 21 when he finished his part in "All Quiet on the Western Front." Before the start of this picture he spent two years trying to get a few small jobs. That's Hollywood for you.

SERIAL VICTIMS

Since things are quiet at the moment three well-known Hollywood players are tossing off a serial at Universal. They are Kenneth Harlan, Edna Murphy and Gertrude Astor, and the name of the chapter-play is "Finger-prints."

Francis Bushman, Jr.

This is the U's third serial of the year, Francis X. Bushman, Jr. and Alberta Vaughn were featured in "The Spell of the Circus" and Tim McCoy in "The Indians Are Coming."

The public still calls for these thrillers, and several companies are making them.

DO YOU KNOW that Marion Nixon once worked as a clerk in the complaint department of a Superior (Wis.) department store?

ROMBERG RETURNS

Sigmund Romberg, who has been a leading defender of the screen operetta, will return to New York the middle of the month to attend the opening of his new musical on Broadway.

This is not hail and farewell for the composer, however, as he has several more pictures to make for Warner Brothers.

It will require quick work to finish his current production, "Children of Dreams," in time for the trip.

Appearing in the new Romberg offering on Broadway will be Armida, one of Gus Edwards' innumerable proteges, who has played a number of leads in the audi-films. "Nine Rosa" is the title of the operetta.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

COPYRIGHT 1930 DAILY MIRROR, INC.

From Sunset Gun

My heart went fluttering with fear
Lest you should go, and leave me here
To beat my breast and rock my head
And stretch me sleepless on my bed.
That I should be the first to go;
How pleasant that it happened so!
For such is Love's unvarying law
I never thought, I never saw
Ah, clear they see and true they say
That one shall weep, and one shall stray.

Things That Knock Me Cold

"My dear Mr. W.: We carried in the Sunday edition of the Sandusky (O.) Register a story which may be among the things you never knew before. I am sending it along to you. When I turned in the story I was quite pleased that this Dr. C. A. Winchell, of Sandusky, had told me you were his cousin. Seems you moved from Michigan when you were little. I believe your father's name is Ralph. The managing editor is skeptical about the real blood ties.—Helen Arrowsmith."

Things I Never Knew Before is correct, madam. And my father's name is Jake.

Some Pun, No Kid

Jack Shuttleworth observes that the last of the Hatfield-McCoy feudists who died in West Virginia last week was 86 years old. Which goes to show what fresh air and pure feuds will do.

Of All Things!

Printers' Ink is herewith thanked for a hearty chuckle. It tells about a watch company that went in for radio advertising—and they wanted a theme song expressive of timepieces. Finally they decided on a ditty entitled:

"Every Little Movement Has a Meaning All Its Own."

But the song was vetoed by the broadcasting company because it was "too suggestive!" And they fry fish!

Oop!

The Hollywood Gossip dept. of The Pathfinder has this to report:

"James Rennie, husband of Lillian Gish."

Things I Never Knew 'Till Now.

Add Sillies

Then there's the one Phil Baker passes along. About the Scot who had to leave his dying wife to get her a drink of water. As he left the room he cautioned:

"If you feel yourself slipping, dear, blow out the candle."

The Retort Terrible

Hoy Lawlor from Hollywood reports that when John Gilbert once remarked that the Greatest Garbo had no brains, Greta snapped:

"He has every right to his opinion since the day I mistook him for an actor."

On the Other Hand

Emile H. Garvreau editorials about Mr. Mencken's recent marriage in this manner:

"Mencken, who scored the institution of marriage as a refuge for morons, finally is married himself. All of which proves that a critic who carps at institutions is generally one who finds himself shut out from it. The writer who fails turns editor. The incompetent actor becomes a playwright. The man who can't write plays reviews them."

Charles Dillingham, once a fine dramatic critic, is reincarnated as a distinguished play producer. George Bernard Shaw and St. John Ervine, renowned critics, write successful shows between play reviews and George M. Cohan, who is hardly an incompetent actor, writes great plays.

Gag

And there's Joel J. Levenson's report from Worcester, Mass., to prove that business is just as anaemic in the provinces. Two cloak and suit lads met on Worcester's main stem.

"So ull right, Jake," said the first dialectician. "I'll pay you in a few weeks, is dot ull right?"

"Is it ull right, he asks?" replied the other shoulder-shaker, "uff cuss! Any bill paid wit'in four mont's is like a cash sale now!"

In the Name of Art—Landry

"Dear Walter," affectionately writes A. M. Botsford, of the Publix Theaters and Paramount Pictures Company, "regarding that Art Landry curtain speech: 'We all thank you for your applause, which we assure you goes to our heads.' To my certain knowledge, George Dewey Washington has been making this speech in Publix Theaters from coast to coast in these same words four times a day, seven days a week for the last three years.

"So that, Art Landry either took it from George Dewey Washington recently, or George Dewey Washington took it from Art Landry over three years ago. In any event, it's just another illusion shattered concerning Broadway sincerity."

Why the cerity?

The Hellinger You Say!

Give some people an inch these days and they build a miniature golf course!—Walter Winchell in The Daily Mirror, August 20.

"Give a man an inch," murmurs Texas Guinan, "and he'll start a miniature golf course—" Mark Hellinger in The Daily Mirror, September 1.

Why, Miss Guinan.

On the Make

The Sharon, Pa., Herald's representative interviewed Rudy Vallee (the chap who has replaced Mary Pickford as "America's Sweetheart"). Part of the interview follows:

"We showed him a clipping of Walter Winchell's 'On Broadway' in which was stated that during an interview with an Ohio paper, Rudy said that he especially disliked Winchell. The statement was laughingly discredited by Rudy, who said they are the best of friends."

Poor!

She's a Spy!

Constance Bennett has the role of a spy, who matches beauty against brains, in "Three Faces East," film coming Thursday to the Stanley.

LEAGUE REVOLT THREATENS

GENEVA, Sept. 3.—(Universal)—Open rebellion is threatened today against the Franco-British stranglehold on the League of Nations and the League's Permanent Court of International Justice, the so-called "World Court."

Two attacks are being made, one by the Latin-American bloc and the other by an Italo-German combination. The Latins seek a more equitable distribution of League Court judges; the Germans are demanding a revision of the World War treaties and a loosening of the Franco-British grip on the League secretariat.

In a sharp note to the League Italy pointed out that 40 per cent of the secretarial officials, including the two highest officers, are divided between France and England. The Italian note echoed the German demand for a revision of the unequal treaties in its reply to the Briand memorandum seeking a conference on the United States of Europe.

JACKSON TO FLY TO 48 CAPITALS

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Dale (Red) Jackson, who holds the endurance flying record with Forest O'Brine, announced he has signed a contract for a non-stop solo flight to the 48 state capitals of the United States.

"This will be a flight such as has never before been attempted. My ship, accompanied by two refueling planes and a radio ship, will fly to the capital of every state in the union without making a landing. I expect the flight to take about 25 days and cover about 15,000 to 17,000 miles."

Because of other engagements, Jackson said, the flight will not begin until next spring.

MASTER MYSTERIES -:- By ARTHUR HOERL

Scrimley's Ghost

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Robin Dale sets out to investigate the reappearance of Scrimley's ghost in a sparsely-inhabited section of Long Island. Scrimley was reputed to have been a boatswain on Capt. Kidd's private ship. Upon an earlier appearance of the ghost a tragic death had resulted. Dale moves into the Rolfe cottage. Stephanie Rolfe is being wooed by Avery Boyleston, whose father was connected with the first tragedy of the ghost. The specter is supposed to haunt the Boyleston farm. Stephanie gets a ghostly warning not to marry Avery. Avery rushes out. A moment later his agonized shriek is heard.

Now Go On With the Story.

CHAPTER III.

If Robin Dale had not been present to take an actice part in the events which immediately preceded and followed directly upon this first harrowing crime, it is questionable whether it would ever have been solved. Without the benefit of the facts which formed the foundation for his final solution (which otherwise he would never have been able to obtain) even his unerring analytical mind would scarcely have been able to match the diabolic cunning of one of the most fantastic murderers of modern times.

Following the shrieks of agony, Dale had run outside.

He stumbled over unfamiliar ground, missed the wooden planks across the brook and splashed through it. He was guided only by the lights of the Boyleston homestead. He saw other forms issue from the house and from the bungalow. He did not stop to realize that he was a stranger among these people and for that reason in grave danger if confronted by any one of them.

The feeble rays of hand torches flashed about the grounds. Calls passed and repassed from one person to another. No one seemed to know who had given forth the piercing shrieks. The night was as black as the Pit of Acheran. Stumbling closer to the forms which ran to and fro, Robin Dale finally called out.

"If Avery Boyleston isn't among you, then he is the one who called for help."

Immediately there where calls for Avery to respond for himself. Finally a deep, reverberating voice called out.

"Who are you?"

"Dale's the name! Stopping at Rolfe's cottage, Boyleston was there—he ran out, and the cries followed!"

"We can't work in the hellish blackness!" The reverberating voice again. "Get the cars out, head 'em this way, an' turn on the lights!"

There was a rush of footsteps, fleeting forms in the darkness and then, utter silence.

Suddenly across the black haze of night came the most awful, infernal thing that Robin Dale had ever seen! A weird, unearthly, shapeless thing exuding a ghastly, green luminosity! It stood like an avenging specter, on the deck of the hulk that lay on the beach.

A voice beside Dale shrieked out in agonized prayer:

"Lord A'mighty! The ghost!"

There were cries from feminine throats and then silence again. Dale's eyes were held by the wraith. He wanted to shout out in laughter, but his throat had suddenly gone dry. He felt his legs trembling, the sweat stood out in beads upon his brow and it seemed as though the blood in his spine had suddenly turned to ice.

Then the ghostly thing swayed from side to side, its luminous green became a brighter hue, and upon the utter stillness of the night a mighty groan went up issuing from the apparition. It was like a siren, only in a lower, moaning pitch, almost inaudible at first and gaining in volume until the whole countryside echoed with the demoniacal sound. Thrice it was repeated and, as suddenly as it had appeared, the spectral thing vanished. In its place remained only a faint grayish outline which the green luminosity had fixed upon the retina of the eye.

Dale was the first to speak.

"We'd better hurry to that wreck! Something devilish has taken place!"

Flashlights showed the way, but the progress was slow. Possibly five minutes had elapsed before they started to clamber over the sides of the hulk. The tide, now at its flood, made it more difficult. The breakers crashed over what was left of the stern of the wreck which was now nearly inundated. They were all drenched to the skin before they set foot on the slanting deck of the hulk.

Dale had mounted first by the feeble rays of a flash. One by one they came aboard until four others stood beside him. This, too, had taken considerable time.

"Someone who knows this thing better than I do should lead the way," said Dale. "We'll look around here first and then down below."

No one, apparently, questioned Dale's authority. Past experience, somehow, made him fall readily into the spot. Those about him, none of whom Dale knew or had ever seen, readily accepted a leadership.

The deck did not extend a great distance. It was nearly rotted away, great gaping holes giving to darkness below. The flood tide made it possible to scour only the forepart of the hulk. The stern was a mere shell, as a result of the merciless, unending beatings of the sea. Nothing was found on the deck.

More than half of the hull was filled with water. Only the bow of the boat, jutting up and resting upon a dune, was free of the sea. One by one they let themselves down through a huge, gaping hole in the deck. It was a drop of over six feet to the forward floor of the wreck. The great, broad beam of the keel was even lower. Quite a good-sized compartment was untouched by the water, even at floodtide. It gave them ample room to move about.

The compartment was littered with timbers that had been rent from other portions of the vessel and thrown up by the water.

"So this is the home of a ghost, eh? First one I've ever seen." Dale laughed lightly after he spoke, but he noted that no one joined him.

"Maybe we are in time to prevent it." Dale said at last when their search went unrewarded. If questioned he would have been rather vague as to what "it" meant; only a premonition, perhaps, or an inexplainable belief that the hideous thing called crime was stalking abroad.

They had about prepared to remount to the deck when Dale saw it. Something floating beneath the surface beyond the edge of the water line; a huge, dark bulk that was imprisoned at the keel by the sloping walls. He sprang toward the water just as a huge wave broke over the stern and splashed its way toward them. The water receded and Dale jumped in water above his knees. He bent over and felt of the submerged mass. He gave a sharp cry and the others hurried to help him.

In the dim, uncertain light they dragged forth the body of a man! They laid it on its back; a white, clammy face with wide, distended eyes that mocked at them unseeingly. It was a ghastly sight. Robin Dale shuddered in horror. A heart-rending moan came from one of the men in the group. He dropped down beside the body of Avery Boyleston. The one who knelt was a huge figure, well over six feet, with broad, massive shoulders and a stern, hard face. Dale knew it was the elder Boyleston brother, Ernest, of whom Chief Wingate or Old Gabriel had spoken.

Ernest Boyleston knelt there silently, either in divine meditation, or with thoughts of vengeance. But it was Dale who made the swift examination to ascertain if there was still life in the body.

He found only the clammy coldness of death!

1 SLAIN IN RUM RACKET FIGHT

DETROIT, Sept. 3.—(INS.)—A dispute over "liquor rights" between two alleged bootleggers today was climaxed by the fatal shooting of one of them and the capture of the second, who confessed to the slaying.

Dock C. Alford, 33, was shot and fatally wounded as he was eating in a purported blind pig early today. Marty Crowe, 44, who was taking into custody at the scene of the shooting by police who were "tipped off" by an anonymous telephone call from a woman, confessed to the killing.

Both Crowe and Alford are well known to police and patrons of blind pigs in downtown Detroit, according to police. They each served a large clientele of drinkers, police declared, and a quarrel over liquor rights in the downtown district is alleged to have preceded the shooting.

SOCIETY BELLE WEDS RUSSIAN

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Society circles learned today of the marriage of Miss Nadejda de Braganza, daughter of Princess Miguel de Braganza, of New York and Newport, to Vadim Vadim Borozynski, son of a former captain in the Russian army.

The announcement by the bride's mother said the marriage took place at Capri, Italy, August 16.

The bride's father was Prince de Braganza, son of the pretender to the throne of Portugal. He died here in 1923. Her mother was Anita Stewart, daughter of the late William Rhinelander Stewart.

Mme. Borozynski was introduced to society as the first debutante of the Newport season in 1928. She has been in Europe since early this year. Her mother and brother returned to Newport August 20.

Her husband's home is in Paris

PORTER SAVES 4000 DOLLARS SINCE 1923

PROBABLY you've seen him in one of the downtown office buildings, polishing metal, swinging a mop or doing one of the dozens of other things that keep a modern building ship-shape. Seemingly he never hurries, yet because he plans his work he does more than any other man on the force.

He takes the same methodical attitude towards money matters. Late in the fall of 1923, less than seven years ago, he began a Farmers Savings Account. His wage is not large, yet out of every two week's pay envelope he is able to deposit from $10 to $12.00

Today he is worth more than $4,000, capital built entirely out of income.

"Maybe," he said, when we congratulated him on passing the $4,000 mark, "it's because I know I want a little chicken farm that it's easy to save. I just think that here is the one sure way to get it."

COUNTY GETS $350,000 PROGRAM BIDS

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM DFARR

From where we sit we can glance out the window and see Betty, the girl who is sitting on the flagpole of the Fort Pitt Hotel. And, of course, we are distracted. We keep wondering whether Vin Drayne, the advertising man, who can see Betty from his office in the Koppers Building, is also distracted. We sit here trying to make something of Ira Hurwick's postcard report from Hollywood that he has met two local boys, John Cupp and Leo Robin, but our mental processes are always interrupted by Betty, the flagpole sitter. We can't keep our mind off her. Where was she born? Is she good looking? Why does she do stunts like that? Why doesn't she write a column? We keep asking these questions, among others. At this moment she is standing up waiving at everything and everybody. Why? We don't know. The girl must be—well, anyhow, we've decided the only way to escape her is to hire an office in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

It has remained for Sidewalks to discover that it is not enough these days for a hired cook to be able merely to turn out a good steak or an inviting dish of succotash. The reason is, as you might well have guessed, Prohibition. We know of one lady who wanted to hire a cook. One day an applicant of Swedish origin came to the house and the landlady asked, "Can you make home brew?

The Swedish lady shook her head.

The next day she returned and bosted, "I make home brew."

She was hired.

This should explain why home brew is what it is.

A few hours ago we were yearning for a typewriter on which to punch out a scathing attack on the telephone company. But our indignation has melted into desultory daziness and right now we don't care one way or another about the darned old telephone company. We were indignant because the telephone operator made us deposit a second nickel just as the person we were calling answered the 'phone. And there was no alternative; the supervisor said we simply must do it; in fact, she asked for a third nickel but compromised on a second, refusing to return a single one. Well, then and there we decided to write Mr. Bradford, the telephone boss, and demand our nickel back. And then, after much red tape we would get the nickel back and write a paragraph pointing out how much bother had been caused by a mere nickel. . . . Positively you won't believe this, but we were going to use the refunded nickel on another telephone call.

"Poems are made by fools like me, but only God can make a tree," Joyce Kilmer once wrote. And the other day a Sewickley gourmand of intelligence sat himself down to a roast dinner which had been cooked by his sister.

After the gentleman had sampled the dinner he looked up to his sister and orated:

"Roasts are made by fools like you,
"But only ma can make a stew."

Will Rogers Says:

TAHOE TAVERN, Cal., Sept. 3.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Hurray for the Frenchmen. They sure deserved it and the nation did, for they had made so many sacrifices, and during their well deserved plaudits, it seems rather a coincidence that Andree's body is being returned to civilization. When you write your list of air heroes, put that fellow at the top, not because his name begins with an A, but when he shoved off in that thing 33 years ago, he knew that even if he got where he was going there was not going to be any cheering crowds, or reporters, or Grover Whalens. He was the original chance taker in the air, and no man will ever take as big a one.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

Cathie Tells Family About Her Engagement

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Catherine Paige, elder daughter in a fatherless home, secures her first position in the office of Alfred A. Farnsworth, successful engineer. She meets Gordon Moore of the firm of Moore Brothers, engaged in important construction work for Farnsworth. Cathie is instantly attracted to him, and he to her, but what seems a serious love affair to her proves a pleasant episode to him, and she soon realizes he has forgotten her. Cathie's mother falls seriously ill. To pay for hospital expenses and doctor bills she is forced to borrow heavily from Farnsworth. He is many years her senior, and completely overwhelms her when he proposes marriage with him as a way out of her financial difficulties. After a night of tears she accepts and agrees to an early marriage.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER IX.

Mary Paige wanted to talk to Cathie. She had been wanting to talk to her for days. There was so much in her heart. So many things Cathie ought to know . . . or did she know them already? Girls were so different nowadays . . . Even her girls, Ruth wrote a paper on birth control for a course she had at summer session last year. Fifteen-year-old Jean talked knowingly and easily of things that even yet made her own cheeks flush warmly.

It hurt that Cathie had not consulted her, had not once asked for advice. Never a "Do you think I ought to, Ma?" or "Ma, what do you think! Mr. Farnsworth asked me to marry him!" No, not a word. Not a single word. Just the fact, "I'm all through at the office. I'm going to marry Mr. Farnsworth. Oh, don't all jump on me, I'm going to! My mind's made up!"

Remembering it—that night that Cathie burst in on them with her news, made Mary Paige's heart contract anew. She could see Ruth's incredulous, stony face, and hear little Jean's delighted shriek — "Cathie! How WONDERFUL!"

And Cathie, glowing and excited but strangely calm. "No, there's no use talking. My mind's made up!"

Yes, Cathie's mind was made up. There was no mistaking that. There was a serenity, a sure, unhurried precision about all her movements now. The childishness had slipped from her, like a wornout garment. Cathie was grown up. Cathie, the flyaway, the giggly babyish one . . . why it was only yesterday that she was playing lady with the brown couch cover, dragging it behind her for a train . . . Mary Paige's eyes grew misty. Those were the days, with the children all around her. And now with Eddie gone off on that ship, and Cathie talking about marrying that man . . . she didn't know what to say . . .

Cathie, out of her new, grown-up wisdom, tried to help her out. "There's no use saying I'm in love with Mr. Farnsworth," she admitted frankly. "But I do like him—oh, ever so much. I think he is the kindest, nicest man in the world. And when you like a man, and respect him, isn't that a lot? It isn't only love that makes people happy when they're married, is it, ma?"

Mary Paige shook her head. She had loved, and she had not been very happy. She thought of herself and young Ed Paige,

TWO MEN ROB GAS STATION DOWNTOWN

Two Men in Liberty Avenue Held at Bay by Bandits; Police Seeking Suspects

Two robbers were being sought today for the holdup of the service station of the Gulf Refining Company at Liberty avenue and Water street. The two men held up Louis Ferrero, 22, of 519 Jeannette street, Wilkinsburg, and Edward Witt, 26, of 30 Penwood street. The men obtained $10 in change from the cash register and 90 cents from Ferrero. They overlooked $24 in Witt's pocket.

Three Negro holdup men who halted E. Madonne, of 209 Spring street, in the Washington street subway under Bigelow boulevard, had their work in vain. Madonne was without funds. Madonne reported the holdup to police and Capt. John Schnurr and Lieut. William Lavery arrested John Wuling and William O'Neill, both 19, and both giving their address as 1314 Penn avenue. Police say that Madonne identified them as two of the three robbers.

Three Negroes were being sought this morning for the holdup of Edward Gibson in his restaurant at 2108 Wylie avenue. The men entered the establishment and at the point of revolvers, took $30 from his pockets.

In recent years the desks were used by men and women taking examinations for city jobs.

Among former members of the old councils whose desks were included in those removed were: S. J. Wainwright, Magistrate John Sweeney, Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, E. M. Kenna, Senator M. G. Leslie, Director of Public Safety James M. Clark, C. C. Kohne, George H. Stengel, John P. Baldauf, John Taylor and Charles Ross.

Truant Sleuth's Ultimatum Routs Lad From Tree

A truant officer's ultimatum that record or no record, Edward Thomas, 10, of 123 West Thirteenth avenue, Homestead, must be in school by Friday, caused the boy to shinny to the ground after spending 42 days aloft.

The boy was limbering up at his home today, but aside from stiffness felt no ill effects, according to James Thomas, his father. The lad, a student in the Fifth Ward Public School, Homestead, expressed regret he could not continue to sit it out until a record had been established.

Truant Officer E. C. Shaffer delivered the ultimatum to the boy's parents yesterday.

JACQUELINE CORNELL

setting up housekeeping in this very house. With the solid oak bedroom set and the mahogany veneer parlor set purchased on the installment plan. And the babies coming, and she at the washtub, and Ed in his shirt-sleeves puffing at his pipe telling how he'd quit because he wouldn't take any lip from anybody, by God, but in a few days, after he'd rested up he'd see about something good he'd heard about . . . and quitting again . . . and again . . . and the collectors coming and Schneider, the grocer, sending notes by the children . . .

She thought of Ruth, not getting any younger, and no sign of love of her, unless it was love that made her say "Mr. Browning says," oh twenty, forty times a day.

And little Jean talking about college already . . . And young Eddie, so tall, so handsome, so . . . so like his father about jobs and money . . .

She put her hands over her eyes. "I don't know," she said unhappily. I don't know if one could say that love was enough, or not."

But a look that flashed across her mother's face—a glow of remembrance, a fleeting radiance, chilled Cathie. She thought intuitively, "It was worth it to her. Worth all the work and worry and everything . . . having had father, and us."

She couldn't remember her father very well. She had only a blurred recollection of his mustache tickling her when she climbed on his lap and pulled his head down to her. The thing that she invariably thought of when Ma spoke of him was the little plot in Holy Cross with his name, EDWARD JOSEPH PAIGE, carved into the slim granite cross. And all the family, awed and good, sitting in a row on the curbing in their Sunday clothes, while Ma put calla lilies in the vases, and pulled up the dark, knotting weeds that kept cropping up in the fine green grass of the lawn.

Ma had been pretty then. Rosy and plump in her good black dress, and the widow's bonnet with the litt'e white ruching. Funny she couldn't remember her father. They must have been awfully in love, in spite of the sickness and the poverty. Well, she'd face sickness and poverty, too, if there was anyone who loved her, or was ever likely to . . . but since there wasn't . . .

"I don't know," Mary Paige was repeating unhappily. "I don't know what I ought to say. And you so young. Sometimes I think—"

She stumbled for words. When she lifted her head to see how Cathie was taking it, she saw she wasn't listening. So she stopped. Perhaps, after all, it was for the best.

Just before she left the office Mr. Farnsworth had called Cathie in and given her thick, legal papers to sign. "This is a marriage settlement," he told her, "and I want you to turn it over to your mother. I think she would be more content to have it so. She will have her own income, independent of me—of us. These are bonds. The income will be sufficient. And since we will have to be proper wedded folk and have a wedding trip and you are bound for some fashionable hotels and so on, you'll need some fashionable clothes and—"

"No! I'd much rather not, I—"

"My dear Catherine you—"

"Mother wouldn't like it," Cathie interrupted doggedly.

"It is necessary, my dear," he told her patiently. "You must learn to trust me in these things. Do you realise that you are marrying a—well—a rather rich man?"

Cathie nodded. "Yes."

He smiled. "I don't believe you do."

"Oh, yes, I know you must be."

"My poor darling. You are not mercenary, are you?"

When she did not answer he said, after another long pause: "This little roll of bills, and the little settlement I am making, are but a drop in the bucket, Catherine mine. You will find in your new life that you will need much money, and you will have it. I want to make up to you for the things that . . . that perhaps you will miss."

The things that perhaps she would miss.

Cathie was thinking of them now.

Mary Paige, who had had them, was thinking of the things that Cathie wouldn't miss. The things that every woman longs for. The things she had never had.

She got up stiffly. They looked at each other, these two who had been so close, who loved each other so well. And each wondered, half ashamed, what the other was thinking.

"Well, it's time I was thinking about dinner," the mother said.

"I'll help," Cathie offered.

They couldn't talk. There was nothing to say.

Ruth couldn't believe it. "I never heard of such a thing. He must be crazy!"

Cathie laughed joyously. "That isn't very complimentary to me," she said. But she knew what Ruth meant. It was queer, a man like Mr. Farnsworth . . . "I wonder if I'll ever get used to being rich!"

They all looked at her, round-eyed, trying to picture it. . . . Cathie rich . . . their Cathie . . . and that big allowance from Mr. Farnsworth for Ma . . . .

"Well, there's one thing," Ruth said grimly, "I'm going to have some decent clothes. I'll be able to afford it now that I don't have to support the family . . . I wonder if I'll ever get used to that? I'm going to dress better. Not gaudily, because Mr. Browning hates to see the teachers dressed like chorus girls. He hardly ever says anything, but I can tell. When Miss Carson—she's that new sixth grade teacher I told you about, came into the office today with a red sport suit on, and red shoes—red, mind you, I saw him look at her, and after she had gone he touched the eucalyptus boughs I had in the bronze bowl the class of '26 gave, and he said, 'So restfully gray green, aren't they?'—so I was thinking—"

But Jean, who never cared what anyone else was thinking, interrupted with her hopes of a fur coat, "just a short one, mummy, made of rabbit really, though they call it lapin and it looks like ermine, and all the girls—"

"Fur coat. You! A baby, wanting a—well! Of all the nonsense!"

But Cathie laughed. "Oh, ma, why shouldn't she have what she wants? Lord knows it's the first time any of us ever could—"

Jean almost strangled her with hugs and kisses. "Oh, Cathie, you're better 'n Santa Claus!"

It almost seemed so. It was being Santa to the family that was going to be such fun. Wait till she had time to think things out. To make things really comfortable for Ma. A new sofa for the parlor, and new rugs, and why not hardwood floors? And the house painted and—

"CATHIE!"

It was Jean, shrieking in her high treble. "Cathie, can I go with you when you get your things?"

"What things, babe?"

"Ca-thie! Your CLOTHES! Your trousseau!"

And before Cathie could answer that Jean shrieked again, over the noise of Ma's egg-beater, and Ruth mashing potatoes, "And Cathie, please, PLEASE tell us where you're going on your honeymoon."

Cathie looked at them piteously. The dark color dyed her cheek. She didn't know. She had not thought of asking. She hadn't thought of that part of it . . . a honeymoon, and Mr. Farnsworth.

Camera Question Box

Today's question—Are such expeditions as the Byrd flights across the pole and the ill-fated Andree expedition of sufficient value to warrant the loss of life which has resulted from many of them?

Carl Betcher

CARL BETCHER, student, Avalon—Yes, I think they are. Those expeditions are of great value to the world and help much in the general progress of knowledge and learning.

Mrs. Guskey

MRS. N. H. GUSKEY, clerk, Sewickley—I certainly do. When explorers go out on expeditions of that sort there are always results that help in someway, whether they get exactly what they went for or not.

H. Bailey

H. BAILEY, electrician, Bellevue—In the interest of science these trips are well worth the lives that are lost. As science developes it is aided by any slight discovery or happening.

J. W. Albert

J. W. ALBERT, shop owner, Avalon—The world is always benefited in some way by scientific expeditions, and I think for this benefit the lives that are lost make the price a small one.

Miss Vandenbord

MISS ETHEL VANDENBORD, clerk, Ambridge—It seems a small price to pay when we see others who want to follow up with further exploration and are not bothered at all by the fact that their predecessors have lost their lives in the same venture.

C. F. Gebhart

C. F. GEBHART, Avalon—Yes, I think so. All men have to die once anyway and, if they are keenly interested in those expeditions, I don't see why they should not take that chance just as much as any other.

OHIO PRISON FIRE CLUE SOUGHT IN COUNTY JAIL HERE

QUIZ OF INMATE TO BARE PLOT PLANNED

Man Arrested on North Side Credited as Balking Earlier Blast in Columbus

Ohio State Penitentiary officials today were reported investigating a tip that Edgar Russell, 23, a prisoner in the county jail here, has inside information on the Columbus prison fire disaster.

Russell, formerly a prisoner in the Ohio penitentiary, frustrated an attempt to blow up the walls of the prison by warning the warden, according to the report officials are investigating.

Several days before the disaster in which 330 prison inmates died, Russell was released and came here.

Records at the County jail show that Russell was arrested on the North Side with a revolver in his possession, and that he was subsequently held for the grand jury on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

While in the county jail according to information the Ohio authorities have, Russell bragged that he knew who was responsible for the fatal prison riot. But jail officials here said that while he has talked of having been an inmate of the Ohio penitentiary, he has never admitted knowing any of those responsible for the fire.

Existence of at least two bogus city bonds was revealed today when a representative of the H. L. Doherty Company, investment brokers, asked Controller James P. Kerr to pass on the securities.

"It seems to me someone unfamiliar with bonds has been bilked."

The bonds, sent here from the Philadelphia office of the company, are dated 1906. Each bears fraudulent signatures of former Mayor George B. Guthrie and former Controller John B. Larkin.

Kearcher also brought suits on behalf of his wife, Bertha, for $90,000, declaring her left arm was broken. Mrs. Mary M. Dunlevy, 123 South Twelfth street, also a guest in the car, sues for $55,000 for injuries.

The meeting was called by the Beck's Run Civic Association, of which Mrs. William Miller is president.

Speakers were Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Elizabeth Nichol, secretary, Robert Dyer, treasurer, and other members of the association. It was said elimination of service would work hardship on children attending the Holy Cross, Wickersham and South High schools, as well as employes of South Side mills, cause a depreciation of real estate and injure business.

Rosenbaum Points Out Code Clause Requiring 15-Mile Limit Near Buildings

Walter Rosenbaum, chairman of the education section of the Better Traffic Committee, today reminded automobile drivers that the state vehicle code requires that speed of automobiles be reduced to 15 miles per hour when passing schools. He asked motorists to aid in seeing that the law is adhered to in the city.

Rosenbaum also defined the law regarding the passing of street cars. He said:

"One of the most hazardous practices of motorists in Pittsburgh and which has resulted in a great number of traffic fatalities has been that of motorists disobeying the state law in this respect."

FIRE HOSE TEST FIGHT IGNORED

Neither the Bureau of Fire nor the Bureau of Water has manifested any disposition to take action on complaints received from residents of Walter street, Eighteenth Ward, against the testing of fire hose in that locality.

The complaint specified that the hose tests interfered with the water supply and damaged private service lines.

Fire Chief Richard L. Smith declared that in his opinion the testing of hose there is absolutely necessary.

"We must test the hose," he said. "It is betetr to do that than to wait for an accident at a fire that may result in death and injury to our men. If we test the hose elsewhere, we must take the men from the engine house there, leaving the district unprotected. We test hose as near as possible to each engine house. This is the first complaint we have ever received."

Engine Company No. 21 is located on Walter street. Chief Smith said the testing has been done more often on Walter street lately because of numerous brush fires in the section.

James H. Kennon, managing engineer of the Bureau of Water, said the testing would not cause increased pressure in the home water lines.

"A pumper in action, of course, has a tendency to stir up the water in the vicinity and make it brackish," he admitted. "This is the only complaint of this kind we have ever received and we have referred it to the Bureau of Fire."

Carnegie Year Books Promise Season of Unusual Variety

A line in the new year book of the Carnegie Woman's Club reads, "Make a real friend of your year book." Certainly there is much in the year book that would merit its being made a friend. Unusual variety has been introduced into the programs that include addresses, quizzes, historical studies, book discussions and other features of interest.

Mrs. Louis M. Brown, the new president, will serve as leader for the initial meeting on September 26 when "The Club Wheel" is the somewhat unique topic under which the members will discuss "the hub," "the eight spokes" and "the rim" of club activities. On "science day" in October the members will have papers on "The Mechanical Man," "Leprosy and Its Cure," "The Nicaraguan Canal" and "The Hudson River Tunnels." President's day will also come in October and on this occasion the women will reminisce with Mrs. C. C. Fulton, a past president; will hear a musical program and a one-act play, the latter to be read by Karl Williams.

A program will be devoted to book week and Mrs. C. C. Taylor, chairman of work for the blind in the State Federation, will speak on "Sightless Seeing," both in November. December 12 has been set aside for the Christmas program and the following month Mrs. C. C. Reller will visit the club to speak on "The Land of the Midnight Sun."

January 30 is designated as a "what-where-when-and-why-day" and for the program three-minute papers will be given on such subjects as how does a firefly light her light, how does a beach get its sand, what is the thirteen-month calendar, why does a duck's back shed water, what is cork and several other equally common but none the less interesting topics. What Eastern Pennsylvania offers the vacationist, motoring through Pennsylvania, "Within 50 Miles of Home," the folk lore, natural resources and history of the Keystone State and five-minute papers concerning Pittsburgh will all come up at subsequent sessions. A Japanese tea is to be an event of March; in May there's to be a nature program and a music day and the annual luncheon in April will be addressed by Dr. W. T. Root, of the University of Pennsylvania.

A DIVERSIFIED PROGRAM OUTLINED FOR NEW MODE

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Sept. 3.—It isn't very easy to outline the lines of the autumn silhouette despite the uniformity of the mode. For while there is no really definite change in the silhouette, there is a distinct feeling of change, which is somewhat difficult to analyze or describe. The princess line still predominates, and yet it is quite apparent that the upper part of the body is not so firmly moulded, except for models especially demanded by individual buyers. Skirts are still full, but they do not flare as obviously as of yore, but rather hang in softly draped folds. There is a suggestion of the crinoline in some of the newer evening models, and there are other gowns which reveal the contours of the figure, by means of strategically placed folds and draperies. Some houses are hewing to the princess line more than others, but nearly all are offering evening clothes of varied line and design.

LUCILE PARAY is using much green in her autumn collection, especially for daytime wear. She is showing several good-looking suits in green and green mixtures. These are particularly good with beaver trimming. The suit shown here is of green and white mixed fabric with a standing wide collar and cuffs of beaver. The coat is belted rather snugly and the skirt of the coat dips slightly in back and flares a bit all around. Rounding side pieces over a round edged center panel give an interesting line to the straight skirt.

REDUCED
Following Drop in Price of Silver

When market values decline, it has always been a strict policy of Hardy & Hayes to make corresponding reductions in prices immediately.

Due to the unusual drop in the price of silver more than thirty charming patterns of sterling flatware created by noted silversmiths in English, French, Georgian, Early English, Colonial and Period types are now displayed and priced at the lowest level in many years.

Of special value and captivating grace and charm is the "Lady Diana" pattern, the contour and motif of which are most simple in design yet distinctive in appearance.

As prices may advance at any time, everyone who now needs or contemplates the need for sterling should avail themselves of this opportunity.

HOOVER VIEWS VET PARADE

BALTIMORE, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Men who fought in France, Cuba, the Philippines, China—wherever the battle flag has gone since 1898—marched yesterday before President Hoover.

Over a two-mile route men who were soldiers again just for the day, sailors, regular army outfits and national guardsmen stepped to martial music in the parade featuring the thirty-first annual encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

President Hoover arrived before noon from Washington by automobile and after an informal luncheon as the guest of Mayor William F. Broening, proceeded to the reviewing stand near the city hall over the route then taken by marching feet.

In the stand with him were dignitaries of both military and civil life, including Hezekiah N. Duff, Lansing, Mich., commander of the V. F. W.; Gov. Albert C. Ritchie and both Maryland senators, Phillips Lee Goldsborough and Millard E. Tydings; Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, of the Marine Corps; Maj. Gen. Preston Brown, of the Army, and Rear Admiral F. C. Billard, of the Coast Guard.

WINTON, 70, WED FOURTH TIME

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Alexander Winton, 70-year-old Cleveland automobile magnate, and Mrs. Mary E. Avery, 47, a concert singer, also of Cleveland, were married at the Marble Collegiate Church here. It was Winton's fourth marriage, and his bride's third.

Winton's third marriage to Mrs. Marion Campbell Winton, composer of light opera, ended in Cleveland two weeks ago, when she was granted a divorce. She said she received a $200,000 settlement at that time. Winton's first and second wives died. Mrs. Avery divorced her second husband, F. Solo Avery, in Ohio in 1922.

Plane Down, Pilot Injured at Mercer

MERCER, Pa., Sept. 3.—(AP)—A Cleveland to New York mail plane was badly damaged in making a forced landing at the air field here today. The pilot, Charles Haas, suffered cuts and bruises about the body.

Haas, flying eastward, encountered stormy weather after leaving Cleveland and finding low, heavy clouds as he entered Pennsylvania, decided to land here.

Drops Spade When Whistle Sounds; Toe, Job Lost

CHARLEROI, Sept. 3.—Frank Jachart, 29, laborer, tossed his shovel from a sand truck at the sound of the whistle here and lost his job.

The blade of the shovel severed a toe on the foot of John F. Cleary, 48, of Ward street, Pittsburgh, who was standing beside the truck. Cleary is—or was—Jachart's foreman.

ALLEN BURIED IN ARLINGTON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—(INS)—Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen, retired, soldier and advocate of peace, went to his last resting place today at Arlington National Cemetery. Accompanying the body to the grave were Gen. John J. Pershing, Gen. Allen's chief in France during the war, and officers with whom he had served there and in Germany after the armistice.

Gen. Allen died suddenly Saturday at the summer home of Lt. Rudolph Leitner, first secretary of the German embassy, at Blue Ridge Summit, Pa.

As commander of the American Army of Occupation after the armistice, Allen had endeared himself to the Germans for his relief work among German children, and had acted as peacemaker between the other allies and the defeated German soldiers.

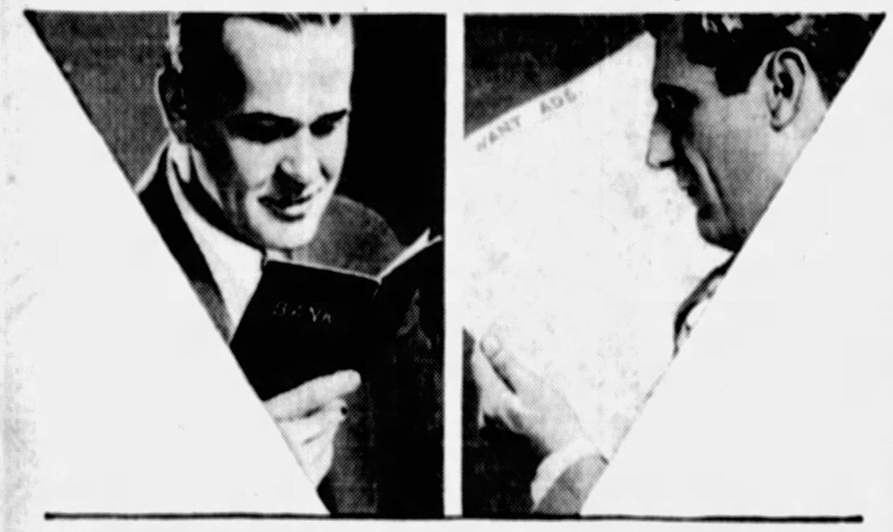
Earnings depend upon sturdy health



When your red blood cell count is only 80% you are not yourself ··· 60% is dangerous

EARNINGS depend largely upon effort . . . but you cannot do your best when you are only half well. Neither can you save without earnings—and by the same token sturdy health makes for steady employment.

A lowered red-blood-cell count makes the system an easy prey to infection and disease. Such a condition robs you of vigor and strength . . . and perhaps may affect your earnings.

Avoid going too near the danger line

When you suspect your health is gradually slipping away act wisely by checking this tendency before a crisis comes about.

The red-cells build muscular and mental energy. When you restore them body impurities silently pass away . . . then you possess a wonderful power of new life and vitality.

S.S.S. should be your safeguard

Take S.S.S. before meals. Millions of people have found this the easiest and surest way to keep themselves "fit." Your whole body will be strengthened, invigorated! S.S.S. successful record of over 100 years in building red-cells in the blood is a guarantee of satisfaction.

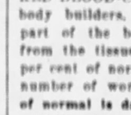
How to recognize a low blood count

Fatigue without any apparent cause, sluggishness, loss of appetite, loss of body weight, paleness, boils and pimples are outstanding symptoms of a LOW RED-BLOOD-CELL COUNT. The red-cells are your body builders. They carry nourishment to every part of the body. Also, they remove impurities from the tissues. When your red-cells drop to 80 per cent of normal strength, you haven't the proper number of workers to keep you "fit." 60 per cent of normal is dangerous.

S.S.S.—the great blood tonic—stimulates the blood-building organs to supply the necessary red-cells. Your appetite picks up, your body is strengthened, invigorated—you feel like yourself again!



(Left) Microscopic view of healthy red-blood-cells. The blood stream should contain about 5,000,000 of these cells to the cubic millimeter. They carry nourishment and oxygen to every part of the body. Also, they remove impurities from the tissues.

(Right) Anemic red-blood-cells—only 60 per cent of normal strength—they lack the power to resist infection and disease or to rebuild flesh and to carry away the impurities. Such a condition is responsible for body weakness, loss of appetite, underweight, paleness, sallow complexion, boils and pimples.

MISS HARD-BOILED

By JANE DIXON

CHAPTER XLIII

It was some time after midnight when Raquel hurried along the corridor giving onto the court of the Continental Hotel, and entered the elevator occupied by a drowsy operator. He blinked at her as if she were an apparition in the dream she had no doubt disturbed.

Her first night in Paris!

Ga[illegible] It was [illegible] parocentric [illegible] of Alphonse. As though he were her keeper! So much for [illegible] and to have spoiled [illegible] rades mat[illegible]

Had the evening brought the end of [illegible] Would Alphonse [illegible] her? [illegible] elsewhere [illegible] it again! Back [illegible] the [illegible] to stage to [illegible]

At all [illegible] Alphonse knew now that she was not to be bent to his will. That she belonged to [illegible] except herself. She'd know tomorrow whether he would accept her on her own terms.

She closed the door between her bedroom and the clawing room to shut out a draft that blew over the bed.

Where was Alphonse this morning the maid was upset.

The [illegible] must have been stronger than he [illegible]

"I hope I haven't caught cold," she said. "Chills make my head ache, and I'll need my wits about me today. And I want all my energy to enjoy this wonderful Paris."

She listened.

New Maid

Someone was moving about in the drawing room.

"Who is there?" she called, pulling the covers close under her chin.

Immediately there appeared in the doorway the figure of a woman. A heavy woman with a dab of a chin and a long sharp nose.

"I am the [illegible] maid," she said. "Monsieur Alphonse engaged me for you, Mademoiselle."

Her voice was like molasses. Her face screwed up into a mirthless smile. A smile.

At once Raquel disliked this woman. She would like to tell her to go; that her services would not be needed. No. That would be another affront to Alphonse. Perhaps what Greta said about Alphonse putting a spy to live with her had prejudiced her.

"What time is it?" she hesitated, not knowing the woman's name.

"Loticia. I am mostly called Lola. It is after 10, mademoiselle."

As late as that! Why hadn't she left word to be called? And where was Greta? Greta had promised to stop by for her early. Loticia! With a face like that!

"I prefer that you address me as miss," she said to the maid. "I am American."

Raquel Hides Anger

"You—American!" The sharp nose of the woman poked forward as if she would root out the truth back of such an absurd assertion. "I should take you for Spanish, Cuban probably, or Argentinian."

"No," Raquel said as cordially as she could manage. What right had this maid to theorize about her, to "take" her for anything? She must hide her resentment though. Encourage Lola to think aloud.

"I'm from the United States," Raquel added. "In fact, I've never been out of my own country before. That is, for any distance."

She had been across the border, in Mexico. But not far or for long. And what she saw there was very like Hermosa, a continuation, intensified, of Arizona.

"A Miss Greta called." The woman interrupted her thoughts. "Only a few minutes before you wakened. She said she was on her way to your hotel. I had muffled the bell so it would not disturb you."

"I wish—" Raquel was about to flare at the intruder that she wished Lola would leave her hands off the telephone and everything else in the room. She must not do it. That would make a bad beginning.

"I wish you, Lola, to go to the [illegible]-shop and get me a jar of cold cream," she substituted. She wanted to get sharp-nose out of the way so she could talk to Greta, formulate some plan of action.

"Madame Miss. There is a jar of cold cream in the dressing table."

So! Lola had already poked [illegible] through whatever was [illegible] in the room.

Greta Visits

"Yes, but it is not to my liking. I want it quite fresh. You will find change in the bag."

And the bag is—

"In that top drawer at the right." As if Lola didn't know exactly where the bag was.

No sooner had Raquel disposed of the unwelcome maid than Greta came bounding in, joyful as a young puppy.

"Everything's clover," she cried, dancing airily around the room. "I was so anxious to tell you, dearie, I didn't even stop to ring the bell."

"You mean Alphonse is not angry?" This was good news.

"He's so mad he could bite himself," Greta nodded sagely. "But he's calmed down. Didn't I tell you, these Frenchies always do?"

"Then I'm to go on as if nothing had happened?"

"I hope so, but I have my doubts. Alphonse must have something up his sleeve beside his hankie."

Raquel felt chilly.

"The new maid arrived this morning," she said thoughtfully.

"So soon?" Early bird nibbles worm."

She was in these rooms when I woke up."

"Why the old sneak-a-boo. Does she carry her own burglar tools?"

She'd been through everything, I suppose. At least she seemed to know what was in my dressing-table."

"What is she like?"

Call on Alphonse

Like a—a ferret. A fat ferret with—"

"I know. Like nothing human. What a razzberry we're going to give her. Step on it, will you, dearie? We got to get over to the mill."

At the entrance to the hotel, under a stone arch, an attendant found Raquel and Greta a taxi.

"If you'd paid attention to papa instead of pulling the Carmen scene with Bettie Adams, you'd probably have had the Black Maria or the kawfee-ow-lay brougham waiting for you," giggled Greta.

"I like this better," said Raquel gaily.

"You would."

The broad boulevards were lively with people.

"This must be a holiday of some kind," Raquel remarked as she watched them.

"What makes you think so?" asked Greta.

Everyone seems to be so merry. Tripping along as if they were going to a picnic or a party."

"That ain't a holiday. That's the nature of the beast. They're just as likely to be crying or cat-calling or raising a hail of a row the next minute. A yawd-swel queen's got nothing on the Frenchies when it comes to quick changes. Hold everything now, dearie. Here's where we enter the lion's den."

The taxi stopped before the stone building of noble build and proportion. The building Alphonse had entered shortly after their arrival in Paris yesterday.

Correct Manners

By MRS CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. At a "tea" reception for a bride, how many cards should be left, if any, the tea being given by three aunts of the bride, two of whom are strangers from distant cities?

2. Is it necessary to send a gift?

3. Please tell me the usual procedure, after such an affair. The bride and groom will live here. H. M.

1. In this instance leave three cards—nowadays this is regarded as the maximum number of cards of any one kind that we leave. The fundamental theory of card-leaving is that we leave one card for each hostess and one for the guest of honor. But, while "additionally" this would mean that you would leave four cards, actually you do leave three, according to the explanation above.

2. No.

3. In two or three weeks, it would be gracious and correct for you and your husband to call on the bride and groom, say on Saturday or Sunday afternoon. Or you could call on any other day of the week, leaving your husband's cards as well as your own.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

A friend of mine, who always hears my relatives speak about me, using my first name, asked me to allow her to address me in this familiar way. I gladly came my consent, and sign just my first name to my letters to her. In her last letter my friend did likewise. Is it proper for me now to address her by her first name, too?

PUZZLED.

Yes, this is now appropriate, and I am sure that your friend would take this for granted since she has your permission to use your first name.

Fay King Sees a Business Factor in These New Tiny Golf Courses

By FAY KING.

Miniature golf courses are springing up everywhere. This seems to bear out the rumor that these days all business is done on golf courses.

These small courses meet the need of small business, which can be accomplished in less time than it would take to play a full-sized eighteen-hole course.

They also give the little business man a chance to get clubby enough to talk business with a big business man when it is necessary.

Caddies have automatically become confidential secretaries, who know when a fountain pen is the club needed for a proper stroke, which will get his man out of the "rough" into the "long green."

In golf these days, the other fellow's business brain is the real hazard.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian's Courage Ebbs as Hour of Meeting Savarin Nears.

I stopped long enough on my way to Lillian's room to placate Mrs. Hasbrouck about her neglected supper.

"Are Mr. Underwood and your niece the only ones that are going to eat my nice supper?" she demanded from her dining-room door. "It is a nice meal if I do say it as I shouldn't and—"

"I'm coming down as soon as I have seen Mrs. Underwood," I answered. "But I'm going to ask a great favor of you for her. Let me take her up just some hot tea and a bit of bread and butter now. We are to go over to Mrs. Cosgroves in an hour and I know she can't eat anything which I do not force upon her until after she comes back—if she can then. But if you can keep something hot for her, I'll see what I can do with her then."

"I won't keep anything hot that long," she said with the truculence of the good cook who has been asked to do something unreasonable. "It wouldn't be fit to eat. But I'll fix her up something tasty when you get back and give me the word, something light and yet nourishing and something that won't take but a jiffy to prepare. And I'll have the tea for you right away. Do go on upstairs to Mrs. Underwood. There's a little table right outside your door, and I'll bring the tray up and set it outside the door before I knock. Wait a few seconds after you hear me knock—three times—and I'll be out of sight when you open the door. I know she won't want to see any strangers tonight."

"You are so thoughtful," I told her with admiring emphasis as I went on upstairs to Lillian, noting with satisfaction, as I did so, that Mary was in the other room of our suite, reading. Harry Underwood's warning concerning my husband's lovely young niece was still in my memory, both disturbing and bewildering in its vagueness and emphasis. I made a mental note that I must speak to Mrs. Hasbrouck and also to Mary before I went back to the Cosgrove home with Lillian.

I found my old friend ranging up and down the room, her hands clasping and unclasping in front of her, her head bent slightly. I stopped short as I saw her, for it is an unusual crisis of emotion indeed which brings such betrayal of feeling to Lillian Underwood. I knew that her nerves were frayed, worn almost to the breaking point, and that it was only her iron will which was keeping her from the storm of sobs and tears with which a weaker woman would have met the ordeal confronting her.

I did not have to speak to her first, something I dreaded doing, for as she turned in her pacing of the room she saw me standing in the doorway and came hurriedly toward me with outstretched hands.

"What news, how—" she faltered, and I caught her hands and held them firmly.

"He is stronger tonight," I said quickly, searching for something which would allay the dread consuming her. "And Mrs. Cosgrove sends you her love and is anxious to see you."

The tension holding her relaxed visibly.

"I am so glad she feels that way," she said after a while. "I did not expect it. When are we going to see Robert?"

"In about an hour," I answered and ignored the start, almost of terror, which she gave. "He is very restless tonight, almost as if he hoped or expected to see some visitor. His nurse has given him a stimulant, so there will be no danger of his strength failing him at the surprise of seeing you—"

"You mean," she said, paling, "that there will be no danger of his heart stopping. Don't gloss things over for me. I'm acting very badly I know, but I'm able to stand the truth."

"Very well," I returned equably. "We'll leave it at that and go on from there. His sister thinks that I ought to go up to see him first."

"I so hoped you would think that was best," she said with a little sigh of relief. "What will you tell him?"

"First that I have a message from you, and then the truth that you are downstairs, waiting to see him."

"Oh!" she breathed, clutching my hands tighter. "How am I ever to go through with it?"

I returned the pressure of her hands but I made my voice crisp and decisive.

"In the same brave way you've met every crisis of your life," I said. "If it will make it any easier, just pretend that you're a puppet and I'll outline every movement for you until you cross the threshold of Robert Savarin's room. After that moment I cannot help you."

"After that only God can help me," she said solemnly. "Only He can show me what to say to Robert."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, September 4

A particularly active and interesting day in so far as business is concerned is forecast from the predominant lunar transits. The breaking up of old crystallized and frustrating conditions may be expected to make way for definite progress, through diligence, perseverance and practically conservative methods. Writings, publishings, trade, real estate and solid investments should thrive under this lively stimulus, and new contracts or agreements may be profitably made.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very lively and progressive year, with new contracts, new business and general speeding up of affairs after the removal of crystallized and frustrating conditions. It is a time for constructive effort and practical industry in the direction of the desired lines of achievement.

A child born on this day should be brilliantly clever and versatile and at the same time practical, methodical and industrious. Its personal associations may not be so gratifying.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

Why Be an "Insect"?

"Just a line to say that in my experience your recent article 'Go-Getting a Husband' is all WET," writes L. L.

"I've been married once," she continues, "and engaged three times—and I'm a gal that likes to pick 'em out and go get 'em. I've heard all this 'languish, retire and allure' stuff. And, believe it or not, the more I 'retired,' the longer they let me languish!"

* * *

"It was an economic condition persisting over a long period which caused the present idea that man is the chooser. With a changing society the pendulum will swing back. Woman is the natural pursuer."

* * *

Back to WHERE, dear heart? To what age or day or generation?"

* * *

Let me tell you the story of Amaryllis, and make my point clear.

* * *

When I first met her, Amaryllis was "standing with reluctant feet, where the brook and river meet." In short, she was a young lady-kitten—a blonde Angora.

And it was perfectly clear, from her listless manner and her wistful eye, that she was dreaming of marriage and a Prince Charming. No modern flapper could have been more bored or distrait!

Yet, when a stalwart young wooer appeared, behold the CHANGE in Amaryllis! Suddenly and without warning, she became the "woman unattainable." Dignity sat upon her brow, and cold elusiveness marked her attitude. No 1830 debutante could have been more coy or more indifferent!

She was determined to be won; and she sat afar, defiantly, her limpid gaze fixed upon the stars, apparently meditating upon the future of her soul. Amaryllis knew her stuff! And the chase she led her young Boy Friend would have discouraged the cockiest "woman-tamer" on a college campus.

Surely, you cannot think that it was a social custom or economic conditions which inspired Amaryllis to dissemble her love and assume that maidenly reserve! For, economically, Amaryllis was "all set" for life, as far as cream and a down pillow are concerned.

No, Mrs. L. L.! It was her woman's intuition! Her feminine instinct. Her KNOWLEDGE of the male of the species and his go-getting nature!

Alas, it is NOT economic conditions that have made man the pursuer and the chooser, ever since he did his wooing with a club. And it is not a social custom that gives him maid-mer when a girl changes places with him, and does the chasing and the proposing. You can't catch a whale with a hair-net—nor a man by letting him know that you are AFTER him!

* * *

It's just PLAIN BIOLOGY! Just Nature, and one of the Eternal Verities, that a woman should know, by intuition!

In nearly every species, except certain low forms of insects, the gentleman is always the pursuer and the lady is always coquettish and difficult.

And who wants to be an INSECT?

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

There is a great hue and cry now about toning lotions which have much the same effect as astringents. A simple one can be compounded at home. Get an eight-ounce bottle and pour into it seven ounces of rose-water, one-half ounce of rubbing alcohol and one dram of simple tincture of benzoin. Shake well. The best time to use it is after the cold water facial tubbing in the morning. Apply with cotton.

Liver spots on the hands are, oftimes enough, merely a collection of freckles run together in bunches. Many a woman who has these hateful spots on her hands in the summer time is surprised to see that they migrate like the birds in cold weather. Treatment consists of protection from the sun's rays and by anointing every night with a heavy tissue cream containing peroxide.

Household Hints

Perhaps you have found a pattern in crocheting or embroidering in a newspaper that you would like to copy, but it is too fine. Try using a magnifying glass and see if you cannot readily copy the stitches.

Don't put away a frying pan that smells of onions, fish, etc., when all you have to do to eliminate that odor is to put some vinegar in the pan and bring to a boil. Then wash as usual and all odors will be gone.

Rubber tips for sink faucets can be purchased for a few pennies and they certainly save breakage in dishes, for somehow that sharp nickel edge of the spigot just will come in contact with a good dish or glass now and then, try as we will.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

A New Order Brings New Responsibilities to Husband and Wife.

Should Husbands Help with the Housework?

Back in 1890 the answer to this question would have been a large and hearty "No." But how about it in 1930? How about it when the Missis as well as the Mister toils downtown all day to help bring home the bacon?

Maybe that question doesn't mean much to you, but it's causing plenty of peeve in many modern marriages. Marriages that couldn't have been, if Joan, as well as Darby, hadn't gone on working.

And it has Zeta going around in circles. Zeta started out bravely in what she thought was going to be a 50-50 team-up. She was willing to take a chance on the Big Adventure. And so was Jack. Oh, so he said. But now—

Well, listen in for yourself.

Dear Miss Sally:

"I wish you'd tell me whether you think it's imposing on a man to expect him to help with the housework, when you, too, work downtown all day.

"Here I am married only one year, and I'm just about the most unhappy girl on this planet. You see Jack and I didn't have any money, but we were terribly in love. So we talked it over and decided that we wanted to be together, above everything else in the world. As that was the case, we agreed to get married first and save money afterward, and that I was to keep on working so we could do that. You see if we hadn't, we couldn't have married for years and years. So we made a regular business proposition out of that part of it.

"I was to keep on at my job until we had a good start, and while I was doing it, everything was to be fifty-fifty. Jack was to help with all the odd jobs around the apartment in the evening, and I was to do the cooking. That sounds perfectly lovely, doesn't it? And Jack didn't object at all. In fact, he seemed enthusiastic and said a great deal about it being grand that we could do that, instead of waiting years to start our life together.

"And it was lovely . . . for about two months. After that Jack began to lose interest in his 'home work,' and even in his home. Don't misunderstand me. I'm not trying to make him out as an 'erring husband.' He's not at all. He never goes out without me, and he's just as loving and affectionate as he ever was. But he just simply sits and dodges anything in our apartment—unless I ask him to help me. And I just hate worse than poison to do that. It seems to me that he should go at it, just like I do, when it needs to be done—seeing that it's for his sake and the sake of being his wife that I am in the situation at all.

"No, he hasn't fallen out of love with me. But he is just the sort of person who could sit down and read a book on top of a table simply stacked with crumbs and dirty dishes.

"I have tried to shame him into doing his part by just going ahead with things myself . . . but he doesn't seem to even notice that I do it. He comes home says, 'I'm tired tonight,' eats and sticks his nose into a book or a paper and that's that. I guess he takes it for granted now, that it's my place to do it all . . . helping support our home and caring for it too. Is that fair? I don't want to scold him, because if there's one thing in this world that I detest, it's a nagger.

"Why don't I hire someone to help, since I'm working? Here's why. We haven't a single penny saved since we've been married. Jack takes care of all the money, and there isn't any left over from one pay day to the next. So hiring's out. Don't you think Jack should co-operate with me? I'm tired, too, when I come home from work. But that doesn't seem to occur to him.

"Please help me out, Sally. I just don't know what to do. I'm so tired and unhappy I could scream. Whose fault is it that things have got like this? If I help support our home, shouldn't Jack help run it, since he isn't able to support it alone?

ZETA."

Shouldn't he help you? Sure he should, Zeta, and it's up to you to see that he does.

It isn't because he doesn't love you. He loves you as much as ever. Nor is he intentionally unfair and unkind. But he simply can't see this problem as you see it. He can't see why you should "fuss over a little housework," because, since Adam dropped the first ashes on the floor of Paradise, men have considered housework child's play.

You can settle this problem, if you'll use love and tact and patience, but you can't settle it in a brawl about your "rights." For he is, unconsciously, defending his rights quite as fiercely as you are defending yours. And you'll have to make him see that the old order has gone—and that you are facing a new order together with new responsibilities and new rights.

So don't blow up, or dissolve in tears. If you want to make him respect your opinions, as he would a man's handle him as a man would handle him. Tell him pleasantly but firmly, that if he won't keep up his end of the bargain you won't keep up yours, he'll probably agree, and all will be jake for a few days. Then he'll slump again. Then do what a man would do. Walk out. Go to your home or to a hotel, and let him see how it feels to struggle along with two jobs. That should teach him that he's living in 1930 and not 1890.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Teeth Suffer From Soft Foods.

Civilized people today sin against nature by eliminating foods containing the precious vitamins, mineral substances and roughage. We damage our bodies seriously and permanently by using too many soft foods.

DR. COPELAND

There is danger of Americans, a few generations from now, having smaller jaws and quite a different physical appearance than they have today. Unless the present dietary faults are corrected we are to suffer, in the opinion of some of our leading dentists and scientists.

This subject was discussed recently at the annual meeting of the Dental Society of New York State. It was said that 80 per cent of the population today are suffering from faulty development of the teeth and jawbones.

Not only in America, but in England and many other countries, is this tendency noticed. Faulty diet is the cause.

It is mighty important what you eat. There are two vital chemicals—lime and phosphorus. They are required in the proper development of the teeth and jawbones, as well as other bones of the body. The common tendency is to indulge in too much starchy food, leaving out the necessary vegetables and fresh fruits.

Give your jawbones and teeth something to do. Eat the coarser, harder foods and chew them well. Nonuse of any structure or organ tends to weaken and degenerate it.

Lack of exercise of the jaws and teeth just as surely weaken them as the legs are weakened by disuse from illness or injury or laziness. A healthy man may take a rest cure, and he will be astonished to find after several weeks that his legs will scarcely support him. On beginning to walk these muscles become stronger.

So, for the good of every growing child and every adult liberal supplies of fresh fruits and green vegetables, wholesome bread and cereals, milk (a pint for the adult and at least a quart for the child), orange juice, and, if necessary, cod-liver oil, should be taken. Eat, too, plenty of the coarser vegetables that give roughage in the digestion.

BABE NOT LIKELY TO BREAK RECORD

THE PASSING OF more than two weeks without the addition of a home run to Babe Ruth's string for the season may have killed the last chance that remained for the Bambino to break his own all-time record for four-basers in a year, the total of 60, which he hung up in 1927. Even if he succeeds in beating out Hack Wilson and all other rivals for the 1930 leadership in round-trippers, the odds against his surpassing his best figures of the past appear too great to be overcome.

Babe Ruth.

Ruth was speeding along with bright prospects until well beyond the mid-season mark, and was so far ahead of his schedule that a new record loomed up as strongly probable. But first a torn finger interfered with his grip on the bat, and later a wrenched back put him under a new handicap. He has missed nine games altogether and has played only part time in several others. As a result he is now behind his schedule by such a margin that only the greatest slugging streak of his life could make it possible for him to bridge the gap before the season closes three weeks from next Sunday.

IN HIS RECORD campaign of 1927 Ruth made his forty-fourth home run in the Yankees' 124th game of the year. That left 30 games for him in which to make his 16 other homers. The Yanks now have played 130 games, and the Babe, still with only 44 to his credit, has only 24 games remaining in which to connect for the 17 round-trippers he needs for a new mark. After 130 games in 1927 Ruth had 51 boundary belts chalked up.

To make a late rush to a new record at this late stage Ruth would have to surpass anything he ever accomplished during September. It is true that in that month in 1927 he turned in 17 homers, the same number he now requires, but he had more games in which to do it, and he made three of them after September 28, the date on which the season will close this year. In 1920, he made only 10 home runs in September; in 1921, 11; 1922, six; 1923, nine; 1924, four; 1925, eight, with a few October days included; 1926, seven; 1928, seven, and 1929, five. So it looks as if the Babe's old record is going to stand, for another year at least.

AS THE TRAINING season of the Duquesne University football squad gets under way, Line Coach Joe Bach is hopeful of turning out another strong forward wall. His only loss was Lou Skender, a star tackle, and it is possible that Bach may groom Richard (Babe) Kelleher for the vacancy.

Joe Bach.

Kelleher held down a guard berth last season, but was seen frequently in a tackle position during spring practice. He worked during the summer as a fireman on a dredge boat in the upper Allegheny River and reported in excelent shape, weighing 203 pounds.

BELIEVING THAT A coach should practice what he preaches, Bach himself was not idle during the summer. A foreman's job on the new Saw Mill Run boulevard took off 20 pounds of a threatening corpulance which had been worrying the Dukes' assistant director of athletics and left him as hard as the proverbial nails. And while he worked, Bach laid plans for the 1930 gridiron season that he will now proceed to carry out. Joe last year served up a line that left nothing to be desired, and he expects to have another of the same standard ready when the Dukes begin operations against West Virginia under the floodlights at Forbes Field two weeks from next Friday night.

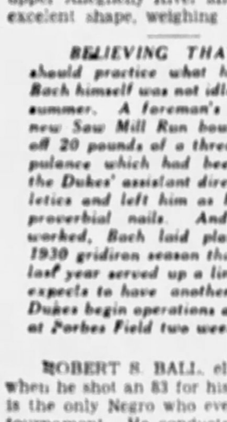
ROBERT S. BALL, eliminated from the recent Western open when he shot an 83 for his second round after making the first in 81, is the only Negro who ever qualified for a major championship golf tournament. He conducts a miniature golf course in Wabash avenue, Chicago.

Ball was born in Atlanta, Ga., and started out as a caddy. He caddied for Bobby Jones at the East Lake course in the Georgia capital, and started playing golf at the age of 10. He is now 30. Two years ago he won the Cook County (Ill.) championship, and last year he won the Negro open championship of the United States.

BALL WAS FAR from his best game in the Western open, and his failure to make a better showing is judged to have been due to waiting until too late in his career to go after major honors.

According to a man who had a chance to study his game six years ago, Ball at that time could have defeated 90 per cent of the profesionals in the country.

CHARLEY ROOT showed evidence of a complete recovery from the effects of his recent arm injury when he held the Reds to three hits in the final game of the Cincinnati series and saved the Cubs from a clean sweep after the double defeat of Labor Day. Having Root back in shape to take his regular turn on the rubber means a great deal to the Bruins, and is a weighty factor toward protecting their pennant chances. With a crippled slab staff the league leaders might have found themselves in a bad way on the tough Eastern trip, following the hard string of five games with the Pirates, but Root's return brightens the outlook greatly.



Charley Root.

THERE IS NO disputing Root's class as a pitcher, nor his effectiveness on most occasions against other clubs in the National League, but Pittsburgh is one outfit seemingly that has no reason to fear the star right-hander. The Pirates appear able to beat him nearly every time he faces them.

In two seasons Root has won only two games from the Bucs. They took him for three out of four last year and for two out of three in the present campaign, besides forcing him to retire from two other games he started this season. His only win over them this year was a 7-to-4 decision in Chicago on April 28.

WHOEVER PICKED THE dates for the big America's Cup yacht races between the defending Enterprise and the challenging Shamrock V, appears to have had no superstitious fears with regard to hoodoo numerals.

For the first race of the series is to be sailed on Saturday, September 13. There will be a race each succeeding week-day until a decision is reached, provided each contestant is willing to start again in 24 hours. No races will be sailed on Sundays.

BIG SQUAD TURNS OUT FOR LAYDEN

By JESS CARVER.

The Dukes will don their gridiron accoutrements today for the first time, and begin preparations for the formidable football schedule that lies just around the corner.

Elmer Layden

Just around the corner is right, for 16 days from today Mister Layden will send his Dukers out to combat West Virginia's Mountaineers in a night game at Forbes Field. It's going to be a tough one for the Dukes but it will be no setup for Ira Rodgers and his West (By Golly) Virginians, for Ira don't get his boys out until next week, on the eleventh.

LAYDEN'S FOURTH YEAR

Today marks the inaugural of Coach Layden's fourth year as athletic director and head coach on the Bluff. So far, he hasn't lost enough ball games to keep the opposition warm. Last year he didn't lose any (being tied, however, by West Virginia) and he pulled enough victories out of the fire to scorch his paws to the bone.

A squad of about half a hundred reported to Coaches Layden and Bach this morning. A light drill is on tap for the a. m. and a slightly heavier one for the afternoon. By tomorrow they'll be going at almost full tilt, with scrimmages looming in the well known offing for next week.

The first freshman squad in the history of Duquesne University appeared on the campus training grounds today. Freshman Coach Buff Donnelli's sector of Duke athletics had about 36 candidates checked in last night.

Equipment was issued to the gridders on hand at 8:30 o'clock this morning and the men went on the field immediately for activities. Laydon expected all of his men on hand for the afternoon session, scheduled to get under way at 2:30 o'clock.

Graduate Manager John D. Holahan reported everything in readiness early this morning, following a final inspection late last night.

Yesterday, well, you should have been out at Tech's Bowl. One of the greatest triple pass plays ever conceived was cooked up in the mind of Max (Hannapolis) Hannum, who writes sport publicity when he isn't dealing stud.

Dan Benjamin, demon sports photographer of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, was over the ball at center. Der Maxie dropped back to quarterback, and in the absence of any assistance, this correspondent played the rest of the backfield.

WHAT A PLAY!

Benny snapped the ball to Max, who in turn slipped it to yours truly. By this time, Ben had pivoted, run back to the ball and chased around an end, with Hannum furnishing the interference, if any.

The novel feature of the play was the center carrying the ball. It may be against the rules, but it's still a pip of a play. So unexpected.

The Skibos went through two long sessions yesterday, both afternoon workouts being staged. In the afternoon, a scrimmage session was put on, with one backfield and line working against a second line. Murray Armentrout, the hard-running halfback star, did most of the ball-toting, though he was ably spelled by EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOONS: THE SKEWERED MONK OF PEIPING—Self-inflicted torture is a powerful stimulus in the eyes of the religious devotees of the Far East. The Skewered Monk of Peiping, whom I have drawn from a photograph, has pierced his face with a long skewer as an aid in soliciting alms for the rebuilding of a temple. He has been following this vocation for the last 23 years. THE WOOD WASP CAN DRILL A HOLE IN METAL—It is the female of the giant tailed wasp (sirex gigas) which wields the powerful organ called the borer, or ovipositor, for the purpose of depositing its eggs in the solid wood of trees. Experiments by Hasche and others have shown that it is capable of piercing a metal sheet of ordinary thickness. STARS CAN BE SEEN IN DAYLIGHT—Only the glare of the sun's rays, which fills our atmosphere prevents us from seeing the stars in the daytime. A telescope reduces the brightness of the star's background, while it increases the light of the star in the ratio of the aperture of the tube. That is why stars are perfectly visible through a telescope in the daytime. BARNACLES GROW ON THE PORT SIDE OF DOLLAR BOATS—The reason for the growth of more barnacles on the port side of Dollar Round-the-World boats than on the starboard side, is because these boats always travel westward around the world, causing the sun to strike the port side almost all of the time.

LOCAL RIFLE TEAM WINS

CAMP PERRY, O., Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Competing in a field of 421 civilians, Gairie M. Upshaw, of Pasadena, Cal., won the individual civilian club members' match at the national rifle and pistol matches here yesterday on a 200-yard range with .30-calibre rifle. His score was 96 out of a possible 100.

On the small bore ranges, Henry Adams, Fostoria, O., was winner of the individual long-range match in which 150 contestants were entered. Adams topped the list with a score of 198 out of a possible 200.

A Pittsburgh team, composed of Charley Souph, William B. McCready, George Brubaugh and Capt. Guy Daily, carried off the Class B revolver shooting title and created a prize upset by defeating the Canadian Mounted team. The Pittsburgh team registered a total of 994 out of a possible 1,000 to the Canadian group's 979.

In the short-range, smalle-bore match, with 180 contestants, Philip A. Ronfor, of Norwood, O., won with a 398 out of a possible 400.

Capt. Horner Wins Army Golf Laurels

Capt. W. B. Horner, Jr., of the 393rd Infantry, a Pittsburgh Regiment, qualified to represent the district in the Third Army Corps championship golf tournament at Baltimore tomorrow when he defeated Maj. X. F. Blauvelt in the final round of the eliminations at Schenley Park yesterday, 2 and 1.

The finals of the Army championship will be staged at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., from September 17 to 20. The trials were held for National Guard, reserve and regular Army officers.

Carver to Cover Camps Of District College Elevens

Following its annual custom of giving football fans first-hand information on the prospects of the various college and scholastic football elevens of the Pittsburgh and Tri-state district, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph has assigned Jess Carver, football expert, to make the rounds of the training camps and write a series of articles. Dan F. Benjamin, staff photographer, will accompany him and shoot the squad and individual pictures of the moleskin heroes.

The series will include stories on Pitt, Carnegie Tech, Duquesne University, Geneva, Wash-Jeff, Penn State, Grove City, Allegheny, Waynesburg, Thiel, Westminster, St. Vincent, St. Francis, Bethany, Davis & Elkins, West Virginia University, West Virginia Wesleyan, Kiski Prep School, Bellefonte Academy and Shady Side Academy.

The first article, with pictures, will deal with Carnegie Tech and will appear in Friday's issue. Geneva will be second, on Sunday.

HECKER NET FINALIST

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Sept. 3.—Johnny Hecker battled his way into the final of the College Hill Tennis Club's annual Beaver County tournament here yesterday with a brilliant victory over Lowell Wingerd, of New Castle. Wingerd pressed Hecker in the first set, but the New Brighton boy came through to win, 6-4. Wingerd upset Hecker in the second with a well-earned 6-2 set. In the third Hecker cut loose with all his brilliance and rode through to a 6-1 triumph.

The only other match played yesterday saw Stewart Snodgrass, of Beaver Falls, upset William Potts, also of Beaver Falls. The scores were 7-5, 6-0. Snodgrass will meet Howard Campbell, College Hill veteran, in a semi-final match to determine who shall play Hecker Saturday in the final.

PLESNIK WINS OVER KLADICK

Joe Plesnik, of the Braddock Library A. C., defeated Frank Kladick, of the Pastorius Club, in the feature contest of the amateur boxing show staged at the Twenty-seventh Ward A. C. last night. Johnny Birek, of Pittsburgh Lyceum, stopped Jean Judge, of St. Boniface Lyceum, in the second. The summary:

The Pirates and Cubs are all set for what should be five days of highly exciting diamond warfare. The first guns will be fired in the Oakland Orchard this afternoon, four single fights being scheduled here for the remaining days of the week. On Sunday the battle scene will switch to Chicago, where a single contest will wind up the inter-club meetings for the season.

Manager Ens said today he would call upon his new southpaw sensation, Charley Wood, or Glenn Spencer for slab action. The Wichita Wonder has had three days of rest and should be in fine fettle for the big ordeal. Wood owns the remarkable feat of having pitched 21 scoreless rounds in succession. Spencer also is available for slab duty and he may be chosen over Wood.

Boss McCarthy has Guy Bush and Sheriff Blake ready for action, but there is a chance that he, too, will depend upon a southpaw. Arthur Teachout has been doing clever work for the Bears, but in his last meeting with the Buccos he did not fare so well.

MAY REST P. WANER

Manager Ens also declared today that he might give Paul Waner a rest today because of the lame left shoulder which Paul sustained in sliding back to first base in the second game of last Saturday. Harry Heilmann made a hurried throw to first on Paul's single and the latter dove on his throwing shoulder to get back in time. He played in Cincinnati the following day and then took part in the Labor Day double bill, but he had to toss the ball after catching it. If his arm is no better by game time, Jim Moseff will be in right field.

The play between the two clubs throughout the summer has been exceptionally close, with the invaders having a one-game margin in victories. Marse Joe and his champions have romped away with nine victories in the 17 fights staged.

The Cubs expected the stiffest kind of opposition from the Buccos. Where they often smear the Robins or Giants consistently, experience has taught them that the Freebooters are "tough boys" all the way.

CUBS HURT OFTEN

The league leaders, like the Pirates have been having their share of troubles. Rogers Hornsby has been out of their lineup for months while Lefty Grimm is out indefinitely with a badly torn leg. Moreover, they lost Charlie Root and Leo Hartnett for a short spell, but through it all, their morale has been very high.

All of which augurs well for the Bruins as they prepare to go down the home stretch. As they open the long series with the Buccos they hold a lead over the runnersup Giants of four games, and that is a sizeable advantage at this late date.

CURTAIN IS NEAR

Only seven more battles are scheduled for Forbes Field ere the curtain falls on Pittsburgh baseball. When the Cubs and Pirates leave Saturday night just three local games remain, these to be

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—It's funny that every time a league leader fights off its closest rivals, it goes and blows ball games to the tail end of the kite.

Nick Altrock

Since the Cubs pushed the Giants and Robins into the hamburger factory, they have been a set-up for every one else. The seven Sutherland Sisters could beat them, with shortstop and centerfield left uncovered.

The A's aren't so hot in the American loop, either. If Connie Mack doesn't feed them stiff doses of digitalis, our club will give them heart disease before the season is through. Don't gamble, as Mr. Brisbane tells you, but don't sell Washington American League short.

SOUTH ADOPTS NOTRE DAME GRID SYSTEM

MANY FORMER ROCKNE STARS IN DIXIE

South[illegible] the in[illegible] system [illegible]

Bill Alexander

[illegible] general [illegible] Cotton B[illegible]

Notre Dame [illegible] speed on attack and [illegible] forward pass [illegible] ever. With [illegible] Conference teams employing Rockne's idea of football [illegible] had to develop their [illegible] to meet the demand. As a result fans have benefitted in seeing the sort of football that [illegible] system produces—the kind of dazzling football that is applauded by the spectator as the best served by the Four Horsemen and their successors.

The Notre Dame system, or colonization of the South, is a development of recent years. It is probable that the late Pat Dwyer, who was the coach at Georgia Tech just after the world war, was the first Notre Dame man to teach the game in this region. However, he dated back to a period long [illegible] the days of the glorious days of Rockne. Buck Shaw coached North Carolina State in 1922. Johnny Mohrel helped Dan McGugin at Vanderbilt one season.

GEORGIA LEADS WAY

The University of Georgia really led the way to the introduction of Notre Dame football in the South and its adoption later by at least half a dozen major institutions. When George C. Woodruff was made head coach at Georgia in 1974 he brought Harry Mehre and Frank Thomas down from South Bend to construct Georgia teams in the intricate system of play used by Rockne. Since that day Georgia has used the identical formations used by Notre Dame teams and has experienced notable success with it. It may be that Georgia executes Notre Dame plays and Notre Dame football better than any other institution that has imported it. A Georgia football team using any other system would seem strange to this generation of Southern football fans. Georgia's record since adopting the system has been such as to gain national fame for the Bulldogs and they have had more than ordinary success in intersectional combats.

Frank Thomas went to become head coach at University of Chattanooga and there won championships in the S. I. A. A. with the Notre Dame system. He so firmly grounded it that his successor led the field in that organization last year.

ALABAMA NEXT

Thomas was succeeded at Georgia as assistant coach by Jimmy Crowley, one of the Four Horsemen, then when Crowley went to the Michigan Aggies Thomas returned to help Mehre who had succeeded to the position of head coach. Now Thomas has signed a contract to succeed Wallace Wade at the University of Alabama in 1931, which will mean that another Southern Conference institution will begin using Notre Dame football. It is an unusual feature that Frank Thomas will have introduced the system at three Southern schools.

After Georgia experienced such good fortune with the gridiron art as taught by Rockne, others followed suit. University of North Carolina installed Chuck Collins as head coach and he brought in Rex Enright and Bill Cerney as assistants. He has turned out great teams in the past few years and many observers considered his 1929 team which lost but one game—a nip and tuck battle with Georgia—to be really the strongest in the conference. North Carolina authorities are delighted with the Collins regime and refused to let him leave to take a flattering offer from another school.

At the University of Florida Charley Bachman, old Rockne star, former coach of the Kansas Aggies, is beginning his third season. His teams always have

31-1 Shot Wins Fourth Race At Ebensburg

EBENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 3.—[illegible] Little Flora, a [illegible] outsider, paid one of the longest prices ever recorded in the history of Ebensburg racing here yesterday by nosing out the high-[illegible]favored Royal Casta in the fourth race. Holders of $2 on Little Flora collected $62 each.

The race was six furlongs, [illegible] feature event for 3-year-olds. Shasta Butte ran third [illegible] between the first flight of the conference race. They play typical Notre Dame football and in 1928 led the entire nation in scoring. Since Bachman went to Florida the Gators have been dangerous for any opponent.

Alabama Polytechnic Institute, known as Auburn this year enters the Notre Dame class. After experiencing difficulty in finding a satisfactory successor for Mike Donahue, whose teams 20 years ago had a national reputation, Auburn has engaged Chet Wynne, one of Rockne's recent graduates as head coach. He is bringing with him from South Bend Roger Kiley and Jack Cannon as assistants. These young men will give Auburn the entire Notre Dame program and no doubt from this point Auburn's football fortunes will improve.

Georgia Tech had a happy experience with having Don Miller, another of the Four Horsemen, as backfield coach for three seasons and experienced a genuine loss when he elected to go to Ohio State as backfield coach.

Guy's Sell Gumbert To Baltimore Club

CHARLEROI, Pa., Sept. 3.—Harry Gumbert, 19-year-old right-hand moundsman with the Charleroi Governors, has been sold to the Baltimore Orioles in the International League, it was announced here today.

A $2,000 optional purchase was consummated with the agreement that Gumbert will report for duty at Baltimore on Thursday and finish the season with the Orioles.

Next season he will join the Baltimore club in training camp with the stipulation that he makes good by May 15.

Gumbert, playing his first year in organized baseball, carried the Governors through to 13 victories in 21 starts. This record resulted despite a late start, one month after the season was under way.

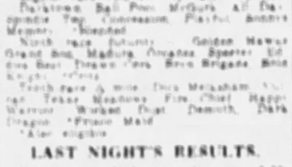
GOLF
As Champions Play It



THERE IS DANGER OF A TOPPED BALL WITH WOOD CLUBS ... USE AN IRON

How can you get distance when the ball is lying in a hard, bare spot in the fairway? What club should be used?

Answered by WILLIE OGG.

I would advise the average player to use a midiron under these circumstances for by doing so he would have less chance for error and still get good distance. The expert would use a spoon, but I would not advise the ordinary player to try it unless he happened to be more accurate with his woods than his irons. The danger to the ordinary player in trying to play the spoon from a lie of this kind is hitting the ground before hitting the ball. This makes the club head bounce up and produces a topped shot. The large sole of the wooden club is more apt to do this than the narrow sole of the mid iron.

PANTHERS' GRID CAMP IDEAL

CAMP HAMILTON, Windber, Pa., Sept. 3.—Dr. John B. Sutherland is rather proud of his football camp. The Panthers of the University of Pittsburgh have here all of the modern conveniences as added features to what nature so generously supplied.

Seventeen years ago this property was turned over to the University by the late A. R. Hamilton. For some years the Panthers worked on a very rough field, lived in tents that had no floors, bathed in the creek and roughed it in every way.

Today they have running water piped up the mountain from Windber, with hot and cold showers, electric lights, permanent cottages, a well-conditioned practice field with all the training equipment, a modern hospital, bungalow mess hall, etc.

Whatever recreation time the boys have can be well spent, for there are a golf course of parts, a miniature golf layout, volley ball, horse shoes and tennis.

Stony Creek no longer is used for bathing. It is just a scenic effect now, for modern showers have replaced it.

The football squad uses the camp three weeks each fall while the engineering students remain here most of the summer. The camp being open from early summer until the middle of September has brought about a gradual development of its beauty.

From the standpoint of the coaching staff, the remoteness of the camp is a most desirable feature. No one strays from the camp. Lights are out at 9:30 p. m. and perfect quiet is conducive to sound slumbers.

A narrow road winds up the mountain four miles from Windber. The mail man comes once a day and during the football squad's stay here he brings a big load daily.

HULL PROVES EASY FOR M'TIERNAN

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Buck McTiernan, of Swissvale, added another boxer of National fame to his list of victims last night when he decisively defeated Clyde Hull, Texas veteran, in the 10-round main bout in the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock.

McTiernan won as he pleased in a battle that dragged at times. He carried every round and might have knocked out his opponent if he had not elected to waste a lot of time mixing at close quarters after having Hull unsteady and ready for a finishing punch at the end of the fifth round. Clyde was helpless when Buck was belting him at long range and welcomed the respite that the inside fighting gave him.

BOUT LACKS THRILLS

There were no knockdowns or highlights. Hull tired and desperate to escape a knockout claimed a foul on a blow that was ridiculously high at the start of the ninth round and in the tenth wrestled McTiernan to the floor and went down with him and was wobbly when he picked himself up.

The visitor packed a healthy punch in the early rounds but he was so awkward in his movements that he was unable to land effectively and as McTiernan kept socking him about, Clyde lost the sting in his blows. He weighed 163½ pounds against 151½ for McTiernan at 3 p. m.

SMALLWOOD WINS

Chet Smallwood, Akron southpaw, 135½, lambasted Eddie Ruttman, of Wheeling, 134½, throughout the eight-round semi-final put on after the main event. Jimmy Thomas, of the Hill, 114½, defeated Johnny Warner, of Clairton, 120, in the six-round second bout and Marty Gormick, of McKeesport, making his professional debut, scored the hit of the show by the clever manner in which he outscored Tiger Joe Clark, Negro southpaw socker from the South Side, in the six-round opener. Clark weighed 135½ and Gormick 136. Clark last week knocked out Frankie Moran, of Homewood, in the same ring.

Al Grayber and Eddie Kennedy alternated as referees and Frank Ferris and Freddie Lux were the judges, with Ray Eberle doing the announcing and Tommy Grant and Max Zeugschmidt acting as timers. All of the decisions were unanimous and correct. The crowd was fair in size.

PANKA-HEENEY NEXT

George Panka, Homestead heavyweight, was introduced before the main bout and it was announced he will box Tom Heeney, of Australia, in the Bowl next Monday night.

Between Rounds

The Meyers Bowl will close its season on either September 13 or 20 and hopes to rearrange the Jackie Rodgers-Johnny Dundee bout for September 22. Dusty Boggs, Joe Thomas, of Chicago, at Morgan Park, Mill on Thursday night. All next week. Battling Quinn and Al Huber, Goodberg, of New York, are the headliners at Meyers Park tomorrow night.

Ray Eberle will do the announcing at the opening show of the season in Mc-Keesport next week.

Fracas Thom has not been [illegible] for Friday night at the Twenty-seventh Ward A. C. North Side until Friday night of next week, when he bumps against Jimmy Hallmont in the main bout. If the bout is not available then it will be used as the windup of Fracas opening show in the Manor Temple on the night of September 19.

Ross Powers, of Youngstown, and Georgie Rentsch, of the North Side, hard-hitting welterweights, box the eight-round semi-final at Hickey Park tomorrow night. Don Fraley meets Paul Rollet and Sol Lippe, of Philadelphia, tackles Jersey Morrison, of Donaldson, O., in the six-round preliminaries.

Harry Williams, local Negro light-heavyweight and Chuck Taggart, of Butler, meet in the eight-round semi-final at the Meyers Bowl next Monday night.

Long's Sport Comment

same track the same day, as George Simpson did in competition with Eddie Tolan in the recent national championship A. A. U. meet here. The explanation offered by Simpson is that luck figures to a greater extent in the century. He says that among the present field of top-notch sprinters, the greatest the country has ever known, much depends upon start, condition of track, weather, condition of the individual and what not. Numerous factors enter into the short race, and a slight mistake at the start or anywhere along the route cannot be rectified. There is not time for correcting errors. It's different in the 220. Simpson points out. The same factors that can decide a contest at 100 yards among individuals so closely matched as the present-day sprint stars will not be prominent in a 220-yard number. If a mistake is made there is time to correct it. He says there is the same difference between the 100-yard and 220-yard sprints as there is between an 18-hole and a 36-hole golf match.

GRID LEAGUE FORMED HERE

SIX ELEVENS ENTER NEW CONFERENCE

By TOM BIRKS

The final meeting of the Western Pennsylvania Independent Gridiron Conference went over with a bang last evening six clubs were represented and everything is set for the season's opening on September 28.

West View, East Pittsburgh, Burns A. A., McKeesport Olympics, McChesneytown and Hope Harvey Maiestics are the aggregations composing the loop.

Fred Iverson, Abbe Brown, Hector Kennedy, Jimmy Smith, Paul Mussir, Jimmy Rooney and Chris McCormack did the talking for their respective clubs.

Bill Schulties, of Irwin, wanted to get in the loop, and Walter Derr, of Bridgeville, sat in at the discussion. Coach Bill Sullivan, of the Olympics, came down from the Tube City with Manager Iverson.

The schedule will be announced on Sunday, September 14, and all playing lists must be in the president's office no later than September 23.

The full 10 games will be played, but some of the teams are expected to play night football, though the schedule will be built around Sunday games.

Plenty of other gossip dominated the session. Manager Iverson was looking for a club to open at Rainbow Gardens, September 14.

Manager Jack Mier, of the Monessen Olympics, announced that the upriver club would start its schedule with a night football game on September 17, and Homewood stated it would meet Akron on September 21.

DUKES BEGIN GRID DRILLS

John Karris and Dutch Eyth. Armentrout, who enters into anything with all his heart, gave a fine impression of an all-America back in full stride. The way he tore through that defensive line was a shame. And in justice to the defensive line, he didn't always make it, either.

Casualties for the day included a badly-ripped sweat jersey of Mr. Armentrout's, two stove fingers, belonging to Tank Karris, several strips of cockiness taken from the hides of ambitious sophomores and the loss of half a hundred fine steaks when the practices were over.

The Tipoff

Walter Okeson, the high muckamuck of the Eastern Association of Football Officials, will be here September 16 for a day and will hold one of his instructive clinics for college and high school officials unable to attend the meetings in New York September 6 and 7. The boys will gather at the Keystone A. C.

Duquesne football fans will be interested to learn that Johnny Karris, the Tartar fullback star, reported for duty this fall weighing 214 pounds, or contrary to the 235 he reported being a year ago. Karris is in fine shape and his line-hacking certainly was, even though it was not up to the best he can do, was great enough.

Another athlete who appears to be in the clear is Pete Flanagan, the ranger end. Pete actually looks thin, so well is he conditioned. He showed to good advantage at defensive end yesterday.

Walter Knoppick, famous Columbia All-American back of a year or two ago, is on the coaching staff at the University of N. Mex. Yeah, a coaching staff of 10 coaches who have been signed to build a team at the Empire State School.

Joe Flusher, who soon will be numbered among the "I. S. M." (Well Known Married Men), put in an appearance at the Tech field yesterday to watch the drills. He is a little nervous as the big day dawns, and sought advice from Max Hannum, who says humor through it all. Max says it —gladly.

PITT COMPETITION KEEN

CAMP HAMILTON, Windber, Pa., Sept. 3.—The battle for positions on the Pitt 'Varsity of 1930 is due to start very soon. Today the men had a feeling that scrimmage was only a matter of hours. The first scrimmage of the year is always welcomed by the men, even though later sessions become rather burdensome.

This year's scrimmage holds great promise for there is going to be a fight on for nearly every position in the lineup. Letter men do not feel at all secure in positions popularly assigned them for sophomores and reserves from last year are intent on getting in the Panther cast. It is possible scrimmage will be on the program for tomorrow, and if not tomorrow, Friday. The squad has made excellent progress and the hot weather of the first few days has melted away much of the excess weight that they brought to camp.

Yesterday the men were given some plays and probably one or two will be added today.

With the arrival this morning of Jim MacMurdo, the Pitt Panther roster was complete. MacMurd, has been on a trip in the South and the connections weren't so good. He was rather footsore when he breezed in this morning. His arrival brightened the whole camp, as he is being counted upon heavily by his teammates. Jim immediately will enter into competition with Eddie Hirschberg for the left end position. If successful, he will be one of the heaviest ends in the history of Pitt football. A heavy thunder shower early this morning did not seriously interfere with practice. Despite the fact that several of the assistant coaches had to sleep in slickers, Dr. Sutherland announced that a workout will go on as scheduled.

W. & J. GRIDDERS OUT

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 3.—With only two absentees, Maury Rush, fleet halfback, who was stricken by malaria fever in Los Angeles, and Kenneth McNeil, Bradley Beach, N. J., varsity end, excused for a few days football practice, was inaugurated by W. & J. yesterday.

Approximately 35 candidates for the varsity reported to Head Coach Bill Amos, who is being assisted by Pete Henry, W. & J.'s all-American tackle of a decade ago.

Capt. Walter Levine, of Lockhaven, led the squad through the drill. Irwin Newby, tackle, was among the candidates reporting and declared he was out for a place on the varsity line.

Glenn Wild, freshman coach whose players report Friday, was on the field assisting the varsity coaches in handling the squad. Scrimmage within a week is in prospect.

TO ATTEND CONFAB

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 3.—(AP)—H. A. Stansbury, West Virginia University Athletic director, will leave here Friday to attend a meeting of the Eastern Association for the selection of football officials at New York. The meeting will be followed by a football rules committee session. Stansbury is one of the six directors-at-large of the association.

PITT GETS MATESIC

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Dick Matesic, of Benwood, regarded as one of the Ohio Valley's most promising gridiron prospects, left this morning to enroll at the University of Pittsburgh. Matesic played with Bellefonte Academy in 1929 and was all-state quarterback in 1928 while playing with Benwood Union High School. He is 6 feet tall and weighs 190 pounds.

BLOCH IN NATIONAL

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 3.—(AP)—Tom Bloch, young amateur golfer of Wheeling, has been entered in the National amateur at the Merion Cricket Club, Philadelphia, his entry having been officially accepted by the United States Golf Association. Bloch is the first entry in the National amateur in several years from West Virginia.

STANSBURY GETS ACE

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 3.—(AP)—A hole in one may mean golfing fame to some, but to M. A. Stansbury, director of athletics at West Virginia University, it means Christmas presents. After he had scored an ace during a match at the local course yesterday he found that a number of firms offered prizes ranging from ginger ale to golf socks for such an achievement.

"There's where I do my Christmas shopping," was the director's comment.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Postponement for one week of the 10-round bout between Ruby Goldstein, New York, and Jack Zivic, Pittsburgh, scheduled for tonight at Henderson's Bowl, Coney Island, has been announced by the promoters. Goldstein suffered an injured hand in training.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Rain forced postponement until tomorrow night of a 12-round match between Harry Smith and Gorilla Jones, Negro middleweights, at the Queensboro Stadium last night.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 3.—(AP)—A scheduled 10-round bout last night between Tommy Herman, Chicago, and Patsy Pollock, of Canada, was postponed until tonight because of threatening weather. Pollock was substituted for Meyer Grace, of Philadelphia, who reported he injured a hand in training.

LAWLESS STOPPED

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 3.—(AP)—Sammy Jackson, young Santa Monica Negro middleweight, scored a 10-round technical knockout over Bucky Lawless, of Syracuse, N. Y., here last night.

GRID RULES Interpretations

PLAY NO. 3

Purvis, of Purdue, standing behind his own line of scrimmage, shoots a forward pass and is tackled by Roberts, Iowa guard, who has broken through from the line and holds Purvis down. The pass was grounded on the play. What is the correct ruling?

ANSWER

The case is covered by one of the new approved rulings in which the referee penalizes Iowa five yards for defensive holding.

MID-ATLANTIC TITLE SERIES OPENS

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 3.—The annual championship series of the Middle Atlantic League opens here today with Johnstown and Clarksburg arrayed against each other in the pennant fight.

Johnstown qualified for a place in the tri-state district's "world series" and Clarksburg nosed out Fairmont in a thrilling second-half fight to win the right to oppose the locals for the championship.

Interest in the titular series is running high and indications are that a capacity crowd will witness the opener. The clubs generally are regarded as equals in strength and neither has been established as a particularly strong favorite.

The second game of the series will be played here Thursday, after which Clarksburg will become the battlefront. The championship series schedule:

Today and Thursday at Johnstown.
Friday, open.
Saturday and Sunday at Clarksburg.
Monday at Johnstown.
Tuesday at Clarksburg.
Wednesday, toss-up as to site if seventh game is necessary.

staged between the Pirates and Reds when they return from their last Western trip.

The Pirates yesterday enjoyed a day of rest and they made a slight gain on the fourth-place Robins who were trimmed by Bill McKechnie's Braves.

Shortstop Ben Sankey is slated to rejoin the Pirates today. Sankey was farmed out to the Bridgeport club of the Eastern club about two weeks ago.

Graham Suspended, Fight Called Off

CINCINNATI, Sept. 3.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Boxing Commission called off the 10-round boxing match scheduled for tomorrow night between Fidel LaBarba, of Los Angeles, retired flyweight champion, and Bushy Graham, of Utica, N. Y., and suspended Graham indefinitely.

Graham won a week's postponement on a plea of an injury in one shoulder and failed to do any training here for the bout. The suspension will be effective until he makes good the losses of the Parkway Club, promoter of the bout, officials said. The National Boxing Association also will be asked to suspend Graham in its more than 30 states.

Central Catholic Open for Games

Two games remain open on the Central Catholic High School grid schedule this season. City high school or out-of-town teams willing to book Central for either October 24 or November 22 are requested to get in touch with Coach Schrading at the Central Catholic High School, 4720 Fifth avenue.

The Catholics are scheduled to play a night game with the Charleroi High School at Charleroi on October 3.

Grange to Return To Chicago Bears

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—(INS)—Harold (Red) Grange, football flash of former years, will again play in the backfield of the Chicago Bears in the national professional campaign this fall, it was announced today by the pro team's owners.

Grange signed a contract yesterday and will report for workouts this week.

AMERICAN LOOP HURLERS BEST, RUTH SAYS

By BABE RUTH

Baseball's Highest Salaried Player

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—I think that the pitching in the American League this year has been quite a little better than it was a year ago. And I think too that the National League is having an off year in pitching. I say this without any prejudice as an American Leaguer. There are years when our league drops behind the National in one thing or another, as it has this year in young players. I pointed that out in a recent article.

Babe Ruth.

I had a little discussion about pitchers the other day with Wilbert Robinson when we met in a golf tournament held by the baseball writers. Robbie didn't agree with me. He said the pitching had been plenty tough in his league, but he couldn't name a pitcher for me who is likely to win 25 games this season.

It's a cinch that Wesley Ferrell will win 25, and probably more, unless he suffers an injury. Lefty Grove is another who should finish with 25 or more. George Earnshaw also has a good chance of reaching that mark. Just think how many Ted Lyons would have now if he were with a first-division ball club.

MARBERRY UNFORTUNATE

I think too, that Fred Marberry of Washington would be in line for this honor if he hadn't broken a bone in his hand about a month ago. He was pitching wonderful ball at the time. Sam Jones also was out for a month or he would be crowding 20 right now. Earl Whitehill is another pitcher in our league who is doing great work. He just finished a winning streak of 11 games in which he wasn't taken out of the box once.

These rate now among the best in our league, and I think all belong to the best 10 pitchers of the year. Pat Malone of the Cubs is about the best in the National League, but he won't win 25 games, and he is with a first-place team, at that. At least four pitchers in our league have won more games than Pat.

The best pitching, of course is not always found with clubs in the pennant fight. Lyons and Whitehill are examples in the American League. When you figure the teams they are with, such pitchers as Harry Seibold, of the Braves, and Remy Kremer, of the Pirates, rate among the best pitchers of the year.

ROBBIE BOOSTS NATIONAL

I think the big test of pitching these days is being able to go nine innings. The pitchers I have named have all distinguished themselves in being able to finish their own games. George Uhle, Irving Hadley, Wally Stewart and Milton Gaston are all up among the leaders in complete games, even though they have not starred as much as the pitchers named earlier. I notice that pitchers have been changed a lot more frequently in the National League than in the American.

Another thing I emphasized in my little friendly argument with Robbie was the number of teams hitting above .300. Last year about this time the National League had three teams in this class, with the Phillies leading at .309. Now six of the eight teams are hitting above .300 and the two others above .280. Only three teams in our league are hitting .300 and the we have three clubs under .280. Match them by position in the standing and see how much higher the National League teams are.

"That's because we have better hitters," Robbie insisted.

Then he started to talk of Terry and Herman and Klein and O'Doul and Cuyler and the Waners and a lot more. He talked like a set of batting averages.

I asked him did he ever hear of Simmons and Gehrig and Cochrane and Manush and a few more.

The argument ended as a standoff, with everybody happy. But I still think our league has an edge on the pitching this season.

Hit With Baseball Bat, Man Dies

ZANESVILLE, O., Sept. 3.—Struck with a bat during an argument over an umpire's decision at a ball game in Swasi, Monroe County, Sunday, Joseph Reed, 61, of Swasi, died here last night.

Ray Biehl, 30, of Summerfield, is held in Monroe County Jail, charged with wielding the bat. More serious charges are likely to be preferred.

Biehl disputed the decision of the umpire and Reed, with a number of spectators, swarmed on the field. Biehl is alleged to have struck Reed over the head with a bat and both fell. Reed with a concussion of the brain and Biehl from losing his balance in striking the blow.

Fintex Central Loop Second Half Champ

Fintex won the second half title in the Pittsburgh Central League last evening, defeating the Allegheny Collegians at Dean Field, 7 to 6. The Collegians and Fintex will open the post-season championship series next Tuesday evening. The Kokinos Cardinals defeated Coraopolis, 1 to 0, in the first game of the Ohio Valley title series.

Whitaker eliminated Iroquois from the invitation series, 7 to 1, at Whitaker.

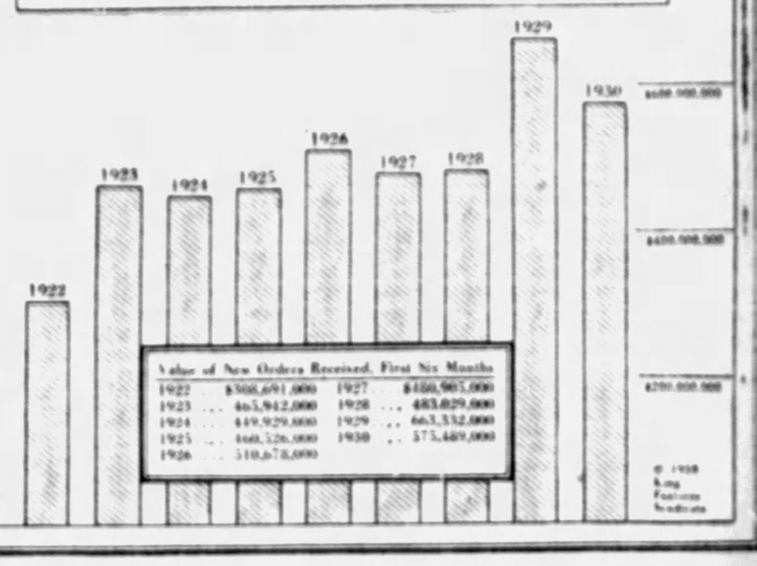
ACTUAL FACTS ON CONDITIONS TODAY

By FRELING FOSTER

Electrical Manufacturing Satisfactory

Orders for electrical goods placed during the first half of 1930 are compared with the corresponding figures for the past eight years. The figures, which represent virtually the entire industry, are based on the quarterly reports of 86 large manufacturers. Source: U. S. Bureau of the Census.

The gigantic electrical manufacturing industry is having one of the best years in its history, and considers itself in a satisfactory condition today. New orders received during the first half of 1930—although 13% below the boom 1929—are 19% higher than 1928 and 15% higher than the seven-year average from 1923 through 1929. These figures add further confirmation to the statement that pessimism has been greatly exaggerated.



STEEL OUTPUT SHOWS GAIN

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade tomorrow will say:

Pig iron production declined 4.3 per cent. in August, sinking to the lowest daily rate since October, 1924. But this recession is regarded as water over the dam, in view of the current trend of iron and steel works operations and the growing resistance of producers to price pressure.

Steel ingot output, notwithstanding the rather general interruption of business during the Labor Day week-end, has registered the third consecutive advance in as many weeks, now averaging 55 per cent. compared with 54 per cent last week and 52 per cent three weeks ago. While the gains have been slight, they have been none the less recognizable and have encouraged leading independent sheet makers to make the first determined price stand in more than a year.

Quotations announced by these mills eliminate recent minimum figures and will apply particularly on September business. The advance represents an effort to halt a protracted decline, which depressed prices $4 to $12 a ton below the levels of the first half of 1929, and at the same time reflects a recognition of the growing interest in future requirements manifested by buyers in the last two weeks.

GLOOM DISAPPEARING

Doubtless this move and others reported to be in contemplation are calculated to help replace the depression psychosis with a spirit of confidence. While events will determine whether the time is yet ripe for such a change, it is the consensus of opinion that the trend of trade this month will largely determine the fortunes of the steel industry for the remainder of the year, and that even mild seasonal recovery will do much to put business on a firmer basis and lead the way to sustained improvement early in 1931. Leading outlets for iron and steel disclose little change in tonnage consumed aside from the slight expansion recently noted, but no survey of the trade at a time like this can estimate the amount of business that is being held back by the ultra-conservatism that extends from manufacturing user and fabricator to ultimate consumer. Only a slight loosening of the purse strings all along the line, such as may be now in the making, would put many tons on producers' books. Another factor that may prove a deciding influence is the large unclassified, miscellaneous group of consumers, which last year took nearly one-fifth of all finished steel rolled.

Until a more definite trend is apparent reference must be made to such straws as are available. Pig iron shipments at Chicago in August showed a gain of 20 per cent over July, while certain Cleveland producers report an increase of 25 per cent. Improvement in orders for both alloy steel bars and carbon bars points to moderate expansion in automobile production. New inquiries for fabricated structural steel at 71,000 tons, are the largest since the second week in June. Tin plate production has risen to 70 per cent of capacity, following the passing of the drought scare. Scrap markets have held their recent gains, notwithstanding ample stocks in the hands of large consumers.

Total pig iron production in August, estimated from telegraphic returns to the Iron Age, was 2,556,500 tons, compared with 2,629,537 tons in July. The daily average in August, 81,500 tons, underwent a decline of 3,646 tons (4.3 per cent) from the July rate of 85,146 tons. All three of the Iron Age composite prices remain at last week's levels.

German Production Registers 10% Drop

BERLIN, Sept. 3.—Official statistics of German production during the first half of 1930 show a 10 per cent decline from the first half of 1929 while production during June was 20 per cent lower than June, 1929.

VALLEY STEEL AT 57 PCT.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 3.—Following suspensions for Labor Day observance, Valley steel industry resumed Tuesday in rolled steel departments averaging 57 per cent. with 55 of 120 sheet mills under power and 27 of 81 independent open hearth furnaces melting.

Carnegie Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube average 55 per cent., but Republic Steel reports average schedules of 65 per cent.

Newton Steel Company continues to operate its Newton Falls property at 30 per cent., with its new Monroe, Mich., plant idle.

Following reduction in the average selling price of Nos. 26, 27 and 28 gauge black sheets shipped during the 60 days ending August 30, tonnage workers receive a cut of 4½ per cent. for the September-October period, carrying their rate to 18 per cent. above base, the lowest in several years.

Workers in tin mills operating under the sliding scale wage agreement of the Amalgamated Association of Steel and Tin Workers, are also affected by the reduction.

Fabricating interests in the Youngstown district continue operations 70 to 80 per cent. of normal, representing seasonal operating schedules.

MARKET TIDE TURNS AFTER EBBING

Bulls Once More Regain Upper Hand Following Adjustments in Prices

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(AP.)—Bears found the stock market ripe for a technical reaction today, but by early afternoon the adjustment appeared to have been completed, and bulls once more gained the upper hand.

The inflexible action of the market yesterday indicated to the bear crowd that many traders long of stocks were anxious to take profits after the rise of last week, and the continued lack of public buying was evidently somewhat discouraging to operators for the rise. The selling movement failed to gain any velocity however, and few pivotal shares sold off more than a point although a few were depressed 2 to 4. Publication of Iron Age's weekly review of the steel situation apparently helped to turn the tide in the early afternoon.

BAKINGS ACTIVE

Firm features were Allied Chemical, Union Carbide and Bethlehem Steel, up about 2 to 4 points. A new development of the day's trading was an upturn in the baking shares particularly the Ward issues, practically inactive of late. The Class A stock traded 12 points above the last transaction. The Continental Baking shares also gained a couple of points.

United Aircraft U. S. Pipe International Telephone, Electric Auto-Lite were also firm. Shares selling off 2 to 4 during the morning included Radio, Air Reduction, Loews, Standard Gas, American Power and Light, American Tobacco B, Johns Manville and Case.

The situation in the steel industry was somewhat obscured by the Labor Day holiday, but Iron Age regarded the situation optimistically, stating that ingot production had increased 1 per cent for the third successive week, reaching 55 per cent of theoretical capacity. The review pointed out that sheet makers were taking the most determined price stand of the year. Structural steel orders were placed at the highest level since the second week of June. American Metal Market and Steel, however, noted little change in the situation.

DIVIDENDS CUT

Further reductions in the dividend rates of Kennecott Copper and Nevada Consolidated were not unexpected owing to continued sluggishness of the market for red metal, and had been largely discounted marketwise. The continued piling up of dividend reduction announcements, however, was not helpful to the cause of higher stock prices. Glidden, Maytag, Bohn Aluminum and Spencer Kellogg were among the firms announcing reductions.

Despite the soggy appearance of the market, bull operators found further signs of seasonal upturn in business reports. Total freight car loadings and the production of bituminous coal, both recorded wider than seasonal gains in the third week of August, according to statistics coming to hand.

That some of the chain store companies are managing to increase their earnings over last year was indicated by W. T. Grant's report for the six months ended July 31, showing an increase of 10 per cent in sales over the period of a year ago, due to increased stores in operation, but also an increase in net earnings of 12 per cent.

Call money still remained plentiful at 2 per cent. This, however, was probably due primarily to lack of demand. The banking demand for funds, resulting from the September 1 settlements, appeared in an increase in the rate of federal funds to 2¼ per cent, indicating that there has been considerable borrowing from the federal reserve this week.

Light Contract Goes To United Aircraft

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Rainbow Light, Inc., operating subsidiary of Rainbow Luminous Products, has completed exclusive contract arrangements with United Aircraft and Transport Corporation for the sale in foreign fields of the newly developed Neon airport lighting equipment of the Rainbow Company. The contract covers all foreign territories except where Rainbow Light already has licenses.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Cotton opened steady today at an advance of 1 to 6 points in response to higher cables than close on the New York close of yesterday and held steady during the early trading. Business was comparatively quiet on the advance which carried new October up to 11.07 and March to 11.52, or about 9 to 12 points net higher by the end of the first half hour.

Liverpool cables reported that hedging and liquidation had been absorbed by continental buying in that market. The figures of the International Cotton Federation placing world's consumption of American cotton for last season at 13,023,000 bales against 15,676,000 bales during the season 1928-29 were about in line with expectations.

Covering became more active lated in the morning with the advance extending to 11.83 for the new October and 11.68 for March contracts and with active months generally selling about 25 to 27 points net higher.

Statistics Reveal Better Condition in Petroleum Industry

The petroleum stocks do not boast many friends in the financial community at the moment.

This is so notwithstanding evidence of an improved statistical position for the industry that is from a domestic angle. The Bureau of Mines monthly figures out late last week showed domestic consumption of gasoline for July at 38,352,000 barrels a new peak compared with 35,902,000 barrels in June and 36,860,000 barrels in July last year. Stocks in storage on July 31 were down to 46,077,000 barrels compared with surplus stocks of 50,225,000 at the end of June but were sharply higher than the 37,880,000 barrels on hand reported on July 31 last year. Crude oil production for the month was slightly higher than in June this year totaling 76,143,000 barrels, but was down sharply from July last year when aggregate was over 96,000,000 barrels.

Among the features of yesterday as trading progressed was the increased pool activity evident in many sections of the list. Quite a few of the lower priced descriptions, including a number of those issues that had been prominent in the big speculation which blew up just about a year ago, were seemingly the process of an attempt to return them to some degree of popularity. The renewal of pool activities fitted in with reports current last week to the effect that the banks were perfectly willing to advance the funds necessary to such operations where the collateral involved measured up to their loan standards.

The new high speed ticket system now in full operation had an easy time of it on the first full working day. A ticker that is built to take care of daily volume running as high as 9,000,000 shares and which has proven its ability to do so under trying tests, does not find it much of a task to run off daily volume of around 2,000,000 shares such as transacted on the stock exchange yesterday. The only time when the new ticker had any opportunity at all to demonstrate its ability for speed was immediately at the opening, when it hissed along at a merry pace in reeling off the results of trading growing out of the accumulation of business which came to brokers over the holiday week-end. Thereafter it was necessary to hold the new machine in leash due to the fact that business did not provide any severe test for its qualifications.

General Electric, ranking bull market favorite, is returning to its former pinnacle as pacesetter for the entire list, if its action in the past few days is any indication of what the near term future appears to offer. The best description of the investment qualities of General Electric is that given by a leading investment service, which declares that "its leadership in most important lines of modern industrial development, tremendous power resulting from its worldwide network of affiliations, outstanding financial strength, the conservative valuation of assets and finally, its large unreported earning power in subsidiary companies, all serve to make the common stock one of the outstanding investments of the present economic era." The issue has always been quoted at a high ratio of earnings to market price, and the company has never failed in the course of time to fulfill the fondest expectations of its followers. The present dividend rate of $1.60 annually is amply covered by estimated earnings for the year of approximately $2.50 per share.

Another of the numerous compilations of stocks which appear inviting for price appreciation in the present market has been offered by a leading commission house. The list is divided into three groups, as follows: Investment, first group—American Can, United States Steel, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Allied Chemical, Dupont, General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, Chesapeake and Ohio, Electric Bond and Share, Borden, Columbian Carbon, Worthington Pump and J. I. Case Company.

Speculative favorites, second group — Childs, Radio, Radio-Keith-Orpheum, McKeesport Tin, Warner Brothers Pictures and American and Foreign Power.

Low-priced, third group — Standard Brands, Commonwealth and Southern, American Radiator, Studebaker, Continental Baking, United States Rubber, Remington Rand, United States Cast Iron Pipe and Atlantic Refining.

Traders generally are avoiding the long side of the copper shares. Their activities in this department have been mainly in establishing short positions as hedges against holdings in other stocks. The continued low price for the red metal is an important factor. Another influence is the prospect of an increase in the stocks of copper as of the end of August because of the comparatively limited sales made during the month.

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 3.—Wheat was due 1¼ to 1½ pence lower, opened off ¼ to ½ and at 1.20 p. m. was off ¾ to 1 pence.

Close ¼ to ½ penny lower.

That eastern railway executives are planning to rush electrification programs, presumably to take advantage of the current low prices of copper and other materials.

That aggressive stock market bullish operations are being launched in several of the chain store shares, including Interstate Department Stores and Atlas Stores, since both are said to be showing better earnings than last year. That pools have also been formed in several other merchandising shares, including Associated and Hahn Department Stores, and Grand-Silver.

That several market operators are turning to the low priced shares, such as Kelvinator and Sinclair, in the hope of attracting public participation.

That the motor truck industry is looking for a pickup in business during the fall months, and that speculative interests are planning activity in Brockway and Mack.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 3. The curb market lacked decision today and prices held within an exceedingly narrow range. Speculative sentiment was confused with the result that moves in either direction failed to accomplish much that was suggestive of a trend.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Buying induced by the failure of Liverpool wheat quotations to fully reflect yesterday's downturn in Chicago gave wheat prices a steady to firm start here today. However, the buying was not aggressive and the market soon weakened to slightly below the closing figures of yesterday. Corn opened firm with some buying but later eased down with wheat to below yesterday's finish. Opening unchanged to ½c up, wheat climbed a little and then sagged. Corn started from ⅛@⅛c up to ⅛@⅛c lower and afterwards fell off with wheat.

At noon wheat was ¼-½ lower and corn ranged from ¼-⅝ decline to ⅛-¼ advance.

Wheat prices showed little strength after the opening flury of buying, despite an unofficial bullish estimate on the world outlook for wheat. This report, issued by a leading Chicago crop expert, said that wheat prospects in the northern hemisphere now were about 50,000,000 bushels smaller than on August 1

Green's Plea to Eradicate Unemployment Should Be Taken to Heart.

By B. C. FORBES

RAILROADS IN 1920 employed 2,022,870. Today they employ 1,360,000.

In manufacturing 2,500,000 fewer workers are now producing an amazing increase over 10 years ago.

The producing capacity of the average wage earner has increased 11 per cent in the 20 years preceding 1919 and in the 10 years from 1919 to 1929 increased 53 per cent.

WILLIAM GREEN, head of America's organized labor, cites these figures to support his contention that we have a labor problem.

Mr. Forbes

What this temperate labor leader says should be heard to heartily ignore. Unemployment, although it undoubtedly does present a problem, is not the most acute of all. It is overshadowed in importance by other economic problems combined.

MR. GREEN claims that by taking sufficient thought unemployment can be remedied.

AFTER POINTING out that "industry is idle or partly idle simply because a consuming market represented by millions of workers cannot buy, absorb and use all the goods which industry produces," he declares:

"Steady, continuous employment for wage earners, would overcome this condition. Workers would buy and use if they knew they would be guaranteed continuous employment with annual income. They would plan over the yearly period rather than the daily period. They would avail themselves of credit facilities, and thus their buying and consuming power would be exercised beyond their annual earning power.

"Here is where management can serve industry through the application of orderly planning of production over a yearly period. This can be done, because it is being done by some progressive employers. If some can do it, all can do it, exclusive of the purely seasonal industries.

"In purely seasonal industries unemployment funds can be jointly created out of which workers can be paid weekly incomes during the forced period of seasonal unemployment.

"All of this can be supplemented by the application of scientific and systematic planning in the expenditure of public funds for building construction and for government improvements."

MR. GREEN chides industry for its inaction saying:

"No serious attempt has yet been made to deal with the problem of technological unemployment or to extend assistance through expert advice and information to those who are the victims of mechanical displacement. Only recently has the subject been discussed to any appreciable degree."

He further complains of the widespread refusal to employ workers of 40 or 45 years of age, and declares: "Only an aroused public opinion can supply the remedy for such an indefensable, uncivilized practice."

The American Federation of Labor, he emphasizes, "is seeking the enactment of old age pension and relief legislation as one of its chief aims and purposes."

State's Treasury Balance Declines

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 3.—Heavy drains on the motor fund to meet payments of road building contracts caused a sharp drop in the state treasury balance during August.

The monthly report of State Treasurer Edward Martin today indicated a total balance in all funds of $60,663,849 at the close of business August 31, as against $71,450,953 on July 31. The balance a year ago was $72,645,007.

Of the total balance only $12,544,886 was in the motor fund. A year ago the motor balance was $25,202,963. The general fund balance of $39,399,810 was only slightly below the figure for a year ago.

Total payments during August were $27,673,053, while receipts aggregated $16,885,948.

Business Failures Lower in August

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Commercial failures reported to R. G. [illegible] Co. in August fell below the 2,000 mark for the first time this year. The total of 1,913 was 5.7 per cent lower than the 2,028 insolvencies reported in July and more than 30 per cent below the 2,759 defaults in January, which was the maximum for a single month this year. The August figures, however, showed an increase of 8.6 per cent above the 1,762 defaults reported in August last year and 3 per cent above those for August, 1928.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 3. The bond market's pace slackened again today but prices of high grade issues displayed a firmness encouraging to observers who [illegible] that September [illegible] marks the beginning of a sharp investment demand.

Air Officials Want Open Record of Accidents

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Aeronautics officials of the Commerce Department hope the next session of Congress will amend present law to permit them to make public the causes of individual airplane accidents in the United States.

An attempt was made at the last session under a proposal introduced by Senator Bingham of Connecticut, author of the original air commerce act, but it was crowded out by pressure of other legislation.

Bingham is expected to renew the attempt at the December session. The proposal bears the approval of Commerce Department aeronautics officials. Under the present law, it was explained, the Commerce Department investigates all airplane accidents but is prevented by limitations of the act from fixing responsibility for individual mishaps.

Has Unlimited Authority

Officials explained that the law does not authorize subpenaing of witnesses, placing them under oath and does not protect the department against libel suits. They added that if they attempted to fix responsibility for accidents under present conditions they would be subjected to a barrage of damage suits.

What is desired by the aeronautics officials is a law similar to the one under which the Interstate Commerce Commission investigates railroad accidents. It can fix responsibility and there is no legal come back. At the last session of Congress the Commerce Department was criticized severely by some senators for not making public the causes of accidents. The department, however, insisted the law would have to be changed before it could follow this procedure. Since 1926, when the aeronautics branch was organized, it has investigated all airplane accidents and has issued semi-annual statistics dealing in generalities so far as the causes were concerned.

Causes of Crack-Ups

The causes were grouped, and mileage flown per accident was given. The latest report covering the last six months in 1929 said 55.75 per cent of the accidents were due to errors of personnel, 18.95 per cent to power-plant failures, 11.26 to structural and other defects in the airplane, 8.47 to miscellaneous causes such as weather and darkness, and 5.57 to undetermined and doubtful causes.

Errors of pilots were held responsible for 52.5 per cent of the accidents. This included errors of judgment, poor technique, disobedience of orders, carelessness or negligence and miscellaneous. Other errors of personnel included supervisory mistakes and miscellaneous.

The largest single cause of accidents was given as poor technique of pilots, which was held responsible for 28.3 per cent of the accidents. Errors of judgment caused 11.71 per cent of the mishaps.

A total of 924 accidents took place in the last six months of 1929. They were classified as follows: Scheduled flying 76, student instruction 70, experimental 43, commercial 188 and pleasure 547.

Safety Mileage Larger

This compared with 692 for the same period in 1928 and 774 for the first six months in 1929.

However, the total miles flown per accident jumped from 78,308 for the last six months of 1928 and 72,612 for the first six months of 1929 to 85,433 for the last six months of 1929. In scheduled transport flying the number of miles flown per accident advanced from 121,350 for the last six months of 1928 and 150,842 for the first half of 1929 to 209,739 for the last half of 1929.

Aeronautics officials argue that if the causes of individual accidents could be made public it would tend to give the public greater confidence in flying. They said if they could announce that an accident, for instance, was caused by the pilot being drunk, this would not lower confidence in aviation while under present conditions it does have that tendency.

The day marked the beginning of the bank's affiliation with the Mellon banking group, officials of the Mellon interests having recently acquired a large block of stock in the former Union Deposit and Trust Company.

No changes were made in the officials or staff of the old institution.

DAILY TRUE STORY

By Sterrett

Marta Ettinger looked up and smiled shyly when John Galvin passed the locker where she was hanging up her wraps, on his way to his office.

There was something about the earnestness and yet the kindliness of Mr. Galvin that always made Marta smile wistfully.

He said the usual "Good morning" and passed through the door lettered PRESIDENT.

Marta was glad of her position with the Galvin Advertising Agency as secretary to J. Augustus Brooke, but she often wished that the fates had cast her as secretary to Mr. Galvin.

Marta was in love with him, but she knew better than to cry for him or to expect to win him any more than she expected to reach up and grasp a piece of the glowing moon.

J. Augustus Brooke popped into his office.

"Ah," he said, "great day to work."

He always said that. It was his form of saying "Good morning."

Marta said yes, but she was thinking that it was not a good day to play.

On the door to his office was just the name "J. Augustus Brooke." He would have liked to have had "Ivory" with his name. "Advertising Expert."

But John Galvin owned the new and fairly prosperous advertising agency quite to himself. J. Augustus had no say in a great many things.

To John Galvin Brooke was "Our Sloganeer."

On this morning Brooke's buzzer indicated that he was wanted in the president's office.

He popped in.

This was part of his system. Never to saunter in or to walk in briskly, he popped in and he popped out. It was a part of his stock in trade to be snappy, peppy and always at high-pressure.

Meets Mr. Howe

And so he popped into John Galvin's office and stood alert, like a cocker spaniel waiting for you to throw the stick.

"Mr. Howe," Galvin said, "this is Brooke, our sloganeer." He turned to J. Augustus. "Mr. Howe is putting out a new tooth paste. He wants some slogans."

"Certainly. What are its special qualifications, Mr. Howe?"

"Just an excellent tooth-paste."

J. Augustus perked up and looked as though he were going to bark.

"Hand on card, holding tube of the stuff out, and the slogan, 'Here's Howe.' What about that?" suggested J. Augustus, brightly.

"Everyone has mentioned that—it suggests a drink, not a dentifrice," Mr. Howe said, gloomily.

"To be sure, to be sure. I'll pop into my sanctum and concentrate—turn you out something right away."

J. Augustus popped out.

"We will submit copy," John Galvin said.

J. Augustus popped into his own office.

"Called on me for help, Galvin did—has a big toothpaste man there, wants slogan, name's Howe — say, Miss Ettinger, doesn't that combination hit you as calling for a picture of a hand holding out a tube of the paste, and the slogan 'Here's Howe'?"

"It doesn't," Marta said quietly; "it is too obvious. It suggests that the tube might be filled with gin. It doesn't hint at teeth. It might be oil for a sewing machine, because a man named Howe invented the sewing machine."

Marta Ettinger knew J. Augustus thoroughly and wasn't afraid to give him her opinions, because she took it for granted that he wouldn't ask her for them unless he wanted them.

"There!" exclaimed J. Augustus, "that shows—obvious—exactly what I told them."

"What is it like? What is new about it?" she asked.

He handed her a sample tube. Marta looked it over.

"If it were mine I'd give the stuff a spruce balsam flavor, and call it 'White Balsam.'"

J. Augustus scowled. He thought this gave him an appearance of being in deep thought.

"Fair, not very hot, though," he said.

"For the teeth—does for the teeth what pine-laden ozone does for the lungs; it's a new thought," Marta went on evenly.

Mr. Howe Satisfied

"M-m-m-m, perhaps," J. Augustus made some notes.

"That reminds me of something else," he said, and he popped out again.

He didn't fool Marta Ettinger for a moment. She knew that he would rush to John Galvin and tell him about it—and he would wait to see how it was received, and if they didn't like it he would say that he agreed that it was an idea his secretary had. But if they liked it he would say, "Not so bad, just put my mind on it for half a minute."

It was just about like that. Mr. Howe hadn't gone. J. Augustus sprung the suggestion just as Marta had made it. Mr. Howe was enthusiastic.

"Picture of green balsam branch on the tube—it will be a novelty, and sensible and catchy—get busy on the copy, please," he said.

The copy was made and accepted, and another fat advertising account went on John Galvin's books. Galvin believed he had quite a find in J. Augustus Brooke.

Vacation time. J. Augustus told John Galvin that, while he was having his two weeks there would be nothing for Miss Ettinger to do, so she had better be given her vacation at the same time. J. Augustus wasn't quite foolish. He might be called on for slogans when Miss Ettinger was away and then, afterward. He depended largely on her ideas.

Marta enjoyed her vacation and met some nice young men, but none of them appealed. She couldn't help comparing them to John Galvin, and this didn't help her when the comparison she wished she wasn't such a fool as to have failed, it was with a man she could never hope to win.

When she went back to the office she went through the mail of J. Augustus's desk. There wasn't much. His personal mail had been forwarded.

There was a formidable stack of speeches typewritten, information and data to use all pertaining to Mr. Isaac Amber's new five-cent collection. Marta was interested. Mr. Galvin had been after the Amber account for a long while. It represented more, almost, than all of his other accounts.

With this was a note.

Brooke: Give me the best you have on this a slogan that will land the account. We must have it. J. G.

Leaves Note

Marta was more than interested. Mr. Galvin's secretary informed her that Mr. Galvin wouldn't be back until next day. Like as not J. Augustus would take an extra day off. She decided to help him. He would call on her for advice anyway, and she might as well go through with the material and be ready.

She set about it and became so interested that she forgot the lunch hour.

She decided on:

AMBER'S AMBROSIA
A Food For The Gods

She delved into volumes on mythology and described her idea of a gaudy wrapper picturing Venus nibbling at a bar of Amber's Ambrosia.

She fixed it all up and left this note:

Dear Mr. Brooke: Was afraid you might be an extra day late so I fixed this up for you. Hope it will help you and as Mr. Galvin is in a rush this will save time.

When I was on my vacation I got quite a thrill seeing the White Balsam tooth paste that I suggested already on the market. I do hope this will land the big Amber account for Mr. Galvin. M. E.

Then Marta went home.

She was at her desk next morning on time as usual. J. Augustus she thought would be early this morning and she could find out what he thought of her suggestions.

She glanced at his desk.

The Amber material she had fixed up and put in his wire basket wasn't there. She was looking to see if J. Augustus hat was present but it wasn't. Could the office boy have cleaned up and lost.

John Galvin, who seldom "popped" in actually did pop in at this moment.

"So you knew that Brooke had broken his leg, did you?" He was smiling at her, but rather excited.

Marta was so surprised that he realized she hadn't known it.

"Then I take it you are in the habit of giving Brooke his slogans?"

"I—sometimes he asks me to suggest things, Mr. Galvin."

"And you saw this Amber thing yesterday and did it for him?"

"I—I made some suggestions—"

Martha Promoted

"Suggestions! You did the whole thing—and that White Balsam toothpaste idea was yours, eh?" And the Free-way sport shirts and the—I guess you suggested all of the big hits I gave Brooke credit for."

Marta said nothing.

"Take it easy until something else comes up, Miss Ettinger—I'm betting you have landed the Amber account for us!"

John Galvin rushed out. He went over to Amber's office. A million-dollar account is worth going out to get rather than being too dignified to leave one's office.

The next day two small accounts came in to Marta and she suggested slogans and other things.

Mr. Galvin's secretary went on vacation and from there she was going into matrimony. Marta became Mr. Galvin's secretary.

Then came word that they had landed the big Amber account. He was mightily pleased with the slogan and especially since it used his name.

One morning Mr. Galvin said to Marta:

"Mr. Brooke is going with another concern, and I'd like to ask you two questions—first, I want to marry you—and, second, if you did me the honor to accept, would you mind helping me out with slogans now and then?"

"I—I wouldn't mind," Marta managed to say.

"You wouldn't mind what, please?"

"Er—being Mrs. John Galvin and helping with slogans," she answered.

Several New York department stores have banned the wearing of spats by salesmen, on the theory that a spat-wearing salesman makes the customer feel so inferior that he refuses to buy.

But that could be easily adjusted by having each salesman let one garter drag.

The customer would then feel so superior that he'd probably spend his money like a drunken sailor's bootlegger.

Of course, there are some people who just can't feel very strongly about salesmen—with or without spats.

Semi-Annual Report

Business For First Six Months of 1930 Far Ahead of Same Period Last Year.

At this time we wish to submit the semi-annual report of our Question & Answer Department, as compiled by Chairwoman of the Board, Aunt Bella Sykes (nee Jute), as follows—

Sept. 2, 1930.

Dear Friends and Subscribers:

This opportunity comes as a complete surprise to me, as I did not realize that the six months period was up yet, so absorbed am I in my work and other things. But I am pleased to report that our Question & Answer business during the last six months exceeds, yes, and more, the number of questions asked during the same period in 1929, and has grown steadily since its conception in January of this year. I wish I could let you see my figures sometime—but that is not practical. I have answered personal queries from all the crowned heads of Europe. I have answered the call of wild lonely hearts, male and female and male. I have cared for the sick and wounded. I have bought—I mean brought—cheer for millions. The way things looks now, your Aunt Bella does not have to take a back seat to no one in the Q. and A. racket. Our plans for expansion are nobody's business, and include many novelties, such as answers dropped from balloons, the use of television, etc. I want to thank all those who have so kindly refrained from sending insulting and off-color letters, and to the others I wish to say that I hold no ill will toward no man, but so far as I am concerned, some people would get a lot further by cutting out the rough stuff. Thanking you one and all for your support, I am yours with a Capital A—

Aunt ("Work and Win") Bella.

Grant Street Widening Is Kline Achievement

In commenting Monday on the transformation of Grant street from a narrow, crooked thoroughfare of second-rate shops into a broad, straight avenue of majestic office buildings and public institutions, we remarked that the change could be traced to the vision and sagacity of the civic workers who engineered the removal of the Hump. This has brought from Director Edward G. Lang, of the Department of Public Works, a letter in which he calls attention to the fact that Grant street was widened under the administration of Mayor Charles H. Kline.

While we doubt that Grant street could have attained its present status if the Hump had not been removed, we appreciate Director Lang's letter and are happy to give Mayor Kline credit for the very important part that he took in the improvement of this street. Director Lang is too modest to claim any personal credit, but we are glad to accord him a share, too; for it was under the direction of his department that the job was done.

He says the widening of Grant street had been the subject of futile discussion for 30 years when Mayor Kline gave it his attention. Kline put it through. Director Lang speaks of it as "one of the most important public improvements that has been made in the city in decades." We concur.

Milk Served in a Glass Found Below Standard

It has been no doubt more or less of a mystery to a good many people why hotels, restaurants, and soda fountains in Pennsylvania are not allowed to serve milk in a glass, but are required to set it before the customer in the original bottle or other container in which it comes from the dairy. The state law imposing this requirement is rigidly enforced.

Light is thrown on the matter by a disclosure just made by Dr. J. W. Kellogg, director of the Bureau of Foods and Chemistry in the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. He says analyses of samples of milk, seized by the state food authorities because it was served in a glass, show much of it is below the legal limit in butter fat. That means, presumably, that the restaurant keepers who poured the milk out of the original containers skimmed off cream before serving it to their customers.

If, then, you should be inclined to grumble at having a bottle of milk and a straw shoved to you at a lunch counter, instead of its being served in a glass, as you are accustomed to having it at home, console yourself with the reflection that you are assured of a definite quantity of milk bottled under sanitary conditions, and also a product that complies with the law in the amount of butter fat and solids contained.

Register Tomorrow For Fall Election

Citizens of Pittsburgh, McKeesport, Clairton and Duquesne may register for the November election tomorrow, September 16 or October 4. Delay is dangerous; therefore it is to be hoped that all who can will attend to this important civic duty on the first day.

The campaign is going to be hot and the outcome of the election in doubt until the votes are counted. When November 4 arrives every patriotic citizen will be keen to cast a ballot. Qualify at the earliest opportunity and get it off your mind.

Pittsburgh registrars will sit at the polling places from 8 to 11 a. m. and from 5 to 11 p. m., daylight saving time.

Residents of the boroughs and townships should make sure that they have been assessed. If their names were not taken in the house-to-house canvass of the register assessors they can be enrolled by calling at the voting places today between 11 a. m. and 4 p. m. or between 7 and 10 p. m.

Canadian Diagnosis

Analysis of Employment Situation

A Canadian, R. S. Deachman, of Ottawa, thinks Americans are mistaken in their conclusion that the rapid adoption of labor-saving machinery is largely responsible for unemployment.

He reasons thus:

If a factory is making boots which sell at $10 and someone invents a machine that reduces the cost of production $2, then the boots ought to sell for $8. In this case a certain number of men would be dismissed. A machine does the work. But let us not assume that the loss of employment is as complete as it seems on the surface. It required a certain number of men to manufacture the machine. Its selling, advertising and transportation have required a certain number. The result, therefore, is not a total loss so far as employment is concerned. If in addition to this a manufacturer reduces the selling price of his product to the amount of the saving which he has made, there has been released a further purchasing power of $2 available for the purchase of other commodities. This finds its way back into the market and so we have an increased amount of employment there. The result of the change has been that the people purchase more commodities. . . . In the long run there is not necessarily a decrease of employment and there may be an increase.

This is a rather convincing analysis, and by indirection it points out the reverse effect if monopoly (and tariff restrictions) maintain prices at pre-machine levels—decreasing total employment without adding to purchasing power by widespread reduced costs to consumer.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

The Doctor's Advice

Dr. Lyman Fisk is an official of the Life Extension Bureau which furnishes statistics for tombstones.

The good old doctor sailed for Europe last week in a very first-class manner. Before going, he opened up a bag of advice that has started the scientific world chattering like an old set of axles.

"Bugs" Baer

The doctor said there was a very heavy mortality among Turks aged 156 years. The business man of America does not live long enough.

But if the business man of America lived through last October that was plenty long enough.

In order to stick around to the unripe age of 80, Dr. Fisk advises an equal mixture of intoxication, love and work.

By intoxication he means a good old fashioned souse. One of those things where you kiss the bartender good-night, try all the other boys' hats on and wind up singing about the moon shining down tonight upon the Wabash.

After the rubber-legged choir has sung Sweet Adeline they then go into their big fist fight on the bar room floor. You spend the next two weeks combing sawdust out of your curly hair.

The doctor advises us to mix wine, women and work about even. After giving out this revolutionary prescription the wiseacre from the Life Extension Bureau pulled in his neck in an effort to extend his own life.

All the reform societies have already registered protests against this medical ultimatum. They object to the work.

The process of getting stewed is rather difficult. You can drink the gasoline out of a motor car's tank and claim auto-intoxication.

But, if you go into a speakeasy which is about to be honored with a government raid, what are you going to say? Can you tell the judge you were following the doctor's orders?

As a doctor is only allowed 36 pints a month he isn't going to extend many lives or shorten many careers. And while we would like to take the entire output of our family doctor he has an unfortunate habit of going away for the summer.

If pickling will extend your life why don't herring hang up swimming records in a barrel? Usually, we don't disagree with a doctor until he sends in his bill.

But this time we think Dr. Fisk is barking up the wrong dogwood. And when he tells us to go to work he is usurping the privilege of the policeman who tells us the same thing every day.

INTERNATIONAL AIR CODES

By Archibald Henderson

The world has moved a long way in aviation since the international air convention of 1919. The fundamental principles adopted by that convention were sound, so far as they went. But new and complicated problems have arisen and continue to rise; and these must be met by a series of new international agreements. Satisfactory reciprocal agreements have been made between this country and Canada, especially in the matter of the exchange of certificates of airworthiness.

The principal objectives held in view by American authorities have been the development of air lines within our own national boundaries, and the establishment of satisfactory relations and regulations with neighboring countries, notably Canada, Mexico and the Central and South American countries. The question of commercial flying verges at once upon foreign relations, traffic, duty and customs relations, safety in transport over foreign soil, extradition problems and international relations generally. Questions of trade and commerce have not yet become acute, owing to the lack of development on a large scale of aircraft as commerce carriers.

But it is only a question of a short time before an international air congress will have to meet in order to draft suitable regulations to govern international air communication. Even for commercial air lines now the papers to be filled out are very complicated and elaborate. For the private flyer upon a world tour the difficulties and complications in the matter of passports are exceedingly tedious and irksome.

International air communication is growing by leaps and bounds. Already there exists a well-established airway between North and South America. Just as Europe has established air lines between the continent and Asia and Africa, the United States is in a fair way to the establishment of lines connecting this country with all nearby or even remote countries in the Western world. The Isthmus of Panama and the West Indies will become, in the near future, regular posts of call for great air lines connecting North and South America.

Aviation brings with it the necessity of uniform codes. Aircraft in their flight frequently cross international boundaries, and non-uniform regulation on the part of local governments would prove a deterrent to the development of airlines.

Their rapid expansion in the United States has been due in no small measure to our Federal supervision, as against local restrictions. The maximum advantage of air commerce can be obtained only by international adoption of uniform flying regulations.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Richard Hulsenbeck, distinguished German writer, doesn't think much of American love or marriage. Says he:

"What distinguishes the attitude of the average American toward women is his lack of moderation. It is an attitude of either immoderate worship or immoderate contempt."

Thereupon he goes on to show how we're always either swapping candy hearts or serving divorce summons. And you'll be hard put to disprove a single one of his statements. For, in spite of our proud boast that the American home is the world's greatest institution, that's the way we are! And how'd we get that way? Largely by believing bunkum.

Remember the invariable ending of your childhood fairy tales: "And so they were married and lived happily ever after?" That was your first introduction to the estate of marriage, and upon that delightful statement, you based your expectation of what marriage should be and do. And though you may not have heard a fairy tale since you were eight, you'll go on expecting "Live happy ever after," results from marriage until you're eighty.

Why have we so many aggravating or atrophying marriages—why so many divorces? That's why. Because, though we're the most practical people on earth in other departments of our lives—we are ninnies about marriage. If we're buying an electric refrigerator, or a patent do-hikey for the automobile, we ask a thousand questions and demand tabulated proofs of result. Against nefarious promotion schemes we protect ourselves by countless laws and commissions. But when it comes to marriage we fall for any old gold brick.

We begin with "immoderate worship," says Hulsenbeck—with wild, hysterical infatuation that takes no account of physiology, psychology, biology or bank books. Yesterday we raised Cain because the man at the service station tried to charge us 19 cents instead of 17 for gas. Today we throw all caution to the winds, mess up all our social and domestic obligations, mortgage our future health, happiness and prosperity and go leaping up the nuptial aisle with no more notion of where we're going to land than a couple of grasshoppers.

Then what happens? Miracles? Fairy tales? No. Just Life. Life happens—that's all. Life happens after marriage, as it happened before.

The new couple do not "live happily ever after"—they just live. There is no sudden magic endowment of wisdom and strength—no miraculous smoothing out of difficulties. Life proceeds as it has always proceeded—pleasantly or peevishly, according to our makin's. And, generally speaking, the makin's aren't anything to brag about.

That's marriage. Just living on . . . and getting our breaks as we earn them. Which is all that any reasonable person has a right to expect of any institution. But do we act reasonable, when after the romantic preliminaries, we discover that this is all marriage has to offer? We do not! We raise Cain. We bellow and blubber that we've been cheated, tricked, betrayed. And from ecstatic heights we promptly descend to that "immoderate contempt" of Herr Hulsenbeck—and sprint for the divorce court.

Now, is this necessary? Not in the least. If we'd use a tenth of the self control and common sense in conducting our marriages which we use in trading pig iron and cabbages, we'd practically wipe the divorce rate off the map. But try and make us do it! Just suggest, for instance, that we install compulsory courses in sex education and domestic sciences. . . . eugenic examination . . . prenuptial agreements as to finances and children . . . wages for wives . . . and rights for husbands . . . and see where you'll get off. You'll get off in the dog house—that's where. For this, I'll have you know, is a nation that believes in Romance, AND NOTHING BUT!

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

Pullman porters have got to be pretty smart to make any kind of a success with their work. They have all kinds of people to deal with, and they got to be polite, no matter what happens.

There was a guy that was too intoxicated to get into his berth alone, and the porter was helping him. The guy hit his eye against a corner of the upper berth, and the porter went and got some ice to put on it.

"But it'll turn black anyhow, and how'll I explain to my wife?" says the guy.

"Never worry, sah; jest tell her it's a berth-mark," says the porter.

Realities

"As real," we say, "as this rough wall
Of stone by which we stand,
Or these old oak trees, straight and tall,
Against the verdant land."

But are these things we touch or see
The ones most truly known,
That we impute reality
Always to star or stone?

Ah, better if we would but say
As real as love or trust,
Or truth which will not pass away
When this great wall is dust!

While Time's slow hand brings lofty tower
And temple to decay,
Still will hope's fragrant blossom flower,
Still love's white flame will stay.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

There was no effect on the flies actually exposed to the X-rays, but among their off-spring mutations turned up, literally by the hundred. He got flies with white eyes instead of the usual red, flies with unusually small wings, flies with their tiny bristles forked instead of straight, and all sorts of other strange forms, and the alteration in the genes was permanent for the new varieties bred true after Mendals laws.

Some of them were dominant and some recessive. Some were altogether new; some were identical with mutations that had already turned up spontaneously in untreated fruit-fly cultures. To put it crudely, the germ-plasm had been thoroughly shaken up.

H. G. Wells

This line of work is being extended to other kinds of living things, and positive results have already been obtained with maize.

An exciting speculation, based on Muller's results, is that some at least of the natural mutation which is always in progress may also be due to X-rays.

For X-rays do occur in the radiance that falls on our earth. True, they are very scarce; but then the mutations of wild things are much rarer than the artificially produced mutations of Muller's flies. And the two variables roughly cancel out, so that the suggestion is entirely plausible.

A disturbing idea, that life has evolved and is still evolving under the spur of those strange rays shot casually into our world from unknown corners of the universe!

BOOK IV. CHAPTER VII.
SEC. 6. MOTHS AND SMOKE

Besides X-rays, it seems that chemical influences can produce mutations. An interesting example of this was found a few years ago by Heslop Harrison, an English biologist. It concerns the black or "melanic" varieties of moths that are occasionally found wild.

About a century ago the first recorded examples of a dark or "melanic" variety of the peppered moth Amphidasys betularia were caught in England, and for years afterward the variety remained rare. Collectors were keen, so that it is unlikely that the variation first appeared much before the date of its discovery or that its rarity was only apparent.

It gradually became commoner, until by the beginning of this century it was in some districts more abundant than the normal type. Where it was common was in industrial regions and near big cities, in the countryside it remained rare.

Other species of moth in the same localities gradually followed suit, until today in regions like the manufacturing areas of Northumberland or Durham, scores of species are usually found of dark type instead of with their original white or brown or gray ground-color. Sometimes the transformation has been amazingly rapid.

In North Durham, for instance, Prof. Harrison records that the moth Ypsipetes trifasciata was transformed from the normal light type to a dark one within 12 years; in 1898 no black mutants had been seen, while by 1910 the original light type was hardly to be found. Rather later than in Britain, melanic moths began to appear in other countries, but always in areas where industrialism had reached a certain pitch.

They are now known from Germany, France, Belgium and the United States. Moreover, wherever the breeding behavior has been tested, the two forms have been found to differ in one Mendelian gene only, dark being almost always dominant to light. No help in escaping the notice of enemies seems to be conferred upon these moths by their dark color; it is not a protective variation.

Now all green things in industrial districts are coated with a grime that is rich in poisonous metallic salts. It occurred to Harrison, struck by the coincidence between the distribution of black moths and of industrial smoke, that this might be the cause of the change.

Accordingly he made the caterpillars of various moths eat tiny quantities of heavy metals, especially lead and manganese, with their food.

His suspicion was justified: to the metal-fed cultures a few mutants, with black wings, appeared. Moreover, the color, once it had been produced, bred true even without further metal-feeding. The chemical agencies had induced permanent changes in the germ-plasm.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Four times in the same number of months and twice in the past 24 hours I have been mistaken for another. I'm beginning to peek around corners. It began when a man tapped me on the shoulder in the Graybar building to inquire: "Aren't you Tully Marshall?"

I tried to tell him above the Waldorf riveting, several blocks away. I was not. He peered curiously, growled as though he might slap me: "Well, you look like him." Later, on a liner deck, a tittupy man greeted me with: "Hello Oscar!" I wondered how that got out. It is one of my trick names.

He fell in step and I began angling with leading questions to place him, but he was a total stranger. Finally he asked: "How is Mrs. Shaw?" I look about as much like Oscar Shaw as Louis Wolheim does like John Marrymore. And furthermore my teeth came from Macy's.

Then there was the noon I was siestaed on the broad terrasse of Weber's in rue Royale awaiting my wife. A gentleman hopped quickly out of a mouse-powered taxi, rushed over and began pumping my hand. I abhor effusive hand-shakers and he could have kept a dozen eggs two weeks on the cold storage look I gave him.

He was not the sort to be bothered by that, pulled up a chair and wanted to know how the polo pony was getting along. It seemed he had swapped one with me. I don't even know the which end of a polo mallet. My increasing chilliness, you have no idea how mean I can be, finally touched him.

He stopped short with an odd gaze and inquired: "Aren't you Ed Baker?" I replied in my farthest north manner I wasn't and hoped he would enjoy his homeward voyage—the last crack was to burn him right up. He went away shaking his head. I now believe he was on the level. But imagine—a polo pony with my legs!

Later, in Berlin, I was walking through the Bristol lobby. A page boy said the cashier wanted me. After several searching questions I caught the idea. Someone looking like me gave the hotel a rancid check a year ago. I had to show my passport and was so frightened I'd gladly have shown the embroidered "OOM" on my underthings.

But the pay-off was this morning. I was prowling through Lord and Taylor's looking for a bathroom chair with rubber tips—the one I had flew out from under me and did I bite my tongue!—when I heard a hurried pattering of soft footfalls behind. An arm plunged through mine and an entrancing, breathless voice urged: "We must hurry (calling me something like 'Buvsey'), we are an hour late as it is." I permitted myself to be dragged to an exit door before she discovered her mistake, dropped my arm like a hot potato and turned flaming red. She stuttered "You!" as though I was the deep-eyed villain in a play. I never saw the lady before in my life, for goodness sakes.

This same late evening walking northward I stopped to look in the window of a candy store above the Savoy-Plaza. A lady came out of the store with a package under her arm, counting change in her hand. Without looking up she handed me the package and announced: "We might as well take a taxi here!" I inquired: "Who brings these beautiful flowers?"—that's me every time, smack on the barrel head, the old trigger stuff, hotchie dotchie! She blushed becomingly, explained her husband was to await her outside the candy store. "You look a bit like him!" she added, and I thought a shade kittenishly. Whence come these pagan charms, anyoldhow?

One thing I hope. That no one mistakes me for Rudy Vallee. I'm a perfect sil making love. O, well, I mean without a youngish moon, a hammock and a uke and things.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Does superstition play a large part in your life?

There are many things you won't do at certain times because you think it is unlucky.

You wouldn't be married on Friday, or go back for something without sitting down, or spill the salt without throwing some at once over your left shoulder.

Isn't that silly—such childish fears?

It is surprising the number of persons who carry "lucky pieces."

Thousands won't pass under a ladder—countless others are filled with apprehension if a black cat crosses their path.

To see the moon over the left shoulder without money in your pocket, especially the new moon, is a sure sign that you will have to work hard for every cent you get that next month.

To raise an umbrella in a building or drown a family of kittens or break a mirror puts dread in the hearts of some otherwise sensible people.

Scores of things, just as foolish, are keeping a lot of persons from enjoying life and bringing to pass unhappiness through mental dread.

If you want to be thought a normal person don't give way to any influence as "unlucky."
